Key Gases Detected On Mars

By RICHARD SALTUS
AP Science Writer

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The Viking 1 robot probe of Mars has detected nitrogen and argon gases in the atmosphere of the Red Planet in sufficient abundance to make scientists more optimistic that life could flourish there, the project's directors said today. While not providing any evidence of life, past or future, the discovery by the probe as it descended toward Tuesday's historic Mars landing suggest that Mars had a denser, more life-sustaining environment in the past.

Together with Viking's findings from orbit that the planet's surface showed what appeared to be the effects of water once having flowed in rivers, the discovery of nitrogen means that all the essential factors for life could have been present at some time, Project Scientist Dr. Gerald Soffen said at a news briefing early today.

"The 'stewpot' was there to do the kind of organic chemistry required for biogenesis (synthesis of living organisms)," said Soffen. "Whether it took place or not we don't know."

The presence of argon, an inert gas also found in the earth's atmosphere, is given off by the radioactive decay of elements in the planet's crust. The fact that Mars has a relatively large abundance now, said Dr. Michael McElroy of Harvard University, indicates the atmosphere at one time was much denser.

From the abundance of argon, it can be deduced that nitrogen must have been present early in the planet's history, he told a news conference.

"If you look at what we need for life," said McElroy, referring to Mars, "we need energy; that we have. We need water; that we have. We need nitrogen; that we have. Carbon, phosphates, ..."

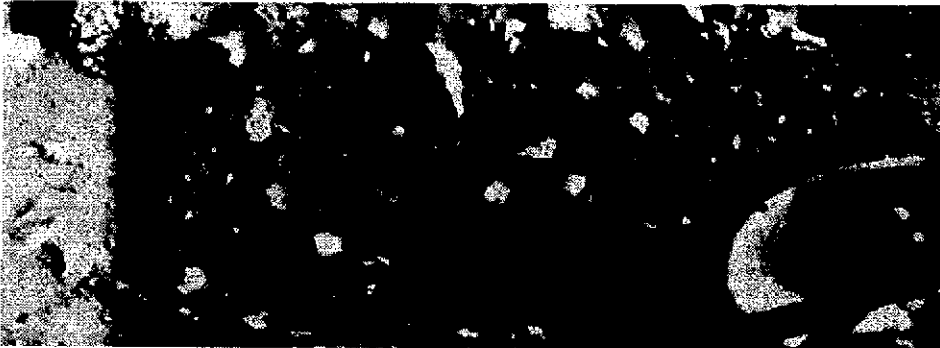

"I see no reason to exclude, from everything we know, the possibility of the evolution of life."

The important question, he said, is whether water existed in a liquid form on the planet long enough for the random combinations of prelife ingredients to come together and begin to evolve into self-reproducing forms.

The measurements were made by instruments aboard

Inflation Rate Is 6.1%

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite a leveling off in food costs, consumer prices jumped five-tenths of a per cent last month, driven upward by a sharp increase in the cost of gasoline and other energy products, the government said today. The June increase follows hikes of six-tenths of a per cent in May and four-tenths of a per cent in April, closing out the second quarter with inflation rising at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 6.1 per cent. That is about what Federal Reserve Board economists have considered in the past to be the underlying inflation rate in the economy. The increase of grocery prices slowed in June, rising only two-tenths of a per cent after jumping one per cent in May and six-tenths of a per cent in April, the Labor Department said. However, the department said the improvement was offset by sharp increases in the costs of a broad range of energy products, including gasoline, motor oil, fuel oil, coal, natural gas and electricity. Over-all, energy prices were up 1.9 per cent in June, accounting for almost a third of the month's increase in the department's Consumer Price Index.

Heavy Rain Ends Long Dry Spell

By JERRY KRINGER

Parching fields and lawns in most of southwestern Michigan were blessed with the first rain of consequence in three weeks last night. The welcome moisture ranged from 1.13 inches at the South Haven Experiment Station to 2.34 inches at the Herb Teichman farm near Eau Claire. All or nearly all of Berrien, Van Buren and Cass counties reported appreciable rainfall, but inland portions of Allegan county got little or no rain.

Rain reported at other locations in the area were: Sodus Experiment Farm, 2.23 inches; Niles, 2.20 inches; Paw Paw, 1.65 inches; Bangor, 1.37 inches. Only a moderate wind and modest electrical activity accompanied the rain that developed in the late afternoon and moved from north to south over the area.

The same weather system produced even heavier down-pour in the Chicago area. The community of Frankfort south of Chicago, was hit by 6.6 inches of rain, and Joliet, southwest of Chicago, took more than four inches. Parched farmlands across north Illinois, eastern Iowa and southern Wisconsin also were soaked by the rain. Southwestern Michigan farmers reported the rain was sorely needed. Arnold Hafer reported the rain was the first of any appreciable amount since 7.9 inches was recorded at the Sodus Experiment Farm on June 30.

Only light winds accompanied the slow-moving storm, and very little damage was reported.

Indiana & Michigan Electric Co. reported the only significant problem it encountered was along Niles avenue in south St. Joseph. Branches falling onto primary lines knocked out power twice during the evening to the same group of some 620 customers.

N-Plant Deals Complete

WASHINGTON (AP) — Negotiations are now complete for the sale of U.S. nuclear power reactors to Israel and Egypt, according to the State Department. The department Tuesday confirmed completion of negotiations, just 24 hours after disclosures that American assistance contributed to India's successful detonation of a nuclear device in 1994. Delivery of the Israel and Egypt energy generating systems is planned for the mid-1990s, and officials say safeguards on their use will be stricter than normal international controls.

Boothby Challenges Stockman To Debate Campaign Issues

Berrien Springs, Att. Lee Boothby today challenged David Stockman to a debate on the issues of their campaigns for the Republican nomination for the Fourth District Congressional seat.

In a letter delivered to Stockman's office this morning, Boothby suggested a July 26 taped debate to be aired later on radio stations throughout the district.

"Everywhere I go people want to know how Stockman and I differ on the issues," Boothby said at a press conference at the St. Joseph Holiday Inn this morning. "I think the voters have a right to have that question answered."

Boothby said there were "several fundamental differences" between his and Stockman's views on campaign issues including those on welfare, social security and national health insurance.

Also running for the congressional seat now held by Edward Hutchinson are David Frazer of Benton Township and Helen Take of St. Joseph.

Boothby, who considers Stockman his main primary opponent, said he didn't believe "it would be helpful in clarifying the issues" to include the other two candidates in the debate.

School Kidnap Probers Focus On Quarry And Its Workers

LIVERMORE, Calif. (AP) —

Authorities say the "prime area of investigation" in their search for three men who kidnaped 26 school children and their bus driver is the rock quarry where the victims were imprisoned in a buried trailer.

"I can't predict when there will be an arrest," Alameda County Sheriff's Lt. Ed Volpe said late Tuesday night. "I'm just optimistic."

While remaining hopeful, Volpe downgraded an earlier statement by a sheriff's department source that the investigators were only "a few phone calls away" from being able to apprehend suspects.

Madera County Acting Dist. Atty. Charles Hoffman, who met Tuesday with Alameda Dist. Atty. Lowell Jensen, said the investigation had reached a turning point.

"The preliminary investigation is concluded at this point, focusing in on certain aspects where if the sheriff's department discussed the facts, it might prejudice a trial situation," Hoffman said.

He declined to elaborate, except to say a turning point was reached between noon and 4:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Volpe said progress is being made in the case, but nothing of the nature that would lead to an imminent arrest.

Meanwhile, officials in the town of Madera, about 20 miles south of Chowchilla, said police are following some summer school buses and reserve officers are riding on others as a precaution taken after the mass kidnaping.

"The primary purpose is to gain the confidence of parents and of children, but the attendance dropped off drastically right after this happened," said Fred Nilsen, business manager of the Madera Unified School District. "I really don't expect anything to happen, but looks get a hold of these kinds of things and think, 'I'll do that, too.'"

Alameda County officers concentrating on the rock quarry here where the children and the bus driver were ensnared for 18 hours after being kidnaped Thursday in the Madera County town of Chowchilla, about 95 miles to the south, attempted to determine if anyone connected with the quarry was involved in the crime.

"The quarry out there is the prime area of our investigation," Alameda County Sheriff's Lt. Gene Soper said in an interview. "That's going to be the area where we zero in for physical evidence and witnesses we can find. We have questioned or will question everyone who has anything to do with the gravel quarry."

The moving van trailer which was transformed into a makeshift underground prison was unearthed Tuesday. The 27 kidnap victims had clawed and pried their way out of the moving van and were unhurt.

Investigators reported the moving van was purchased last Nov. 20 from Palo Alto Transfer and Storage Co.

The Fresno Bee reported Tuesday that the person who bought the van has a close connection to the quarry.

Were it left to me to decide whether we should have government without newspapers or newspapers without government, I should not hesitate to prefer the latter. — Thomas Jefferson.

Burkholz, Stockman, Esch Recommended

On August 3d the voters in Berrien county will be selecting a favorite candidate in three major contests for public office and their neighbors in Van Buren and Cass will be joining on two of those battles.

Because the primary's results could become the final decision at the November general election we recommend the following thoughts to the reader.

Circuit Judge Berrien County

Two months ago the state legislature approved a fourth judge for the Second Judicial Circuit which covers all of Berrien county as the most practical, immediate step to relieve the pressure on the court's growing case load.

Because three candidates have filed for election to the new position it is necessary to hold a primary election as an elimination contest. The two highest vote pullers will fight it out at the November general election.

The candidates are Zoe Shaffer Burkholz, Yvonne Hughes and Ronald J. Taylor.

A native of Benton Harbor, Mrs. Burkholz has practiced law here for 25 years. She was elected to the probate court in 1972 and since 1974 by action of the state supreme court administrator has served in the additional capacity of acting circuit judge.

Miss Hughes, a native of Ithaca, N.Y. and a 1973 U-M law school graduate, practiced in Detroit before coming to Benton Harbor last year as city attorney.

Charles Joseph, who recruited her, fired her while still mayor for issuing an opinion that the city commission members could not raise their pay and that of Joseph after they had taken office.

Since that eviction she has continued in private practice in Benton Harbor.

Taylor, a native of St. Joseph, has been in public life for most of the time following graduation from law school, starting first as Benton township clerk for two terms, followed by two terms as prosecuting attorney, and in 1974 being elected to the fifth district court.

By reason of her longer experience in the law, her first rate performance in the probate court and her extensive civic activities before going on the bench, we believe Mrs. Burkholz would make a fine circuit judge.

As our household's chateau remarked the other day, any woman who can rear a good family and be a successful lawyer and judge must have something going for her.

Congress Fourth District

Since only one candidate, Richard Daugherty, the 1974 nominee, is entered in the Democratic primary for the Fourth Congressional District, the primary fight to determine who will replace Ed Hutchinson at Washington is pretty much within the Republican fold.

The scrap is all the more interesting because the four candidates are within a 15-mile radius from the Twin Cities to represent a district which sprawls from South Haven-Benton Harbor-St. Joseph easterly along the Indiana state line to Adrian.

They are Lee Boothby, a Berrien Springs lawyer; David S. Frazer, presently on lay-off as a salesman for Koehring Corporation's Benton Harbor Engineering division whose business is in a downswing at the moment; David A. Stockman, of St. Joseph, former director of the House Republican Caucus; and Helen Take, of St. Joseph, a substitute teacher in the Benton Harbor school system.

Stockman started to gear up for the campaign late in 1974 on the supposition he would be taking on Hutchinson in a primary.

Boothby, Frazer and Miss Take are, comparatively speaking, 11th hour entrants, having joined the lists only a few months ago.

Stockman's early effort has earned him Hutchinson's undying enmity. Because of Stockman's impressive inroads into many strongholds throughout the district, Hutchinson some months ago announced he would not seek re-election.

The Congressman has endorsed Boothby and his Washington staff is plumping strong for the Berrien Springs lawyer. Fourteen years ago Boothby was one of three opponents whom Hutchinson defeated in the G.O.P. primary.

On the basis of knowing how things can be accomplished at Washington, and having clearcut, sensible answers on how to keep the federal apparatus somewhere within bounds, Stockman stands head and shoulders above his opposition.

The fact that Boothby and Frazer in recent weeks have campaigned on a theme of pasting Stockman first and selling themselves next is some indication the St. Joseph man is the one who can best represent the Fourth District.

United States Senator

Four Democrats and four Republicans are vying to take over when Phil Hart retires from the Senate on December 31st.

Best known and in our opinion, best qualified, on the Democratic ticket is Richard H. Austin, Michigan's Secretary of State.

His opponents are James L. Elmsman, a Birmingham lawyer; Cong. Donald Riegle of Flint; and Cong. James G. O'Hara of Utica.

Riegle was first elected to the House as a Republican in 1966 and then switched allegiance in 1973.

O'Hara has the endorsement from a substantial number of labor chieftains in the state.

Elmsman has run unsuccessfully in past primaries for the Senate and the House.

Austin's handling of the Secretary of State office and, prior to that, the Wayne county auditor's position, could well be one reason he overshadows his opposition.

The Republican candidates are Deane Baker, an Ann Arbor contractor and U-M regent; Thomas E. Brennan, former chief justice of the Michigan supreme court; Marvin L. Esch, Congressman from the Ann Arbor area; and Robert Huber, a Troy businessman and former state senator and Congressman.

Huber is 180 degrees farther to the right than Barry Goldwater ever thought of being. His nomination would concede the election to a skillful campaigner such as Austin.

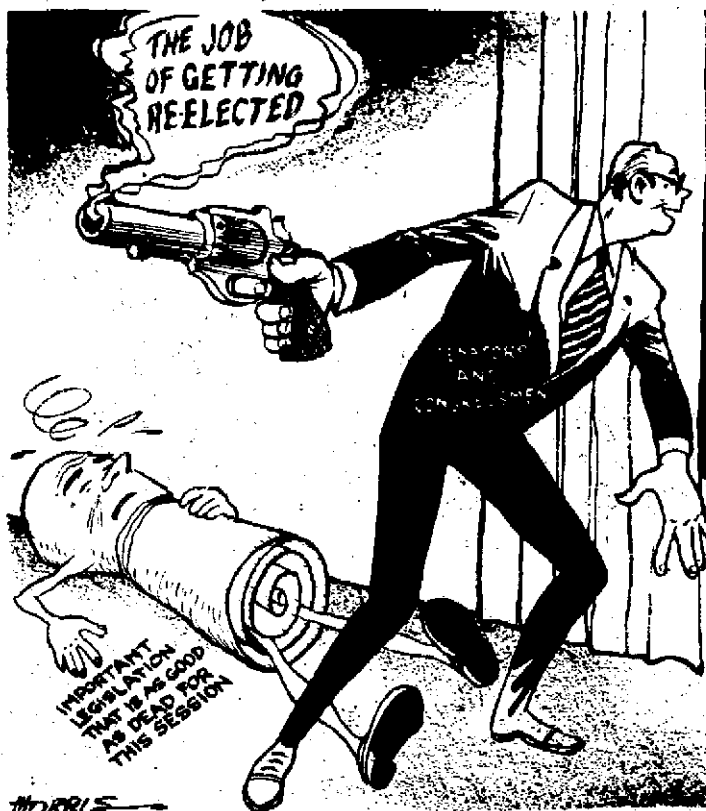

Baker's ability in the business world is good, but in question would be his capacity to handle the rough and tumble following the primary.

Brennan's judgment in serving on the state supreme while operating the Cooley Law School, a private for profit facility at Lansing, is open to doubt. At least his fellow justices declared he would have to make a choice.

Esch gives the most promise of all. He is an articulate middle of the roader and since his first election to Congress in 1966 he has beaten back extremely strong efforts from the Democrats to unseat him.

If nominated, he would be the best bet for the Republicans to claim the seat Hart is vacating.

PRISONERS ARE FORGOTTEN MEN

Editor,

It is very true. Some prison officials have less training than people who work in zoos. Society should realize that the people who do wrong were just like them at one time. We never see it as it really is.

It is not just the state's fault. It is many things. I could not count the suicides, murders, and all since my arrival at Southern Michigan Prison. What I say could never mean much for your very first lesson is that society wants you forgotten. Perhaps it is where forgotten men first began.

This should be the age of reason. If every wrongdoer was an incurable animal, even the world would be chaos. There is lack of help here. Had not Wally (Mr. Knapp) told me the difference in sin, wrong and mistakes, I would not have the nerve to write you. Yes, if you believe there are incurable animals here, I will agree. But, in zoos do they put lions with rabbits? The prison is like a jungle — yes, the strong always wins. Things become a ball of confusion and authorities are content to just have peace.

Have you ever read the book, "I'm Gonna Bury You" by Gene Neill? The author is a defense lawyer, and prosecutor who went to prison and his first cell mate had been a guy picked up with a hand in his pocket (someone else's) and eating a heart still beating. Truth is one thing. Naked truth is another. But his story had a happy ending. They all are not that way. The year 1976 is the dawning of a new age. For God said the "Blind shall see and crooked things become straight." (Isaiah 42 v 16)

MUST TAXPAYERS ENDURE CHISELING?

Editor,

Wishing everyone a prosperous and happy bi-centennial year. I am a little late due to being hospitalized for a month. I also wish to thank Dr.

Fajardo, Dr. Gonzales, Watervliet Community hospital crew; Father Thelen, my family and friends for their prayers.

A spokesman for one of the members of the graft-ridden House Administration Committee who has been most critical of the operations of Wayne Hays was asked why didn't your man, an influential member of the committee, do something about these shady operations? He said, "He couldn't; Hays had everything in his hands." The spokesman asked why didn't your man make an attempt to take things out of Hays hands and expose what was going on? Things were not run that way, Hays controlled committees and subcommittees. Everyone on the House Administration Committee knew how that committee was run and why it was run that way. The problem of course is that too many congressmen profit from the corruption.

It has for so long been open season in Congress for looting the treasury and all this was common knowledge in the House.

House Democratic leader Thomas O'Neill declared people gave us the mandate and we're not about to give it up. That means Democrats do run Congress and committees which dispense favors and allows chiseling. Does that mean we the taxpayers must play right along regardless of what the Democratic Congress is up to?

Now a lobbyist for prostitutes since the Capitol Hill sex scandal makes this the perfect time to push her cause for aid and support from Congress. Coyote wants Congress to enact a model law that would zone an area of a city for prostitution. Mr. O'Neill don't rely on the public to sit back and twiddle their thumbs.

Tom Tiede Eugene McCarthy Keeps Running

NEW YORK — There is a wisdom born of delirium at the Democratic Convention that no one now can stop Jimmy Carter from becoming the next president of the United States. But behind the happy faces confidence is not quite so high. Not only are Gerald Ford and Ronald Reagan of concern, Eugene McCarthy is too.

Eugene McCarthy? Though it would come as a surprise to many in attendance here, he too is running for president. The onetime Democratic senator is campaigning as an "independent" candidate, which in some respects is like being a has-been, only worse. Nevertheless, those who think about him at all anymore are beginning to think about him more seriously. He'll not be the next president, certainly, but he may be a tangential factor in deciding who is.

How? Louis Harris has taken a poll which indicates that 10 per cent of the voters favor McCarthy in a three-way race with Carter and any Republican nominee. That's about eight million voters. What's more, McCarthy's forces believe that Carter has commissioned a poll which indicates the independent has 18 per cent of the electorate's support. That's 15 million votes. Assuming that McCarthy's support would hurt Carter more than Ford, the alternative candidate could turn a close November race into a stunning disaster for the Democrats.

Well, admittedly this is speculative. Particularly since there has for many months now been precious little indication from the population that McCarthy is so popular. Actually, even the candidate will admit only a minority of Americans know who he is and even fewer are aware of his candidacy. In a poll of 30 state officers (not governors) taken at the recent national governor's convention in Pennsylvania, 18 did not know McCarthy was running, three thought he'd died years ago and two didn't recognize the name at all.

This despite the fact that McCarthy has been running for president almost forever. When he retired from the Senate in 1970, he also retired from the Democratic party and formed an alternative called the Committee for a Constitutional Presidency. It's not a party, he says. It's a movement. But not a very fast movement. After 18 months of formal campaigning for citizen support McCarthy is so lonely he has to go to his closet to play with his shoes.

And public apathy has been only part of the frustration of the McCarthy bid. As an independent he is not automatically included on state ballots, as are the representatives of the major parties. So he must qualify for the right in each state, which is usually difficult, always expensive and sometimes impossible. Every state has its own laws governing the placement of independent names on its ballots, and often the laws are the kind that give democracy a bad name.

So it is, a year and a half later. Gene McCarthy has qualified in only six states. The 100,000 signatures he's gathered have cost him $200,000, or $2 a piece. He says confidently he will be on 40 ballots by November, but it is unlikely. To the contrary, his campaign shows no signs of catching fire. The candidate looks tired, his cash register is empty, his staff is uninspired. One McCarthy ally wonders if the campaign can make it through the summer.

And yet, the polls say eight to 15 million people would vote for him. Add his people say that if he won a couple of large states, such as New Jersey and Illinois, he could deadlock the election proceedings and throw it into the House of Representatives.

Delicious isn't it? That the same Gene McCarthy who destroyed Lyndon Johnson and thereby created the Richard Nixon administration is once again of crucial strategic significance to the Grand Old Party.

Will Carter Run Dry White House?

NEW YORK — Jimmy Carter's nomination for president has precipitated the social crisis of the decade.

There is an insidious rumor that he may run the first dry White House since Prohibition ended in 1933, after 13 unhappy, thirsty years. Only coffee, tea or milk — or perhaps some of Amy's lemonade — served at receptions, luncheons and state dinners. It makes one reach for the hip flask just to think of it.

The Carters did not serve liquor during their first four years in the Georgia governor's mansion. Rosalynn Carter is a firm teetotaler. The presidential nominee has been known to drink sparingly, but he gave it up entirely two years ago for the duration of the campaign.

Most of Carter's advisers and associates, however, have no such inhibitions. The liquor flowed freely at the many parties given for and by the Carter crowd during the convention.

And Carter's brother Billy is fond of beer. He teased a reporter during a reception: "I'll tell you who's going to be vice president if you get me a Pabst." But a scoop was lost to the world that evening because no Pabst was to be found.

Tipplers, all is not gloom. This is just a nasty rumor, put out, no doubt, by Gerald Ford. Bring-your-own booze parties would be unthinkable for the White House. Carter has demonstrated a flair for making diverse people like him: surely he knows that a full glass doesn't hurt.

ITEM: Washington Post Editor Ben Bradlee — you know him, he's Jason Roberts — is a big deal in the nation's capital, but he was just another guy at the Democratic convention. Due to a mishap, his paper wound up without a permanent floor pass, an important symbol of the journalistic inner circle.

But the ultimate humiliation was that Bradlee was forced to borrow a pass from the New York Times, his most deadly rival on the East Coast.

ITEM: The recent visit of Britain's Queen Elizabeth II revived a story about a visit to Hyde Park some 37 years ago made by King George VI, her father. First Lady Eleanor Roosevelt decided that the toilet seat in the bathroom adjoining her guest bedroom was not elegant enough for royalty. Being something of a tightwad, Mrs. Roosevelt asked a local plumber if she could rent — not buy — a new toilet seat. The plumber was only too happy to oblige. After the royal visit, he hung the used toilet seat in a place of honor over the fireplace mantel in his recreation room.

ITEM: Queen Elizabeth's visit was notable for several social breakthroughs. Long white gloves, preferably leather, have been standard uncomfortable attire for women at white-tie affairs since the memory of man runneth not. But at the White House dinner for the Queen, most of the women, including First Lady Betty Ford, wore long-sleeved gowns and short gloves or, in some cases, no gloves at all.

And Nancy Kissinger broke all precedent by greeting the Queen upon arrival in a pants suit. A snappy well-tailored orange number, but pants nonetheless. Hooray for Nancy.

Were it left to me to decide whether we should have government without newspapers or newspapers without government, I should not hesitate to prefer the latter. — Thomas Jefferson.

Burkholz, Stockman, Esch Recommended

On August 3d the voters in Berrien county will be selecting a favorite candidate in three major contests for public office and their neighbors in Van Buren and Cass will be joining on two of those battles.

Because the primary's results could become the final decision at the November general election we recommend the following thoughts to the reader.

Circuit Judge Berrien County

Two months ago the state legislature approved a fourth judge for the Second Judicial Circuit which covers all of Berrien county as the most practical, immediate step to relieve the pressure on the court's growing case load.

Because three candidates have filed for election to the new position it is necessary to hold a primary election as an elimination contest. The two highest vote pullers will fight it out at the November general election.

The candidates are Zoe Shaffer Burkholz, Yvonne Hughes and Ronald J. Taylor.

A native of Benton Harbor, Mrs. Burkholz has practiced law here for 25 years. She was elected to the probate court in 1972 and since 1974 by action of the state supreme court administrator has served in the additional capacity of acting circuit judge.

Miss Hughes, a native of Ithaca, N.Y. and a 1973 U-M law school graduate, practiced in Detroit before coming to Benton Harbor last year as city attorney.

Charles Joseph, who recruited her, fired her while still mayor for issuing an opinion that the city commission members could not raise their pay and that of Joseph after they had taken office.

Since that eviction she has continued in private practice in Benton Harbor.

Taylor, a native of St. Joseph, has been in public life for most of the time following graduation from law school, starting first as Benton township clerk for two terms, followed by two terms as prosecuting attorney, and in 1974 being elected to the fifth district court.

By reason of her longer experience in the law, her first rate performance in the probate court and her extensive civic activities before going on the bench, we believe Mrs. Burkholz would make a fine circuit judge.

As our household's chateleine remarked the other day, any woman who can rear a good family and be a successful lawyer and judge must have something going for her.

Congress Fourth District

Since only one candidate, Richard Daugherty, the 1974 nominee, is entered in the Democratic primary for the Fourth Congressional District, the primary fight to determine who will replace Ed Hutchinson at Washington is pretty much within the Republican fold.

The scrap is all the more interesting because the four candidates are within a 15-mile radius from the Twin Cities to represent a district which sprawls from South Haven-Benton Harbor-St. Joseph easterly along the Indiana state line to Adrian.

They are Lee Boothby, a Berrien Springs lawyer; David S. Frazer, presently on lay-off as a salesman for Koehring Corporation's Benton Harbor Engineering division whose business is in a downswing at the moment; David A. Stockman, of St. Joseph, former director of the House Republican Caucus; and Helen Take, of St. Joseph, a substitute teacher in the Benton Harbor school system.

Stockman started to gear up for the campaign late in 1974 on the supposition he would be taking on Hutchinson in a primary.

Boothby, Frazer and Miss Take are, comparatively speaking, 11th hour entrants, having joined the lists only a few months ago.

Stockman's early effort has earned him Hutchinson's undying enmity. Because of Stockman's impressive inroads into many strongholds throughout the district, Hutchinson some months ago announced he would not seek re-election.

The Congressman has endorsed Boothby and his Washington staff is plumping strong for the Berrien Springs lawyer. Fourteen years ago Boothby was one of three opponents whom Hutchinson defeated in the G.O.P. primary.

On the basis of knowing how things can be accomplished at Washington, and having clearcut, sensible answers on how to keep the federal apparatus somewhere within bounds, Stockman stands head and shoulders above his opposition.

The fact that Boothby and Frazer in recent weeks have campaigned on a theme of pasting Stockman first and selling themselves next is some indication the St. Joseph man is the one who can best represent the Fourth District.

United States Senator

Four Democrats and four Republicans are vying to take over when Phil Hart retires from the Senate on December 31st.

Best known and in our opinion, best qualified, on the Democratic ticket is Richard H. Austin, Michigan's Secretary of State.

His opponents are James L. Elsmar, a Birmingham lawyer; Cong. Donald Riegle of Flint; and Cong. James G. O'Hara of Utica.

Riegle was first elected to the House as a Republican in 1966 and then switched allegiance in 1973.

O'Hara has the endorsement from a substantial number of labor chieftains in the state.

Elsmar has run unsuccessfully in past primaries for the Senate and the House.

Austin's handling of the Secretary of State office and, prior to that, the Wayne county auditor's position, could well be one reason he overshadows his opposition.

The Republican candidates are Deane Baker, an Ann Arbor contractor and U-M regent; Thomas E. Brennan, former chief justice of the Michigan supreme court; Marvin L. Esch, Congressman from the Ann Arbor area; and Robert Huber, a Troy businessman and former state senator and Congressman.

Huber is 180 degrees farther to the right than Barry Goldwater ever thought of being. His nomination would concede the election to a skillful campaigner such as Austin.

Baker's ability in the business world is good, but in question would be his capacity to handle the rough and tumble following the primary.

Brennan's judgment in serving on the state supreme while operating the Cooley Law School, a private for profit facility at Lansing, is open to doubt. At least his fellow justices declared he would have to make a choice.

Esch gives the most promise of all.

He is an articulate middle of the roader and since his first election to Congress in 1966 he has beaten back extremely strong efforts from the Democrats to unseat him.

If nominated, he would be the best bet for the Republicans to claim the seat Hart is vacating.

PRISONERS ARE FORGOTTEN MEN

Editor,

It is very true. Some prison officials have less training than people who work in zoos. Society should realize that the people who do wrong were just like them at one time. We never see it as it really is.

It is not just the state's fault. It is many things. I could not count the suicides, murders, and all since my arrival at Southern Michigan Prison. What I say could never mean much for your very first lesson is that society wants you forgotten. Perhaps it is where forgotten man first began.

This should be the age of reason. If every wrongdoer was an incurable animal, even the world would be chaos. There is lack of help here. Had not Wally (Mr. Knapp) told me the difference in sin, wrong and mistakes, I would not have the nerve to write you. Yes, if you believe there are incurable animals here, I will agree. But, in zoos do they put lions with rabbits? The prison is like a jungle — yes, the strong always wins. Things become a ball of confusion and authorities are content to just have peace.

Have you ever read the book, "I'm Gonna Bury You" by Gene Neill? The author is a defense lawyer and prosecutor who went to prison and his first cell mate had been a guy picked up with a hand in his pocket (someone else's) and eating a heart still beating.

Truth is one thing. Naked truth is another. But his story had a happy ending. They all are not that way. The year 1976 is the dawning of a new age, for God said the "Blind shall see and crooked things become straight." (Isaiah 42 v 16).

MUST TAXPAYERS ENDURE CHISELING?

Editor,

Wishing everyone a prosperous and happy bi-centennial year. I am a little late due to being hospitalized for a month. I also wish to thank Dr.

Fajardo, Dr. Gonzales, Waterniet Community hospital crew, Father Thelen, my family and friends for their prayers.

A spokesman for one of the members of the graft-ridden House Administration Committee who has been most critical of the operations of Wayne Hays was asked why didn't your man, an influential member of the committee, do something about these shady operations? He said, "He couldn't; Hays had everything in his hands." The spokesman asked why didn't your man make an attempt to take things out of Hays hands and expose what was going on? Things were not run that way. Hays controlled committees and subcommittees. Everyone on the House Administration Committee knew how that committee was run and why it was run that way. The problem of course is that too many congressmen profit from the corruption.

It has for so long been open season in Congress for looting the treasury and all this was common knowledge in the House.

House Democratic leader Thomas O'Neill declared people gave us the mandate and we're not about to give it up. That means Democrats do run Congress and committees which dispense favors and allows chiseling. Does that mean we the taxpayers must play right along regardless of what the Democratic Congress is up to?

Now a lobbyist for prostitutes since the Capitol Hill sex scandal makes this the perfect time to push her cause for aid and support from Congress. Coyote wants Congress to enact a model law that would zone an area of a city for prostitution. Mr. O'Neill don't rely on the public to sit back and twiddle their thumbs.

Whitcomb Tower May Go On Tax Rolls

Unless the Michigan supreme court voluntarily changes its mind or the U.S. supreme court should reverse or modify a recent decision by the Lansing tribunal, chances are fairly good that the St. Joseph city hall may put Whitcomb Towers on the tax rolls next year.

The ruling holds the city of Ann Arbor may assess local taxes against Hillside Terrace owned by the Michigan Baptist Homes & Development corporation.

The church-related company also owns and operates Whitcomb Tower, the Olds Manor in Grand Rapids and Whittier Towers in Detroit.

All four are former hotels or apartment buildings remodeled into homes for the aging.

The state supreme court opinion sustains verdicts from the Michigan state tax commission and the lower courts holding that the entrance fees and service charges to the tenants take the instalations out of the tax exempt status conferred by Michigan law on religious, charitable, educational and scientific properties.

Rather, said the court majority, the financial arrangement more closely approximates a residential arrangement set up in the hope of earning a profit to the owner.

Although the opinion is based entirely on the Ann Arbor factual background, the situation in St. Joseph, Grand Rapids and Detroit is completely parallel with the Hillside Terrace plan.

Gerald Heppner and Richard Kiesel, city manager and city assessor respectively for St. Joseph, indicated they would place Whitcomb Tower on the local tax rolls, effective in 1977, unless the Ann Arbor case stays in further litigation.

Kiesel estimated the Whitcomb property, on the basis of current indicated assessed valuation, would pay about $32,000 annually in city, school and county taxes.

In a backhanded manner, Baptist Homes have been paying a city tax without it being called a tax since 1974.

By agreement between city hall and Baptist Homes the latter have paid what is called a service fee for police and fire protection, and other municipal services. Additionally, Baptist Homes pays the city water and sewage established rates.

The 1974 service charge ran under $5,000.

Last year it went to $6,357.56.

Kiesel has a bill of $8,826.48 ready to be mailed for the 1976 fee. The charge has been calculated on Whitcomb Towers occupancy rate which in 1974 was 37 out of 145 available units being rented. Last year it moved up to 43 units. Currently it is 52.

Baptist Homes officials are expected to follow one of two steps: Either ask the Michigan court to reconsider its position, or failing in that, to appeal to the Washington tribunal.

The appeal, if taken, would probably be on the ground that the state court is discriminating, in violation of the 14th amendment and a comparable provision in the Michigan constitution, against Baptist Homes.

One justice, writing a dissenting opinion, voted to uphold the tax exemption because it is extended to the Anna Botsford Bach Home, a facility run by the Old Ladies Home Association of Ann Arbor.

She (Justice Mary Coleman) said the fact of the Bach Home charging modest fees to somewhat impecunious residents should not put Hillside Terrace in the tax paying bracket simply because of the difference in charges and the tenants' financial background.

The state supreme court's balloting was somewhat unusual.

Three justices voted to deny the tax exemption; one voted to grant it, and the other three members did not participate.

$220,000 Estate Filed For Probate

Mrs. Catlow, 73, of 505 West Third street, was a retired schoolteacher. Her 1973 will indicates real estate holdings valued at $20,000 and personal property estimated at $200,000.

The will bequeaths her residence to a brother, Philip R. Hanlin, of Buchanan, and states the remainder of the estate is to be divided with Hanlin and his wife, Doris, receiving 75 per cent of the estate and 12½ per cent each to another brother, Harold Hanlin, of Niles, and Nadene Hanlin, the widow of Mrs. Catlow's deceased nephew, Patrick Hanlin.

Van Hits Bike; Girl Injured

A Benton Harbor girl sustained apparently minor injuries Tuesday when she was struck by a van while riding her bicycle on Dewey avenue north of Townline road, Benton township, Berrien sheriff's deputies said.

Released after treatment at Mercy hospital, Benton Harbor, was Arlene Woods, 13, of 620 Green avenue. Driver of the van was identified as Daniel James Dwan, 23, of 656 Pipestone street, Benton Harbor. Deputies said no tickets were issued in the 2:08 p.m. collision.

New FTC Nominee Is Griffin Aide

By MARK RODIN
Staff Writer

Former Berrien Springs resident David A. Clanton said he wasn't surprised when he learned President Gerald R. Ford nominated him to serve on the Federal Trade Commission (FTC).

"I understood it (the appointment) to be under consideration and I was aware of that fact," said Clanton.

Clanton was called by The Herald-Palladium in Washington after the nomination was reported Tuesday by the office of Sen. Robert Griffin (R-Mich.) Clanton currently is legislative assistant to Griffin in Griffin's capacity as Senate minority leader.

Ford chose Clanton to serve out the unexpired term of Lewis A. Engman, of Grand Rapids, who resigned last December. He also nominated Clanton for a new seven-year term beginning Sept. 26.

Clanton's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Clanton, live at 2405 Highview drive, Berrien Springs. The father is retired from the Casting Service Corp., LaPorte, Ind.

Clanton moved to Berrien Springs with his family from Santa Barbara, Calif., when he was six years of age. He graduated from the Andrews secondary academy in 1962, and received a bachelor's degree from Andrews university. He is single and now resides in Arlington, Va.

After graduating from Wayne State university with a law degree in 1969, Clanton went to Washington.

Clanton contacted Griffin. "My timing was right," Clanton said. "Someone was leaving the staff and he thought my qualifications were good."

Clanton was Griffin's legislative assistant two years before joining the Commerce committee staff.

Clanton, 32, served as minority staff counsel to the U.S. Senate Commerce committee from April, 1971 until January 1975.

Clanton said that job "was certainly a major factor" which led to his nomination.

Clanton explained the FTC's chief responsibility is regulation of business in the public's best interest.

Its staff enforces federal anti-trust laws and also acts as a consumer protection agency, administering "a wide range of laws aimed at preventing unfair and deceptive business practices."

Griffin's office said confirmation may be made in about two weeks.

Dow Chemical Sales Are Up; Earnings Dip

Benton Drops Plan To Buy Park Site

Benton township residents attending a special meeting last night opposed the establishment of a neighborhood park at the southwest corner of Territorial and Blue Creek roads, and the board of trustees ended the matter by voting unanimously not to purchase the site.

The show of hands vote among citizens was 16 to 0. Township Clerk Cathryn Sirik said the board also received petitions signed by 100 residents of the Territorial-Blue Creek area who opposed the park.

The special meeting was called earlier this month when Township Atty. Thomas N. Robinson Jr., said residents must be able to vote on all proposed property purchases by the township. Votes may be at the annual meeting or a special meeting.

Citizens who spoke in opposition to the park said the money could be better used elsewhere, including police protection. They said while the park would be for neighborhood use, it might draw crowds from throughout the township. Fears that crowds might bring narcotics also were voiced.

The township planned only a baseball diamond and picnic tables, it was reported.

The site is nine acres of vacant land, just east of Johnson school. The proposed price was $12,200, including $11,000 for the acquisition, plus real estate agent's commission and closing costs. Owners were identified as Ruth Davis and Fred and Virginia Woodward.

The board also: —Rejected a special use permit that would allow Organic Growers of Southwestern Michigan to hold an open air market in the parking lot of St. Mark's Lutheran church, of 717 Napier avenue. The area is zoned residential and the request had not gone through the township planning commission. Planning Commission Chairman James Benson said the matter was sent directly to the board of trustees, because two public hearings required by planners would use up most of the remaining growing season.

—Approved an amendment to the Community Development rehabilitation manual that enables homes to be rehabilitated at a cost up to 75 per cent of their market value.

—Approved requests by the Seventh-day Adventist church for its annual in-gathering campaign and crusade solicitation.

—Rejected a suggestion by Trustee Ken Malkin that a committee be formed to consider a marketing survey on the planned Pipestone Mall shopping center. Malkin said such a survey might determine the center's effect on other business areas. Trustees felt the developer of the mall had spent a great deal of money for land and the time for a market survey was past. Malkin after the meeting said he was neither supporting or opposing the mall, but felt a marketing survey would be beneficial.

Contest winners in the Berrien county Easter Seal Society's fund-raising bikathon were announced recently by John Gessert, bikathon chairman.

Receiving 10-speed bicycles for raising the most money in the event for the Easter Seal Society were Pat Nash, of Berrien Springs; Rae Gertman, Stevensville; Karen Murray, New Buffalo, and Bob Oberdorfer, New Buffalo.

Gessert said more than $5,000 was raised in the June 5 bikathon which he said will be used to expand services to handicapped children and adults in Berrien county.

One Charge Against Agent Dismissed

One of four felony accusations against a St. Joseph insurance agent was dismissed for lack of evidence in Berrien District court yesterday.

A charge of obtaining $500 under false pretenses from a Bridgman tavern owner was dismissed against Joseph K. Weinmann, 30, of Stevensville, whose business office was located on Broad street in St. Joseph.

The prosecution alleged that on Jan. 3 Weinmann got $500 from Gene Loggish for insurance on the tavern and that Weinmann had no intention of delivering a policy. District Judge Hugh Black, who dismissed the case, explained.

Testimony at the hearing indicated that no policy was obtained, but the prosecution failed to prove that Weinmann had no intention of securing a policy, Black said.

Weinmann has been bound over to Circuit court on two other counts of converting policy payments to his own use (largely of over $100 by conversion) and awaits preliminary examination on another count of the same violation. He continues free on personal recognizance bonds.

SJ Township Planners OK Liquor For Project

By MARK RODIN
Staff Writer

St. Joseph township planning commissioners last night voted 7 to 0 to recommend a special use permit for the sale of liquor in a proposed $1 million restaurant-office building.

The restaurant-office building is scheduled to be constructed on Hilltop road next to Bull Rubber and Plastics and opposite The Heath Co. The developer is Hilltop Development Co. Nathan Downey, a Benton Harbor realtor, heads the corporation.

The commission also said it would decide within 30 days on two matters that were also subjects of public hearings last night—a rezoning change for a proposed 20 unit apartment building and the incorporation of several pieces of property into land owned by the Berrien Hills Country Club.

The apartment and country club proposals ran into opposition from neighbors.

Final action on the restaurant-office building permit is up to the township board of trustees. A liquor license from the Michigan Liquor Control commission also is required.

Ernest Knauf, commission chairman, said the planners feel the site would be "a suitable locale" for such a building. No citizens voiced opinions on the matter during the public hearing.

Downey owns 50 per cent of the Hilltop-Development Co. stock. His partners, each owning 12½ per cent of the stock are: Craig Ruechau, 1670 Linco road, Stevensville, a St. Joseph attorney; James Dine, 4621 Red Arrow highway, Stevensville, a painting contractor; Dale Dansfield, East Napier avenue, Benton Harbor, also a painting contractor; and Sebastian Forestieri, 717 West Napier avenue, Benton Harbor, a wholesale importer of tile and marble.

The principals in the corporation were contained in a letter to the planning commission.

Robert H. DeVries, a planning commission member, said there is a liquor license available in the township, based upon its population.

"I don't feel this operation will be a $10,000 bar," DeVries added. "If it were a $10,000 bar,

I can assure you where my vote would be."

Plans call for 14,200 square feet of rental office space and 8,200 square feet for the restaurant. The restaurant would seat 275 people.

Downey said construction is scheduled to begin in August if township approval is received.

A letter opposing the proposed apartment building written by neighboring residents was presented to the commission.

Robert Brintnall, 1066 Brunni avenue, a spokesman for the residents, said 32 of 34 neighboring property owners signed the letter.

Brintnall said the residents felt the project "was not desirable from a density standpoint," and do not want "creeping commercialism" from the city of St. Joseph in their neighborhood.

Ralph Post, a St. Joseph contractor, is the developer of the apartment project to be located at Niles avenue and Lydia drive.

Post needs a zoning change from R-4 to R-5 with a special use permit allowing the construction of multiple housing. The ground is currently zoned for two-family homes.

When asked by Brintnall why he didn't construct two-family homes on the site, Post replied the only profitable way to do what was suggested would be to build low cost housing subsidized and financed by the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Post said the two-story apartments, each containing one bedroom, would be rented to retired persons, young married couples and single persons who are responsible and take care of property. He added these tenants would be more likely to be quiet and not add heavily to traffic congestion.

A dozen Fairplain residents opposed incorporation of several lots into Berrien Hills Country club which has owned the lots for some time. The club wants to make the lots part of the legal description of the club and plans to build tennis courts on the property, it was reported at the meeting.

The residents on Golfview road, Elm terrace and West Napier said they believed tennis courts on the lots could create traffic hazards and noise.

Whitcomb Tower May Go On Tax Rolls

Unless the Michigan supreme court voluntarily changes its mind or the U.S. supreme court should reverse or modify a recent decision by the Lansing tribunal, chances are fairly good that the St. Joseph city hall may put Whitcomb Towers on the tax rolls next year.

The ruling holds the city of Ann Arbor may assess local taxes against Hillside Terrace owned by the Michigan Baptist Homes & Development corporation.

The church-related company also owns and operates Whitcomb Tower, the Olds Manor in Grand Rapids and Whittier Towers in Detroit.

All four are former hotels or apartment buildings remodelled into homes for the aging.

The state supreme court opinion sustains verdicts from the Michigan state tax commission and the lower courts holding that the entrance fees and service charges to the tenants take the in-tallations out of the tax exempt status conferred by Michigan law on religious, charitable, educational and scientific properties.

Rather, said the court majority, the financial arrangement more closely approximates a residential arrangement set up in the hope of earning a profit to the owner.

Although the opinion is based entirely on the Ann Arbor factual background, the situation in St. Joseph, Grand Rapids and Detroit is completely parallel with the Hillside Terrace plan.

Gerald Heppner and Richard Kiesel, city manager and city assessor respectively for St. Joseph, indicated they would place Whitcomb Tower on the local tax rolls, effective in 1977, unless the Ann Arbor case stays in further litigation.

Kiesel estimated the Whitcomb property, on the basis of current indicated assessed valuation, would pay about $32,000 annually in city, school and county taxes.

In a backhanded manner, Baptist Homes have been paying a city tax without it being called a tax since 1974.

By agreement between city hall and Baptist Homes the latter have paid what is called a service fee for police and fire protection, and other municipal services. Additionally, Baptist Homes pays the city water and sewage established rates.

The 1974 service charge ran under $5,000.

Last year it went to $6,357.98.

Kiesel has a bill of $8,826.48 ready to be mailed for the 1976 fee.

The charge has been calculated on Whitcomb Towers occupancy rate which in 1974 was 37 out of 145 available units being rented. Last year it moved up to 43 units. Currently it is 52.

Baptist Homes officials are expected to follow one of two steps: Either ask the Michigan court to reconsider its position, or failing in that, to appeal to the Washington tribunal.

The appeal, if taken, would probably be on the ground that the state court is discriminating, in violation of the 14th amendment and a comparable provision in the Michigan constitution, against Baptist Homes.

One justice, writing a dissenting opinion, voted to uphold the tax exemption because it is extended to the Anna Botsford Bach Home, a facility run by the Old Ladies Home Association of Ann Arbor.

She (Justice Mary Coleman) said the fact of the Bach Home charging modest fees to somewhat impecunious residents should not put Hillside Terrace in the tax paying bracket simply because of the difference in charges and the tenants' financial background.

The state supreme court's balloting was somewhat unusual.

Three justices voted to deny the tax exemption; one voted to grant it; and the other three members did not participate.

While this 3-1-3 result exudes an equivocal appearance, most lawyers feel it can be deemed a binding precedent because a majority of the court's members totalized the opinion.

A petition has been filed in Berrien Probate court seeking to admit to probate the estimated $220,000 estate of Helen Catlow, of Buchanan, who died July 4.

Mrs. Catlow, 73, of 505 West Third street, was a retired schoolteacher. Her 1975 will indicates real estate holdings valued at $20,000 and personal property estimated at $200,000.

The will bequeaths her residence to a brother, Philip R. Hanlin, of Buchanan, and states the remainder of the estate is to be divided with Hanlin and his wife, Doris, receiving 75 per cent of the estate and 12½ per cent each to another brother, Harold Hanlin, of Niles, and Nadene Hanlin, the widow of Mrs. Catlow's deceased nephew, Patrick Hanlin.

Blueberries Available At 'Pick-Your-Own' Farms

Blueberry pancakes or blueberry pie, visitors to Michigan's "pick-your-own" blueberry farms should find plenty of the fruit to satisfy their wildest cravings, according to the Automobile Club of Michigan.

At least one of the "you-pick" blueberry farms — Dowd orchards near Hartford — is a centennial farm established in 1844.

Some farms give tours of their mechanical harvesting and automated packing systems. Others have farm animals for the youngsters.

Ken-El-Lou farm near Grand Junction has a fish pond and advertises: "Feel free to bring your fishing pole along or even stay overnight in our lovely woods — all free. We have 280 acres of land and we will share its country beauty with you. You only pay for the berries."

Michigan's blueberry season runs from the second week of July to mid-September. The fruit is sold by the pound with the price set by prevailing market conditions. Last year, the average price for "you-pick" blueberries was 35 cents a pound.

Most farms provide pails but pickers are expected to bring their own container to carry the fruit home. Some advertise stools available for the bottom of the bush.

The "you-pick" blueberry farms listed by the Auto club range in size from one to 185 acres. They are among 380 blueberry farms in the state whose total 1975 production of 32.1 million pounds ranked Michigan first in the nation.

Nearly two-thirds of the state's 1975 blueberry crop — 20.8 million pounds — was sold for processing. The remaining 11.3 million pounds were sold for fresh market, including those blueberries from pick-your-own operations and roadside stands.

Many of the "you-pick" operations offer visitors more than just berries. Some have door prizes, antique shops, other fresh produce, jams and jellies. At many, there are picnic tables, pop machines, snack bars, rest rooms and space for trailer parking.

South Haven is billed as Blueberry Capital of the World and every year during the first week of July, there are festivities in honor of the luscious berries. This year's National Blueberry Festival had a Red-White and Blueberry Bicentennial theme.

Recipes for pies, pancakes and any number of good-tasting treats are included in a booklet published by the Michigan Blueberry Growers Association of Grand Junction. The booklet lists members with pick-your-own operations and gives 24 blueberry recipes, including one for Blueberry Grunt.

BLUEBERRY GRUNT
Two cans (15-ounce) blueberries, packed in water
One-half cup sugar
One and one-half cups flour
Two teaspoons baking powder
Two teaspoons grated orange rind, nutmeg and salt.

Stir in milk until dry particles are just moistened.
Drop dough by spoonfuls (eight dumplings) on top of simmering blueberries. Cover skillet and cook for 10 to 15 minutes or until dough is puffed. Serve dumplings with sauce in skillet. Serve with thick cream if desired. Makes eight servings.

Givenchy Says Women Should Find Own Style

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP News Features Writer

Personalities and individuality go hand in hand "but not individually just to be different," observed French couturier Hubert de Givenchy of Paris.

The handsome designer, 49, doesn't believe "in following fashion blindly," since this may be a deterrent to stressing your own personality, which should "develop little by little as you try to know yourself."

In fact, he advises his customers to see other fashion collections as well as his and to wear "only what is meant for them" no matter who designs it.

ebullient.

The show had been a spectacular event acclaimed for its presentation as well as its fashion. A young male dancer had twirled the models into fashion history in line with Givenchy's idea of associating fashion with music, love and dance, "something to remember."

Fashion is a prime tool in expressing individuality, he explained in recalling his first meeting with Audrey Hepburn, for whom he helped put together a look.

"I really had never heard of her — I knew Katharine Hepburn — but I decided to see her anyway. I can still see it — she was dressed maybe for the movies but not for Paris — she was wearing a big straw gondolier's hat with a red ribbon, a T-shirt and strange blue and white trousers. "I created L'Interdit for Audrey Hepburn with her help when she was being fitted one day. It has become part of her look." The musky scent is softened by warm rose and jasmine, which are considered good scents for brunettes.

In adopting your own style, it should extend to the home, to the individuality given to the arrangement of flowers, baskets or whatever, he says.

"Every lady should have her own style. It may be difficult to find, but some do it extremely well. I have gotten inspiration from one customer — the way she ties her scarf or wears a little piece of jewelry or cuts her

He likes to see people in crazy things — military clothes, jeans, khaki, poplin, "funky and marvelous." — but older women look ridiculous in such young clothes, he adds. They must adapt such styles. They don't want to look like old ladies, but they shouldn't look like 18-year-old girls.

His faithful customers include many well known women who want clothes that are right for the proportions of the body.

"I am like that myself. Sometimes I will order a suit in London because I find someone who knows my shoulders, my hips. I buy classical things because I am very tall (six feet six). When you are a couturier you can't wear funky clothes — you wouldn't feel comfortable."

He opened his couture house when he was 25 after working with other designers for eight years. He looks for inspiration everywhere, most recently at an exhibition of clothes at the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

Blueberries Available At 'Pick-Your-Own' Farms

Blueberry pancakes or blueberry pie, visitors to Michigan's "pick-your-own" blueberry farms should find plenty of the fruit to satisfy their wildest cravings, according to the Automobile Club of Michigan.

At least one of the "you-pick" blueberry farms — Dowd orchards near Hartford — is a centennial farm established in 1841.

Some farms give tours of their mechanical harvesting and automated packing systems. Others have farm animals for the youngsters.

Ken-El-Lou farm near Grand Junction has a fish pond and advertises: "Feel free to bring your fishing pole along or even stay overnight in our lovely woods — all free. We have 280 acres of land and we will share its country beauty with you. You only pay for the berries."

Michigan's blueberry season runs from the second week of July to mid-September. The fruit is sold by the pound with the price set by prevailing market conditions. Last year, the average price for "you-pick" blueberries was 35 cents a pound.

Most farms provide pails but pickers are expected to bring their own container to carry the fruit home. Some advertise stools available for the bottom of the bush.

The "you-pick" blueberry farms listed by the Auto club range in size from one to 185 acres. They are among 580 blueberry farms in the state whose total 1975 production of 32.1 million pounds ranked Michigan first in the nation.

Nearly two-thirds of the state's 1975 blueberry crop — 20.8 million pounds — was sold for processing. The remaining 11.3 million pounds were sold for fresh market, including those blueberries from pick-your-own operations and roadside stands.

Many of the "you-pick" operations offer visitors more than just berries. Some have door prizes, antique shops, other fresh produce, jams and jellies. At many are picnic tables, pop machines, snack bars, rest rooms and space for trailer parking.

South Haven is billed as Blueberry Capital of the World and every year during the first week of July, there are festivities in honor of the luscious berries.

This year's National Blueberry Festival had a Red-White and Blueberry Bicentennial theme.

Recipes for pies, pancakes and any number of good-tasting treats are included in a booklet published by the Michigan Blueberry Growers Association of Grand Junction. The booklet lists members with pick-your-own operations and gives 24 blueberry recipes, including one for Blueberry Grunt.

BLUEBERRY GRUNT
Two cans (fifteen-ounce) blueberries, packed in water
One-half cup sugar
One and one-half cups flour
Two teaspoons baking powder
Two teaspoons grated orange rind
One-fourth teaspoon ground nutmeg
Three-fourths cup milk

Pour blueberries and their juice into skillet. Stir in sugar. Cook blueberries until juice starts to bubble. Lower heat. Mix flour, baking powder, orange rind, nutmeg and salt. Stir in milk until dry particles are just moistened.

Drop dough by spoonfuls (eight dumplings) on top of simmering blueberries. Cover skillet and cook for 10 to 15 minutes or until dough is puffed. Serve dumplings with sauce in skillet. Serve with thick cream if desired. Makes eight servings.

Here's Where In Southwestern Michigan

The Automobile Club of Michigan has compiled a list of "pick-your-own" blueberry farms in Michigan where blueberry lovers may "grab a pail and go picking."

Codes for the following list of southwestern Michigan "you-pick" farms are: A, picking pails provided; B, beverages for sale; C, picnic tables; D, snack bar; E, other you-pick crops; F, other produce sold; G, tours; H, farm animals; and I, rest rooms.

Givenchy Says Women Should Find Own Style

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Personalities and individuality go hand in hand "but not individuality just to be different," observed French couturier Hubert de Givenchy of Paris.

The handsome designer, 49, doesn't believe "in following fashion blindly," since this may be a deterrent to stressing your own personality, which should "develop little by little as you try to know yourself."

In fact, he advises his customers to see other fashion collections as well as his and to wear "only what is meant for them" no matter who designs it.

Awaiting the arrival of a well known client who was to visit his suite at the Waldorf Astoria to see his couture collection of printed chiffons and sports clothes that had been shown the evening before, he was ebullient.

The show had been a spectacular event acclaimed for its presentation as well as its fashion. A young male dancer had twirled the models into fashion history in line with Givenchy's idea of associating fashion with music, love and dance, "something to remember."

Fashion is a prime tool in expressing individuality, he explained in recalling his first meeting with Audrey Hepburn, for whom he helped put together a look.

"I really had never heard of her — I knew Katharine Hepburn — but I decided to see her anyway. I can still see it — she was dressed maybe for the movies but not for Paris — she was wearing a big straw gondolier's hat with a red ribbon, a T-shirt and strange blue and white trousers. But she was lovely and wanted me to do the clothes for her next movie and I began to work with her and little by little she developed her personality."

She had no style, but she wanted clothes that would work for her. It is always the first step, he says. He began by designing the suit and dress she wanted and it has gone on from there, but he doesn't dress her "for every hour of the day." He is content that "she has a style that comes from awareness."

And he believes in the power of perfume. No matter how long it takes to find the right scent, stick with it, he advises.

"I created L'Interdit for Audrey Hepburn with her help when she was being fitted one day. It has become part of her look." The musky scent is softened by warm rose and jasmine, which are considered good scents for brunettes.

In adopting your own style, it should extend to the home, to the individuality given to the arrangement of flowers, baskets or whatever, he says.

"Every lady should have her own style. It may be difficult to find, but some do it extremely well. I have gotten inspiration from one customer — the way she ties her scarf or wears a little piece of jewelry or cuts her hair."

He likes to see people in crazy things — "military clothes, jeans, khaki, poplin, 'funky and marvelous,'" — but older women look ridiculous in such young clothes, he adds. They must adapt such styles. They don't want to look like old ladies, but they shouldn't look like 18-year-old girls.

His faithful customers include many well known women who want clothes that are right for the proportions of the body.

"I am like that myself. Sometimes I will order a suit in London because I find someone who knows my shoulders, my hips. I buy classical things because I am very tall (six feet six). When you are a couturier you can't wear funky clothes — you wouldn't feel comfortable."

Blueberries Are Part Of America's Heritage

Favorite Fruit For Indians And Colonists

Blueberries are the all-American fruit.

The Indians used them in dozens of ways before the first settlers arrived and introduced them to the colonists. Lewis and Clark came across them while discovering the Northwest Passage, and by the time Bunker Hill was finding a place in history the women in New England were making memorable blueberry pies.

It's no wonder that blueberries are getting a great share of attention during this Bicentennial year. There are flag cakes with blueberry fields backing up white stars. Blueberry pie recipes made famous by colonial taverns are being prepared again in modern restaurants.

Homemakers are bringing out old-time ideas for making blueberry flummery, buckle and grunt.

And now here's Blueberry Liberty Bell Pie.

BLUEBERRY LIBERTY BELL PIE

Two envelopes unflavored gelatin
One-third cup sugar
Two cans (twenty-ounce each) crushed pineapple
Two apples, peeled, cored and chopped

One cup (one-half pint) heavy cream, whipped
One baked ten-inch pie shell
One envelope unflavored gelatin

One cup water
One-half cup grenadine syrup
One tablespoon lemon juice
Two cups fresh blueberries, rinsed and drained

In a saucepan, mix gelatin and sugar. Stir in half of the crushed pineapple. Stir over low heat until gelatin is dissolved. Stir in remaining pineapple and apples. Chill until mixture is thickened. Fold in whipped cream and pour mixture into pie shell. Chill until firm.

In a saucepan combine gelatin and water. Stir in grenadine and lemon juice. Stir in blueberries. Pour mixture into a lightly oiled nine-inch layer cake pan. Chill until firm. Unmold gelatin onto wax paper.

With a sharp knife trim gelatin until a bell shape is cut from circle. Place bell, smooth side down, on top of pie. Place a blueberry at top and several at bottom bell to make "knocker." Garnish sides of bell with rosettes of sweetened whipped cream or topping. If desired, make a "crack" in Liberty Bell with whipped cream. Chill until ready to serve.

The collective appetite for blueberries is never satisfied. Somebody is always coming up with a new way to use this all-American berry.

So why didn't anybody think of this one before? Blueberries as part of the famous frozen whipped cream dessert known here and abroad as "tortoni." Blueberries are a natural with cream, so of course they are the perfect addition to a tortoni.

Because tortoni is a real dessert-dessert, rich and splendid, it comes in small servings. Instead of freezing it in the usual fluted paper baking cups, the Blueberry Tortoni here is presented in demitasse cups. This unique idea adds a pretty serving touch to an already elegant dessert.

DEMITASSE BLUEBERRY TORTONI

One cup (one-half pint) heavy cream
One-fourth cup confectioners' sugar
One teaspoon vanilla
One teaspoon rum flavoring
One cup fresh blueberries, rinsed and drained
One-third cup crisp crumbled macaroons

In a bowl combine cream, sugar, vanilla and rum flavoring. Whip until stiff. Fold in blueberries and one-fourth cup of the crumbs. Pile mixture into demitasse cups. Sprinkle with remaining crumbs and decorate with additional blueberries. Freeze until hard, then wrap and store until needed. Serve frozen in demitasse cups set on saucers. Makes six servings.

Some people find the blue of the summer sky inspiring. Others are moved by the blue waters of a lake or sea. A "bachelor" became a "bachelor's button" because its blue beauty appealed to women's imagination.

Other people get inspiration from another kind of blue. One look at the bony blueberries of our land impels them to superb creative effort. One of America's greatest poets immortalized the blueberry when Robert Frost wrote "Blueberries." Songs have been written about blueberries and the hills they grow on. And mothers and grandmothers and uncles and cousins have created things to eat from blueberries that are equally works of art.

Blueberries, of course, are indigenous to this continent. They are, and always will be, part of the American heritage.

Blueberries appeal to all of the senses. They look beautiful. They taste good. They feel nice as they are rolled around on the tongue. The sense of smell is awakened whenever blueberry pies are baking.

The fifth sense comes into play when people exclaim about the general goodness of blueberries. Hear the call for another piece of pie, or a request for a favorite blueberry dessert. Listen to the exclamations of pleasure when a youngster comes home from school to find an afternoon snack of blueberries. He might not know how highly nutritious it is, but he does know that it is hugely enjoyable.

Creating interest among young people in proper eating habits is a very arduous endeavor. It will win all sorts of rewards in the future by producing more attractive progeny who will be inspired to think more about what is both good and good for.

Create something beautiful with blueberries today by making a blueberry pie, some blueberry muffins, a delicious blueberry parfait. Or simply make breakfast something special by topping dry cereal with blueberries. Being a work of art in themselves, blueberries lend beauty to whatever they touch.

OLD-FASHIONED BLUEBERRY SUGAR CAKES

One cup sugar
One-half cup vegetable shortening
One-half teaspoon salt

Three eggs
Two cups flour
Two teaspoons baking powder
One-half teaspoon cinnamon
One cup milk

One cup fresh or frozen dry-pack blueberries washed and drained

Mix sugar and shortening until fluffy. Add salt. Stir in eggs. Sift flour and baking powder together and add to mixture. Add cinnamon. Add milk gradually and beat mixture for sixty strokes until dough is smooth and satiny. Dust blueberries lightly with flour and carefully fold into mixture. Spoon batter into well-greased muffin tins, filling two-thirds full. Bake in pre-heated oven at 400 degrees until toothpick comes out dry, about 20-25 minutes. Makes twelve blueberry sugar cakes.

CLASSIC BLUEBERRY PIE

One package pie crust mix
One quart fresh or frozen dry-pack blueberries
One cup sugar
Three-fourths cup cold water
Two tablespoons lemon juice
Three tablespoons cornstarch

Prepare pie crust according to package directions. In blueberries in saucepan, add sugar, one-half cup water and lemon juice and cook over slow heat. Dissolve cornstarch in remaining one-fourth cup cold water. As soon as blueberry mixture comes to a boil, stir in cornstarch and remove from fire. Let cool.

Roll out two-thirds of the pie crust large enough to line the bottom and sides of an eight-inch pie plate. Pour in filling. Roll out remaining crust and cover top of pie. Seal edges with a little milk, crimp. Perforate with fork or cut air holes in center of crust.

Bake at 450 degrees for ten minutes. Lower heat to 350 degrees and bake 20 minutes or until crust is lightly browned.

BLUEBERRY CREAM PIE

One and one-half cups fresh or frozen dry-pack blueberries
Four eggs
Two-thirds cup granulated sugar

One teaspoon vanilla
One-fourth teaspoon salt
One tablespoon unflavored gelatin

One-fourth cup cold water
One cup cream, whipped
One nine-inch baked pie shell

Wash and drain blueberries thoroughly. Beat eggs until about triple in volume, and very frothy. Add sugar and vanilla and beat again. Add salt. Sprinkle gelatin over cold water in small saucepan. Place over low heat, stir constantly until gelatin is dissolved, about three minutes. Stir into egg mixture. Fold in cream and refrigerate until filling begins to set. Carefully fold in blueberries. Spoon filling into baked nine-inch pie shell. Return to refrigerator until filling has set.

BLUEBERRY PARFAIT

Two cups (one pint) heavy cream, or whipped topping
One-third cup sugar
One teaspoon vanilla extract
Four cups fresh or frozen dry-pack blueberries, washed and drained

Whip cream, adding sugar gradually, until all liquid is absorbed. Stir in vanilla extract. Spoon alternating layers of blueberries and whipped cream (or whipped topping) into tall parfait glasses, beginning and ending with blueberries. Top with dollop of whipped cream. Makes six servings.

Make the most of fresh fruit while it is in season and the prices more reasonable.

Combine fresh nectarines and fresh blueberries for a double delicious muffin-cake with streusel topping.

NECTARINE BLUEBERRY MUFFIN-CAKE

Streusel Topping
Two large fresh nectarines
One-half cup sugar
Two tablespoons soft butter or

margarine

Three-fourths teaspoon grated lemon peel
One large egg
Two cups sifted all-purpose flour

One teaspoon baking powder
One-half teaspoon soda
One-half teaspoon salt
One cup dairy sour cream
One-half cup fresh blueberries

Prepare Streusel Topping. Thinly slice nectarines to measure two and one-half cups. Cream sugar, butter and lemon peel together. Add egg and beat well.

Resift flour with baking powder, soda and salt. Add to creamed mixture alternately with sour cream, blending well.

Turn into greased nine-inch square baking pan and spread level. Sprinkle with half the streusel. Arrange nectarine slices and blueberries over top. Sprinkle with remaining streusel. Bake in center of 350 degree oven 55 to 60 minutes, until cake tests done. Cut into squares and serve warm. Makes one (nine-inch) square; nine servings.

Streusel Topping: Combine one-third cup each brown sugar (packed) and sifted flour and one-half teaspoon spice; mix well. Cut in three tablespoons soft butter until crumbly.

KITCHEN CHEESE WITH PLUMS

One quart half-and-half
Two tablespoons buttermilk
Three-fourths teaspoon salt
One-half teaspoon basil, crushed

One-fourth teaspoon each, rosemary, tarragon and thyme
Fresh plums, strawberries, grapes, peaches, bananas

Heat half-and-half in a saucepan until it is lukewarm (90 degrees to 100 degrees). Pour into mixing bowl and add buttermilk. Cover and let mixture stand at room temperature 24 to 36 hours until a soft curd forms. Line a colander with a double thickness of cheesecloth and place in sink.

Pour curd into cloth and drain 15 minutes. Fold edges of cloth over curd. Place colander in a bowl large enough to allow space between bottom of colander and bowl. Cover with plastic wrap and refrigerate twelve to eighteen hours.

Turn curd into a mixing bowl and blend in salt and herbs. Mold in small natural baskets or other small containers. Serve with fresh plums and other fruits. Makes about two cups.

BLUEBERRY LIBERTY BELL PIE

(INDIAN BLUEBERRY DESSERT)

Sauce:

One quart fresh blueberries, rinsed and drained
One cup honey
One-fourth cup flour
One cup water
Two tablespoons chopped fresh mint leaves

Fried Bread:

Two cups sifted all-purpose flour
Two teaspoons baking powder
One-half teaspoon salt
Two tablespoons sugar
One cup milk
Deep fat or oil heated to 375 degrees

In a saucepan, combine blueberries, honey and enough water to just cover the berries. Bring berries to a boil and boil five minutes.

In a bowl, mix flour with water until smooth. Stir mixture into hot berries. Add mint. Stir over low heat until berries thicken. Cool.

In a bowl, mix flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Stir in milk until a soft dough is formed. It may be necessary to add more milk.

Knead dough on a floured surface a few times until it is smooth dough. Roll out to one-half-inch thickness and cut with a sharp knife into three-inch squares. Fry squares in preheated deep fat until brown, about three to four minutes. Turn and brown on other side. Drain on absorbent paper.

Serve warm with blueberry sauce spooned over. Makes eight servings.

Blueberries Are Part Of America's Heritage

Favorite Fruit For Indians And Colonists

Blueberries are the all-American fruit.

The Indians used them in dozens of ways before the first settlers arrived and introduced them to the colonists. Lewis and Clark came across them while discovering the Northwest Passage, and by the time Bunker Hill was finding a place in history the women in New England were making memorable blueberry pies.

It's no wonder that blueberries are getting a great share of attention during this Bicentennial year. There are flag cakes with blueberry fields backing up white stars. Blueberry pie recipes made famous by colonial taverns are being prepared again in modern restaurant kitchens. Homemakers are bringing out old-time ideas for making blueberry flummery, buckle and grunt.

And now here's Blueberry Liberty Bell Pie. A bell shape is cut out of a blueberries-in-gelatin mixture that has been chilled in a nine-inch layer pan. It is then placed atop a delicious creamy filling in a baked pie shell. For a final touch, a "crack" is made with a swirl of whipped cream.

BLUEBERRY LIBERTY BELL PIE

Two envelopes unflavored gelatin
One-third cup sugar
Two cans (twenty-ounce each) crushed pineapple
Two apples, peeled, cored and chopped
One cup (one-half pint) heavy cream, whipped
One baked ten-inch pie shell
One envelope unflavored gelatin

One cup water
One-half cup grenadine syrup
One tablespoon lemon juice
Two cups fresh blueberries, rinsed and drained

In a saucepan, mix gelatin and sugar. Stir in half of the crushed pineapple. Stir over low heat until gelatin is dissolved. Stir in remaining pineapple and apples. Chill until mixture is thickened. Fold in whipped cream and pour mixture into pie shell. Chill until firm.

In a saucepan combine gelatin and water. Stir in grenadine and lemon juice. Stir in blueberries. Pour mixture into a lightly oiled nine-inch layer cake pan. Chill until firm. Unmold gelatin onto wax paper.

With a sharp knife trim gelatin until a bell shape is cut from circle. Place bell, smooth side down, on top of pie. Place a blueberry at top and several at bottom bell to make "knocker." Garnish sides of bell with rosettes of sweetened whipped cream or topping. If desired, make a "crack" in Liberty Bell with whipped cream. Chill until ready to serve.

The collective appetite for blueberries is never satisfied. Somebody is always coming up with a new way to use this all-American berry.

So why didn't anybody think of this one before? Blueberries as part of the famous frozen whipped cream dessert known here and abroad as "tortoni." Blueberries are a natural with cream, so of course they are the perfect addition to a tortoni.

Because tortoni is a real dessert-dessert, rich and splendid, it comes in small servings. Instead of freezing it in the usual fluted paper baking cups, the Blueberry Tortoni here is presented in demitasse cups. This unique idea adds a pretty serving touch to an already elegant dessert.

DEMITASSE BLUEBERRY TORTONI

One cup (one-half pint) heavy cream
One-fourth cup confectioners' sugar
One teaspoon vanilla
One teaspoon rum flavoring
One cup fresh blueberries, rinsed and drained
One-third cup crisp crumbled macaroons

In a bowl combine cream, sugar, vanilla and rum flavoring. Whip until stiff. Fold in blueberries and one-fourth cup of the crumbs. Pile mixture into demitasse cups. Sprinkle with remaining crumbs and decorate with additional blueberries. Freeze until hard, then wrap and store until needed. Serve frozen in demitasse cups set on saucers. Makes six servings.

Some people find the blue of the summer sky inspiring. Others are moved by the blue waters of a lake or sea. A cornflower became a "bachelor's button" because its blue beauty appealed to someone's imagination.

Other people get inspiration from another kind of blue. One look at the bonny blueberries of our land impels them to superb creative effort. One of America's greatest poets immortalized the blueberry when Robert Frost wrote "Blueberries." Songs have been written about blueberries and the hills they grow on. And mothers and grandmothers and uncles and cousins have created things to eat from blueberries that are equally works of art.

Blueberries, of course, are indigenous to this continent. They are, and always will be, part of the American heritage.

Blueberries appeal to all of the senses. They look beautiful. They taste good. They feel nice as they are rolled around on the tongue. The sense of smell is awakened whenever blueberry pies are baking.

The fifth sense comes into play when people exclaim about the general goodness of blueberries. Hear the call for another piece of pie, or a request for a favorite blueberry dessert. Listen to the exclamations of pleasure when a youngster comes home from school to find an afternoon snack of blueberries. He might not know how highly nutritious it is, but he does know that it is hugely enjoyable.

Creating interest among young people in proper eating habits is a very arduous endeavor. It will win all sorts of rewards in the future by producing more attractive progeny who will be inspired to think more about what is both good and good for.

Create something beautiful with blueberries today by making a blueberry pie, some blueberry muffins, a delicious blueberry parfait. Or simply make breakfast something special by topping dry cereal with blueberries. Being a work of art in themselves, blueberries lend beauty to whatever they touch.

OLD-FASHIONED BLUEBERRY SUGAR CAKES

One cup sugar
One-half cup vegetable shortening
One-half teaspoon salt
Three eggs
Two cups flour
Two teaspoons baking powder
One-half teaspoon cinnamon
One cup milk
One cup fresh or frozen dry-pack blueberries washed and drained

Mix sugar and shortening until fluffy. Add salt. Stir in eggs. Sift flour and baking powder together and add to mixture. Add cinnamon. Add milk gradually and beat mixture for sixty strokes until dough is smooth and satiny. Dust blueberries lightly with flour and carefully fold into mixture. Spoon batter into well-greased muffin tins, filling two-thirds full. Bake in pre-heated oven at 400 degrees until toothpick comes out dry, about 20-25 minutes. Makes twelve blueberry sugar cakes.

CLASSIC BLUEBERRY PIE

One package pie crust mix
One quart fresh or frozen dry-pack blueberries
One cup sugar
Three-fourths cup cold water
Two tablespoons lemon juice
Three tablespoons cornstarch

Prepare pie crust according to package directions. To blueberries in saucepan, add sugar, one-half cup water and lemon juice and cook over slow heat. Dissolve cornstarch in remaining one-fourth cup cold water. As soon as blueberry mixture comes to a boil, stir in cornstarch and remove from fire. Let cool.

Roll out two-thirds of the pie crust large enough to line the bottom and sides of an eight-inch pie plate. Pour in filling. Roll out remaining crust and cover top of pie. Seal edges with a little milk, crimp. Perforate with fork or cut air holes in center of crust.

Bake at 450 degrees for ten minutes. Lower heat to 350 degrees and bake 20 minutes or until crust is lightly browned.

BLUEBERRY CREAM PIE

One and one-half cups fresh or frozen dry-pack blueberries
Four eggs
Two-thirds cup granulated sugar

One teaspoon vanilla
One-fourth teaspoon salt
One tablespoon unflavored gelatin
One-fourth cup cold water
One cup cream, whipped
One nine-inch baked pie shell

Wash and drain blueberries thoroughly. Beat eggs until about triple in volume, and very frothy. Add sugar and vanilla and beat again. Add salt. Sprinkle gelatin over cold water in small saucepan. Place over low heat, stir constantly until gelatin is dissolved, about three minutes. Stir into egg mixture. Fold in cream and refrigerate until filling begins to set. Carefully fold in blueberries. Spoon filling into baked nine-inch pie shell. Return to refrigerator until filling has set.

BLUEBERRY PARFAIT

Two cups (one pint) heavy cream, or whipped topping
One-third cup sugar
One teaspoon vanilla extract
Four cups fresh or frozen dry-pack blueberries, washed and drained

Whip cream, adding sugar gradually, until all liquid is absorbed. Stir in vanilla extract. Spoon alternating layers of blueberries and whipped cream (or whipped topping) into tall parfait glasses, beginning and ending with blueberries. Top with dollop of whipped cream. Makes six servings.

Make the most of fresh fruit while it is in season and the prices more reasonable.

Combine fresh nectarines and fresh blueberries for a double delicious muffin-cake with streusel topping.

NECTARINE BLUEBERRY MUFFIN-CAKE

Streusel Topping
Two large fresh nectarines
One-half cup sugar
Two tablespoons soft butter or

margarine

Three-fourths teaspoon grated lemon peel
One large egg
Two cups sifted all-purpose flour

One teaspoon baking powder
One-half teaspoon soda
One-half teaspoon salt
One cup dairy sour cream
One-half cup fresh blueberries

Prepare Streusel Topping. Thinly slice nectarines to measure two and one-half cups. Cream sugar, butter and lemon peel together. Add egg and beat well.

Resift flour with baking powder, soda and salt. Add to creamed mixture alternately with sour cream, blending well.

Turn into greased nine-inch square baking pan and spread level. Sprinkle with half the streusel. Arrange nectarine slices and blueberries over top. Sprinkle with remaining streusel. Bake in center of 350 degree oven 55 to 60 minutes, until cake tests done. Cut into squares and serve warm. Makes one (nine-inch) square; nine servings.

Streusel Topping: Combine one-third cup each brown sugar (packed) and sifted flour and one-half teaspoon mace; mix well. Cut in three tablespoons soft butter until crumbly.

KITCHEN CHEESE WITH PLUMS

One quart half-and-half
Two tablespoons buttermilk
Three-fourths teaspoon salt
One-half teaspoon basil, crushed

One-fourth teaspoon each, rosemary, tarragon and thyme
Fresh plums, strawberries, grapes, peaches, bananas

Heat half-and-half in a saucepan until it is lukewarm (90 degrees to 100 degrees). Pour into mixing bowl and add buttermilk. Cover and let mixture stand at room temperature 24 to 38 hours until a soft curd forms. Line a colander with a double thickness of cheesecloth and place in sink.

Pour curd into cloth and drain 15 minutes. Fold edges of cloth over curd. Place colander in a bowl large enough to allow space between bottom of colander and bowl. Cover with plastic wrap and refrigerate twelve to eighteen hours.

Turn curd into a mixing bowl and blend in salt and herbs. Mold in small natural baskets or other small containers. Serve with fresh plums and other fruits. Makes about two cups.

ICY PLUM SQUARE

One pound fresh plums (about seven)
One-half cup sugar
Lemon juice to taste
One egg white
Three cups crushed ice

BLUEBERRY LIBERTY BELL PIE

Wash, quarter and pit plums. (There should be about two cups). Toss with sugar and lemon juice. Pack, including the syrup that forms on them, in freezer container, to within one-half inch of top. Cover, label and freeze.

To make sherbet: Partially defrost plums. Pour half of them into blender container, along with egg white and half the ice. Cover and blend on high speed one minute or until consistency is like fine snow (or use food mill). Empty container into bowl.

Blend remaining plums and ice. Mix with first amount. Pour into ice cube tray, with ice cube dividers in place. Freeze. Serve sherbet cubes in stemmed glasses. Makes one and one-half quarts.

Note: Add more or less sugar depending upon your taste and variety of plums used.

Take advantage of fresh blueberries and whip up some little fried pies Indian style. Serve with freshly whipped cream, ice cream or plain yogurt as a very special treat.

Make a quantity of Wo-Ja-Pi and freeze for use later. Fry only as many as you need at one time and you'll always have a dessert ready to serve when the mood or occasion calls for one.

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Parents Need To Know It

Dear Ann Landers: Some time ago I went to my daughter's house for dinner. She also invited her in-laws who brought their 13-year-old son. We had a pleasant evening but when I got home, I discovered $70 was missing from my wallet.

I phoned my daughter to tell her of the incident. I was certain the young boy had taken the money and wanted to warn her. She couldn't believe it and insisted I must have lost the $70 elsewhere.

Last evening, the in-laws were guests in my home. Again they brought the boy. This morning I left for the store, thinking I had $14 in my purse. When I attempted to pay for a purchase, I discovered only small change. My wallet was empty. Now I'm sure that the boy is a thief.

In two weeks I will be entertaining the entire family at my home. The in-laws will be there, including, of course, the boy. How can I safeguard the purses of my guests? (The women usually put them on the bed or on the dresser.) I don't want to embarrass anyone. — Up Against It

Dear Up: Engage a sitter (ostensibly as a maid) to help the ladies with their wraps. Ask her to remain full-time in the bedroom and keep an eye on the purses. (No details need be given.) That boy needs professional help — and soon. Let's hope someone has the courage to suggest it to his parents.

Not Wanted

Dear Ann Landers: A nutty divorced woman moved next door. She has a son, six, and a daughter, seven. The son can't play with girls and the daughter can't play with boys, because their screwball mother says all the trouble in the world starts with sex and she doesn't want her children to "get involved."

What can we say to our youngsters when this woman orders them to stay away? — K.T.B.

Dear K.T.B.: Tell your children they shouldn't go where they aren't wanted. No other explanation is necessary. But let's hope those unfortunate neighbor kids get enough wholesome exposure at school to offset the crippling effects of their sick mother.

Charge-A-Holic

Dear Ann Landers: Yesterday my wife announced right after dinner, "I saved you $105 today." I was very eager to learn how she did it because this woman has always been a big spender. This is what she said: "As you know, Harry, I always watch the paper for sales. Well, today I was really lucky. I bought three dresses at half price. They were originally marked $75. Can you imagine THREE $75 dresses for $105?"

I really got sore. The woman has a closet full of dresses that she bought at sales and she's never put them on her back. They don't fit right, they are too short or too long, or she is "waiting for the style to come back."

We are in debt up to our necks because my wife can't resist a bargain. I talked to our minister last year and he said, "Close all the charge accounts — she's a

ANN LANDERS

Dr. Lester Coleman

Is it unusual for a 4-year-old child to be constantly thirsty? My daughter is perfectly well, but she drinks great quantities of water and juices. — Mrs. A. A. M., Calif.

Dear Mrs. M.: Excessive thirst is known as "polydipsia."

Because of this unquenchable thirst, children or adults become compulsive water drinkers, and consume enormous quantities of fluids.

Despite the fact that your daughter seems to be in good health, the reasons for this condition should be very carefully studied. I do not mean in any way to create a sense of fear in you, but I must suggest that a special type of diabetes, or some kidney problem, may be responsible.

Rather, I want to encourage charges-a-holic." Tell me what to do. — Poorhouse Here I Come

Dear Poorhouse: Take the clergyman's advice — NOW. You'd be doing your wife a favor. Some people need protection from themselves and compulsive buyers are at the top of the list.

Don't flunk your chemistry test. Love is more than one set of glands culling to another. If you have trouble making a distinction you need Ann's booklet, "Love or Sex and How To Tell the Difference." Send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request and 50 cents in coin to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

you to find an explanation for your child's behavior long before the problem (if one exists) becomes complicated.

Are bunions operations successful? I am perfectly miserable when I walk, even with specially constructed shoes. — Mrs. F. B. T., Ohio.

Dear Mrs. T.: A bunion is a swelling and inflammation of the great toe. A bursa, or sac, is normally present at this site. This becomes thickened and painful due to the constant pressure of a tight shoe.

There are also some malformations of the structure of the foot which, too, can produce this painful condition.

Before surgery is planned, special studies are made of the total foot structure in order to determine the nature and the extent of the operation that will effect a complete cure. Then, when surgery is performed, the results are gratifying.

Far too many people delay for years a complete evaluation of the cause of their bunion. They suffer unnecessarily for long periods of time and, by neglect, sometimes make surgery more difficult.

When I pick up a pen to write a letter my hand shakes. As you can see, I can hardly finish this letter. This only happens when I try to write. Can you explain this? — Mr. B. D., S.D.

Dear Mr. D.: There are many causes of tremors. The kind that you describe is known as an "intention" tremor that starts when you make a purposeful movement like writing. One cannot speculate about the causes of a tremor. A complete neurological examination is essential. There are now many new drugs that can control some types of tremor.

Erna Bombeck

Down Memory Lane

"Remember when you could go into a public restroom and hang your purse on the hook inside the door?"

"Remember when you weren't afraid to open the door on Halloween?"

"Remember when your biggest problem was keeping kids from walking on the grass... not smoking it?"

We were all on a pretty good nostalgia trip when my mother came into the room. "I'll bet Mom remembers those good old days."

"What days are those?"

"The days when pens in banks weren't chained to the desk."

"Why should they be? They never worked anyway."

"The days when we went on vacation and never locked our house."

"There wasn't anything in there worth stealing."

"When there wasn't heavy breathing on the phone at night."

"That's because you never knew your asthmatic grandfather."

"When police didn't have to walk their beat in twos."

"So nuns have been doing it for years."

"Oh c'mon, Mom, you know what we mean. I can remember leaving my tricycle out on the street at night. You couldn't do that nowadays. By the way, what happened to that tricycle?"

"Someone ripped it off," she said.

A group of us indulged ourselves recently in a walk down memory lane in the year 1940 B.C. (Before Crime).

"Remember when we were kids and slept on our front porch in the summer and your only worry was catching cold?"

"Remember when the only time Daddy locked his car was when his keys were in it?"

"Remember when a sign in the window was for the bread man and not an emergency help station?"

"Are you saying someone stole it?" We looked at her like she had just reported that the Yellow Brick Road was nonexistent.

"Yep. Same week someone pinched my giraffe off the back clothesline and a box of canned jars from the garage."

"You never told me that before."

"When we told you Alan Ladd was short, you cried for 15 days. We didn't think you could handle it."

Ice Cream Is Favorite

Ice cream is the All-American favorite, with vanilla the all-time flavor leader.

Try waffles for a nutritious treat on a warm day. Put a generous scoop of ice cream between two waffles. Serve with syrup as a dessert or let the kids have theirs to eat out of hand. Frozen waffles makes this one the easiest.

ADD FESTIVITY Fill a cling peach half with cranberry-orange relish or even just canned cranberry sauce to add color and festivity.

Scotty's Schedules Tryouts

NEW BUFFALO — Tryouts for Scotty's Dinner Playhouse production of "The King and I," will be held Sunday, July 25, at the playhouse, according to Robert Sill, director.

The tryouts will be held from 3 to 6 p.m. According to Sill, all roles are open.

Those wishing to tryout should bring their own music and an accompanist will be provided.

The show will be presented each Friday and Saturday evening at 8:30 p.m. beginning Aug. 20 for six weeks.

The current musical at the playhouse is "South Pacific," which will be presented each Friday and Saturday evening through Aug. 14.

Plan August 7 And 8 Civil War Reenactment

Civil War buffs from Indiana and Illinois will gather Aug. 7 and 8 at the LaPorte County Historical Steam Society grounds in northern Indiana for the "Second Battle of Hession Railway Junction."

Over 300 authentically uniformed soldiers representing infantry, cavalry and artillery will join the railroad buffs of the society in a mock battle which will use steam-powered trains to reproduce a Civil War battle scene of historic and dramatic proportions in a black-powder spectacular.

The Civil War buffs are dedicated to preserving the memory of the War Between the States and the LaPorte County Historical Steam Society members are dedicated to maintaining an operating museum of the steam age.

On Saturday, Aug. 7, units will compete in marksmanship events, including cannon and muskets. A fashion show of authentic dress from the Civil War is planned Sunday and the Civil War reenactment will start at approximately 1 p.m. Admission is $1 for adults. Children under 12 will be admitted free.

The society's grounds are located on LaPorte County road 1000 North, east of New Buffalo, off Indiana 39.

WCTU Election

BUCHANAN — Mrs. Joel Gillette has been elected president of the Buchanan chapter of the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

Other officers for 1978-79 include Mrs. Edith Phillippi, vice president; Mrs. Mary McMichael, secretary; Mrs. Mason Clark, treasurer; Mrs. Luther Miles, social service chairman, and Mrs. Marie Waugh, Christian service chairman.

Buy Griddle For Pancakes

If you cook pancakes for your family often, you'll find an electric griddle a boon because all brands are thermostatically controlled. The rectangular shape of the modern electric griddle usually allows for baking six large griddle cakes at once and thus saves time.

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Parents Need To Know It

Dear Ann Landers: Some time ago I went to my daughter's house for dinner. She also invited her in-laws who brought their 15-year-old son. We had a pleasant evening but when I got home, I discovered $70 was missing from my wallet.

I phoned my daughter to tell her of the incident. I was certain the young boy had taken the money and wanted to warn her. She couldn't believe it and insisted I must have lost the $70 elsewhere.

Last evening, the in-laws were guests in my home. Again they brought the boy. This morning I left for the store, thinking I had $14 in my purse. When I attempted to pay for a purchase, I discovered only small change. My wallet was empty. Now I'm sure that the boy is a thief.

In two weeks I will be entertaining the entire family at my home. The in-laws will be there, including, of course, the boy. How can I safeguard the purses of my guests? (The women usually put them on the bed or on the dresser.) I don't want to embarrass anyone. — Up Against It

Dear Up: Engage a sitter (ostensibly as a maid) to help the ladies with their wraps. Ask her to remain full-time in the bedroom and keep an eye on the purses. (No details need be given.) That boy needs professional help — and soon. Let's hope someone has the courage to suggest it to his parents.

Not Wanted

Dear Ann Landers: A nutty divorced woman moved next door. She has a son, six, and a daughter, seven. The son can't play with girls and the daughter can't play with boys, because their screwball mother says all the trouble in the world starts with sex and she doesn't want her children to "get involved."

What can we say to our youngsters when this woman orders them to stay away? — K.T.B.

Dear K.T.B.: Tell your children they shouldn't go where they aren't wanted. No other explanation is necessary. But let's hope those unfortunate neighbor kids get enough wholesome exposure at school to offset the crippling effects of their sick mother.

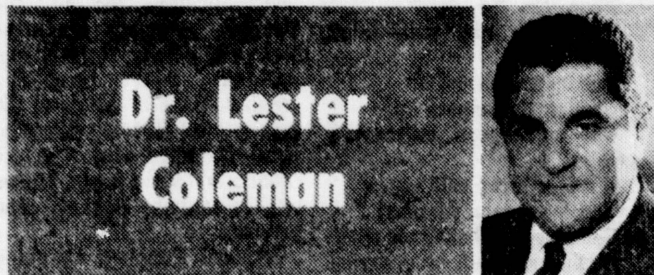

ANN LANDERS

Charge-A-Holic

Dear Ann Landers: Yesterday my wife announced right after dinner, "I saved you $105 today." I was very eager to learn how she did it because this woman has always been a big spender. This is what she said: "As you know, Harry, I always watch the paper for sales. Well, today I was really lucky. I bought three dresses at half price. They were originally marked $75. Can you imagine THREE $75 dresses for $105?"

I really got sore. The woman has a closet full of dresses that she bought at sales and she's never put them on her back. They don't fit right, they are too short or too long, or she is "waiting for the style to come back."

We are in debt up to our necks because my wife can't resist a bargain. I talked to our minister last year and he said, "Close all the charge accounts — she's a

Is it unusual for a 4-year-old child to be constantly thirsty? My daughter is perfectly well, but she drinks great quantities of water and juices. — Mrs. A. M. Calif.

Dear Mrs. M.: Excessive thirst is known as "polydipsia."

Because of this unquenchable thirst, children or adults become compulsive water drinkers, and consume enormous quantities of fluids.

Despite the fact that your daughter seems to be in good health, the reasons for this condition should be very carefully studied. I do not mean in any way to create a sense of fear in you, but I must suggest that a special type of diabetes, or some kidney problem, may be responsible.

Dear Poorhouse: Take the clergyman's advice — NOW. You'd be doing your wife a favor. Some people need protection from themselves and compulsive buyers are at the top of the list.

Don't flunk your chemistry test. Love is more than one set of glands calling to another. If you have trouble making a distinction you need Ann's booklet, "Love or Sex and How To Tell the Difference." you to find an explanation for your child's behavior long before the problem (if one exists) becomes complicated.

Are bunion operations successful? I am perfectly miserable when I walk, even with specially constructed shoes. — Mrs. E. B. T., Ohio.

Dear Mrs. T.: A bunion is a swelling and inflammation of the great toe. A bursa, or sac, is normally present at this site. This becomes thickened and painful due to the constant pressure of a tight shoe.

There are also some malformations of the structure of the foot which, too, can produce this painful condition.

Before surgery is planned, special studies are made of the total foot structure in order to determine the nature and the extent of the operation that will effect a complete cure. Then, when surgery is performed, the results are gratifying.

Far too many people delay for years a complete evaluation of the cause of their bunion. They suffer unnecessarily for long periods of time and, by neglect, sometimes make surgery more difficult.

When I pick up a pen to write a letter my hand shakes. As you can see, I can hardly finish this letter. This only happens when I try to write. Can you explain this? — Mr. B. D. S.D.

Dear Mr. D.: There are many causes of tremors. The kind that you describe is known as an "intention" tremor that starts when you make a purposeful movement like writing. One cannot speculate about the causes of a tremor. A complete neurological examination is essential. There are now many new drugs that can control some types of tremor.

Plan August 7 And 8 Civil War Reenactment

Civil War buffs from Indiana and Illinois will gather Aug. 7 and 8 at the LaPorte County Historical Steam Society grounds in northern Indiana for the "Second Battle of Hessian Railway Junction."

Over 300 authentically uniformed soldiers representing infantry, cavalry and artillery will join the railroad buffs of the society in a mock battle which will use steam-powered trains to reproduce a Civil War battle scene of historic and dramatic proportions in a black-powder spectacular.

The Civil War buffs are dedicated to preserving the memory of the War Between the States and the LaPorte County Historical Steam Society members are dedicated to maintaining an operating museum of the steam age.

On Saturday, Aug. 7, units will compete in marksmanship events, including cannon and muskets. A fashion show of authentic dress from the Civil War is planned Sunday and the Civil War reenactment will start at approximately 1 p.m. Admission is $1 for adults. Children under 12 will be admitted free.

The society's grounds are located on LaPorte County road 1000 North, east of New Buffalo, off Indiana 39.

WCTU Election

BUCHANAN — Mrs. Joel Gillette has been elected president of the Buchanan chapter of the Women's Christian Temperance Union.

Other officers for 1976-77 include Mrs. Edith Phillippi, vice president; Mrs. Mary McMichael, secretary; Mrs. Mason Clark, treasurer; Mrs. Luther Miles, social service chairman, and Mrs. Marie Waugh, Christian service chairman.

Buy Griddle For Pancakes

If you cook pancakes for your family often, you'll find an electric griddle a boon because all brands are thermostatically controlled. The rectangular shape of the modern electric griddle usually allows for baking six large griddle cakes at once and thus saves time.

Down Memory Lane

"Remember when you could go into a public restroom and hang your purse on the hook inside the door?"

"Remember when you weren't afraid to open the door on Halloween?"

"Remember when your biggest problem was keeping kids from walking on the grass...not smoking it?"

We were all on a pretty good nostalgia trip when my mother came into the room. "I'll bet Mom remembers those good old days."

"What days are those?"

"The days when pens in banks weren't chained to the desk."

"Why should they be? They never worked anyway."

"The days when we went on vacation and never locked our house."

"There wasn't anything in there worth stealing."

"When there wasn't heavy breathing on the phone at night."

"That's because you never knew your asthmatic grandfather."

"When police didn't have to walk their beat in twos."

"So nuns have been doing it for years."

"Oh c'mon, Mom, you know what we mean. I can remember leaving my tricycle out on the street at night. You couldn't do that nowadays. By the way, what happened to that tricycle?"

"Someone ripped it off," she said.

A group of us indulged ourselves recently in a walk down memory lane in the year 1940 B.C. (Before Crime).

"Remember when we were kids and slept on our front porch in the summer and your only worry was catching cold?"

"Remember when the only time Daddy locked his car was when his keys were in it?"

"Remember when a sign in the window for the bread man and not an emergency help station?"

"Are you saying someone stole it?" We looked at her like she had just reported that the Yellow Brick Road was linoleum.

"Yep. Same week someone pinched my girdle off the back clothesline and a box of canning jars from the garage."

"You never told me that before."

"When we told you Alan Ladd was short, you cried for 15 days. We didn't think you could handle it."

South's six-diamond bid was based on the principle that if you can count 11 sure winners, including first-round control of all suits, some divine Providence will give you a 12th trick.

When he looked at dummy's first glance indicated that Providence appeared to be looking some other way. There seemed to be no way to avoid two heart losers. Then South got an inspiration. He just might be able to ruff one heart in dummy.

He started operation heart ruff by leading a low heart.

FRAU'S DREAMS vs. REALITY Washtenaw Sheriff Arraigned In Brawl

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Washtenaw County Sheriff Fred Postill was arraigned Tuesday on a charge of felonious assault stemming from a brawl that occurred during a wedding reception July 11.

A few hours later, Postill and jail administrator Frank Donley filed a $100 million slander and libel suit against the sheriff's deputy who swore out the warrant that resulted in Postill's arrest. Four other defendants also were named.

Suspended deputy Basil Baysinger sought the assault warrant on his own, according to his attorney Jack Garris, because neither county prosecutor William Delhey nor the state attorney general's office had moved to charge Postill.

Postill was charged with trying to strangle Baysinger with a pair of handcuffs on July 11. No plea was entered. Postill posted a $1,000 bond and was released on his own recognizance pending an Aug. 9 preliminary exam.

Postill's attorney, Neal Bush, said Tuesday he would file a motion asking dismissal of the charges because the warrant was sought by a private citizen.

Postill and Donley's lawsuit names the Ann Arbor News; one of its reporters, William Trent; the Police Officers Association of Michigan; and its director, Carl Parsell, along with Baysinger. The suit charges the parties made damaging remarks about Postill and Donley.

German Feminists Buck 'Males First' Tradition

By VERNONIKA PFELFER
Associated Press Writer
BOON, West Germany (AP) — The German housewife is making progress toward equality in marriage and family matters, but she faces a tougher struggle to achieve American-style emancipation outside the home.

"When a woman wants a career, she must do her job twice as good as a man," goes the typical complaint of West German women fed up with the "males first" tradition in schooling, jobs and politics. Hannelore Schmidt, wife of Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, told American reporters recently "we have enough (sex equality) laws. It's up to women to take advantage of the opportunities."

But feminists disagree. They claim most West German women are sexually and financially exploited by their husbands and blocked by male bosses from rising to influential positions in industry.

"They are slaves of a male society, both at home and outside. On the job, women remain the powerless executors of men," says Alice Schwarzer, spokeswoman of the 2,000-member Women's Movement. Evidence of deeply rooted discrimination is borne by these statistics from the West German Family Ministry: —Women are guaranteed "equal pay for equal work" by West German law, but are normally hired on lower wage scales and earn an average of 30 per cent less than their male colleagues in comparable industrial and white collar jobs.

—The 22.5 million women voters far outnumber the 19 million men voters, yet only 33 of the 518 members of the West German parliament are women; less than 10 per cent of judges and public prosecutors are women; and a minuscule 0.1 per cent of business directors are women.

—Educational opportunities are improving for young women, but 80 per cent still leave public schools with only a 10th grade education and less than a third of the nation's 800,000 university students are coeds.

Women's rights got a big boost this spring when parliament approved sweeping reforms of the marriage code dating to the turn of the century.

Newlyweds now have the option of adopting the bride's maiden name instead of the husband's for their family, and married women can resume using their maiden name by setting it in front of their husband's — a measure especially appreciated by successful professional women.

Beginning in 1977, the wife will have a full say with her husband in deciding family matters. Equally important, she can drop her housework and take a job without her husband's permission — grounds for divorce under the old code devised by the Prussian legislature of Kaiser Wilhelm II.

Under the new divorce law, "irreconcilable differences" or a one-year estrangement are grounds for dissolving the marriage, replacing the judicial requirement of determining a "guilty party" who is penalized financially or forced to give up the children.

While feminists accept these measures as long overdue, they are bitterly critical of parliament's watered-down abortion law reform which falls short of their goal of "abortion on demand."

Leak Source Still Mystery

By PEGGY SIMPSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Les Aspin says he loaned his copy of the secret House intelligence committee report to the CIA and his staff gave several pages to Reuters News Agency, but the identity of the person who leaked the report to CBS reporter Daniel Schorr remains unknown.

The Wisconsin Democrat said he cooperated with the CIA in an effort to win a compromise on material the agency wanted kept from the public. He said the intelligence committee staff refused to provide the CIA with a copy, so he loaned his to the spy agency.

The House ethics committee, which is investigating the leak to Schorr, has heard testimony from five of the 13 members of the now-disbanded committee. Aspin told the ethics panel what he did with his copy of the report, and Rep. William Lehman, D-Fla., said he lost his copy.

Other intelligence committee members will be questioned today.

Schorr arranged for the suppressed report to be published in a New York City weekly, the Village Voice. He has declined to say who gave him his copy, and ethics committee investigators say they have been unable to find out, despite hundreds of interviews.

During testimony Monday and Tuesday, five members of the intelligence panel denied being Schorr's source or knowing who was.

U.S. May Buy Back Plutonium

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials say the United States will try to buy back plutonium left over from fuel used in India's Tarapur nuclear power plant because of fears over the spread of atomic weapons.

The United States has supplied uranium fuel for the Tarapur reactor for years, but was recently challenged by citizen groups who fear India will soon be able to extract from the spent fuel plutonium that can be used to make nuclear bombs.

U.S. officials have acknowledged that U.S. technological assistance, including a possibly crucial chemical ingredient, contributed to India's 1974 atomic explosion.

Opposing an application to the Nuclear Regulatory Agency for a license to export another uranium shipment to Tarapur, several witnesses at an NRC hearing Tuesday suggested that the United States at least insist on buying back the spent fuel and its plutonium.

Myron Kratzer, an acting assistant secretary of state, told the commission the administration is looking into an arrangement "under which such material might be returned" to the United States.

Thomas Davies, assistant director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, said he thought an NRC decision on the export license could wait until the administration tries to negotiate the return of the plutonium from India.

Davies later told a reporter he was optimistic that such an agreement with India could be reached, perhaps within two months.

Davies said the administration has not yet discussed the subject with India, but has informally advised New Delhi of its intentions.

Opposing witnesses had urged the NRC to refuse further exports of nuclear fuel to the Tarapur power plant because of the 1974 explosion and because India is now building a reprocessing plant capable of extracting bomb-grade plutonium from spent power plant fuel.

William W. Lowrance, a research fellow at Harvard University, suggested that the United States continue fuel shipments to Tarapur, but only in the form of sealed fuel rods that would be returned to the United States, to prevent removal of plutonium.

Radiologist: Breast X-Ray Warnings Are 'Scare Tactics'

By MARTY HAIR
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — A Detroit radiologist Tuesday branded as "scare tactics" suggestions that women younger than 50 not have routine X-rays for breast cancer.

"One-third of breast cancer is in women under 50 years old. By not giving X-rays to those younger people, we are denying them a chance of living longer," according to Dr. John Wolfe, chief of radiology at Hutzel Hospital.

Dr. Lester Breslow of the University of California at Los

Student Honored

Jeffrey Gluth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred W. Gluth, Nye road, Galien, was named to the dean's list for the spring quarter at Ohio State university. A freshman, Gluth is enrolled at Ohio State's Agricultural Technical Institute in Wooster, Ohio.

Angeles urged at a Washington meeting of the National Cancer Institute on Monday that breast X-rays not be routine for women under 50.

"If we don't find cancer early, there's not much point in finding it at all," Wolfe said Tuesday. "Breast X-rays should be conducted on all young women to determine their risk of getting cancer."

Breslow said a seven-year New York study suggested X-ray screening, or mammography, is beneficial for women over the age of 50 if radiation exposure is held to the lowest effective level.

But Breslow said there is no measurable benefit for younger women without symptoms of breast cancer and "certainly some hazard" that X-ray screening may actually cause some breast cancers.

Wolfe objected to the recommendation, calling the study on which it was based "antiquated and meaningless."

The Wayne State University

professor said radiography has progressed since the study began in 1953. Now, he said, X-rays use far smaller amounts of radiation and present much less danger.

He said techniques of xeroradiography, which he pioneered, and low-dose film use one-half to one-third the amount of radiation used previously. "The risk-benefit ratio is far safer than (some doctors) think."

Wolfe said X-rays are especially important for women under 50 because their breast tissue is dense, making it more difficult to find a tumor through self-examination than in older women whose breast tissue is more fatty.

"It is essential that younger women be examined, because the impact of breast cancer is so much greater in younger women," Wolfe said. "If we can't screen everyone, then let's not screen those women 50 and older."

Bottle Ban Headed For Ballot

By SUSAN AGER
Associated Press Writer
LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state Board of Canvassers planned today to officially place a proposal banning nonreturnable beverage containers on the Nov. 2 ballot after opponents were rebuffed by the Michigan Supreme Court.

The high court Tuesday refused to hear a suit filed by opponents of the ban, meaning certification of more than 400,000 signatures collected in a petition drive can go forward.

The battle is far from over, as spokesmen for the beverage industry say they will launch an expensive campaign to defeat the measure at the polls.

Attorneys for the opponents also left the door open for future court challenges if the ban is approved by voters.

The Michigan United Conservation Clubs, which spearheaded the petition drive, says it also plans to spend "everything we can raise" to stump for the measure.

"With the string of victories we've built up on this thing so far, I think we can get another one in November," said MUCC Executive Director Thomas Washington.

Prior to the election, the legislature will have 40 days to enact the proposal and if it does so, the election would not be needed.

Attorneys for those opposing the plan said a ban on nonreturnable containers could be challenged in court after the election, probably on the same grounds contained in the suit rejected by the Supreme Court. That suit was rejected earlier by the Michigan Court of Appeals.

Filed by the beverage industry, grocers, steelworkers, glass blowers and Michigan AFL-CIO President William Marshall, the suit claimed the petitions were improperly drafted, had a misleading title and were turned in too late.

Both court decisions were victories for the MUCC, state environmentalists and for Gov. William Milliken, who was the first to sign the petition in April. "I'm just thrilled," Washington said. "This is a very, very big thing for 400,000 people in this state.

"This issue has a 12-year record in this state of utter frustration," he said. "It's been trodden under in the legislature by one lobbyist after another.

But in a period of 90 days the people of this state put together (close to) half a million signatures and beat down a test in the Court of Appeals and the Supreme Court. It's kind of an exhilarating experience."

The petition drive was organized after the state legislature failed to enact legislation on the matter.

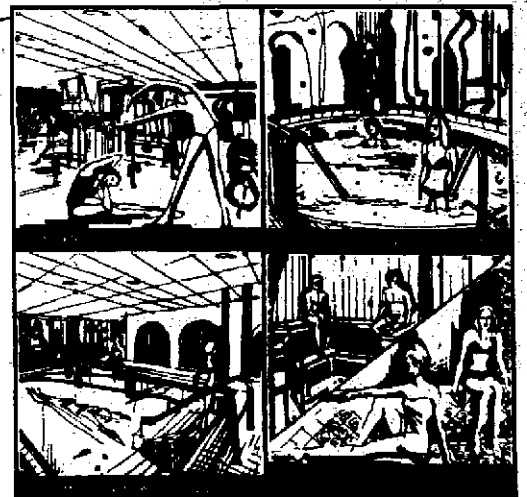

William Kreger, director of the Michigan Soft Drink Association, said Tuesday an "educational campaign" would be launched immediately, including advertising, a speakers bureau and literature mailed directly to Michigan residents.

Attorneys Map Defense For Philippine Nurses

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Defense lawyers and a team of Philippine attorneys mapped out trial strategy Tuesday for two Philippine nurses charged with murdering five patients at the Ann Arbor Veterans Hospital.

Attorney Thomas O'Brien, representing defendant Filipina Narciso, said he and his partners met for more than three hours with former Philippine Supreme Court Justice Estanislao Fernandez, Lilliano Neri, the head of the Integrated Bar of the Philippines, and prominent criminal lawyer Arsan Acuna.

"They conveyed to me the widespread support in the Philippines for the two women and assured us they would do everything they could to help our case," O'Brien said.

"We talked about the differences in our legal systems, what we anticipate the trial might involve, and some tentative strategy."

O'Brien said the Philippine lawyers will serve as consultants to the American defense teams. "They will also work more directly in their own country raising funds for the defense and keeping the public informed about the case."

The Philippine attorneys were to meet Miss Narciso, 30, and co-defendant Leonora Perez, 31, at a dinner at Miss Narciso's Ann Arbor home Tuesday night.

O'Brien said the two nurses "are holding up well" while awaiting the start of what promises to be a lengthy trial.

"They are in very good spirits. We've counseled them to try to get their lives as much as possible back to normal — see friends, engage in recreation — because there's been a lot of excitement, and this is going to be a very long haul."

He added he doesn't anticipate the trial starting before early 1977. "Mrs. Perez is five months pregnant, and the trial will probably not begin until after her delivery," he said.

Church, labor, and civic groups in the Philippines have been collecting funds to help with the women's defense, O'Brien said. "The attorneys indicated to us that pictures of the women in handcuffs deeply moved the Philippine people," he said.

The two women are charged with killing five patients and poisoning to others at the Ann Arbor Veterans Administration Hospital last summer. Authorities believe a muscle-paralyzing drug, pancuronium bromide, was injected into patients' intravenous solutions causing breathing failures.

O'Brien said the three Philippine attorneys would return to their country in about a week and work from there. There are no immediate plans for their return to the U.S., he said.

New Buffalo Stalls Apartment Ruling

NEW BUFFALO — The New Buffalo city council last night postponed action on a planning commission recommendation not to allow construction of a 64-unit apartment project on the south side of Jefferson street.

The council scheduled a special meeting Aug. 10 with the city planning commission to discuss the proposed $750,000 project. The planners on July 14 had voted four to three to recommend that the council not allow the project to begin.

Casualties In Rioting Top 21

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A black man was killed and more than 20 persons were injured in riots in three black townships Tuesday night. Police said the situation was calm today.

The disturbances broke out as schools closed by black riots last month were to reopen. Posters carried by the rioters said, "We are fighting for our black brothers and sisters who died in Soweto."

At least 176 persons, nearly all black, died in those riots, which began in the huge black township of Soweto, outside Johannesburg.

Police rushed Tuesday night to Lynville township, near Witbank, 70 miles east of Pretoria, where 3,000 black youths attacked whites, Indians and persons of mixed race.

Police said they fired into the air. An 18-year-old black youth was found shot dead in a beer hall.

Two Indian shops in the township and the Indian community center were burned down and about 15 vehicles set ablaze, police said.

At nearby Middelburg, a group of about 150 students marched through the streets of Mhuzi township, setting fire to a bus and storing cars.

Roaming bands of blacks stoned cars on the main Pretoria-Witbank highway and several whites, including a 4-year-old girl, were hurt.

On the matter of easements, the council voted to obtain 30 easements necessary for the installation of sanitary sewer lines.

The average price was set at $1.50 per foot, according to Carl Krieger, a local real estate agent hired to determine fair prices for the easements.

Marx reported that there are two vacancies on the planning commission and one vacancy on the zoning board of appeals.

The council approved the payment of $1,393 to the New Buffalo Concrete Products Co. for the installation of concrete sidewalks in the city park.

A request was approved from the new Buffalo Cub Scouts who asked to close North Whittaker street from 1 to 4 p.m. Aug. 15 for a soap box derby.

The council voted to allow the New Buffalo Disabled American Veterans Organization to hold tag days Aug. 20 and 21.

During the water board meeting that preceded the council meeting, a letter was read from Oelka Construction Co., Union Pier, which said the firm would extend its bid for 60 days on a project to install a water main on Marquette drive.

The Oelka firm had submitted low bids on the project last month ranging from $22,810 to $33,328.

The prices varied because bids were submitted on both eight-inch and 12-inch mains.

The council tabled action on the project until financial arrangements are made with 26 property owners in the city, Marx said. The owners must contribute $10,000 to the project before it can begin, he said.

Councilmen said last night they wanted to replace Boothby because his recent campaign activities have resulted in a backlog of city legal affairs. Councilmen noted that the city was six months behind in obtaining necessary sewer easements.

Land Mine Kills British Envoy In Ireland

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — British Ambassador Christopher Ewart-Biggs and a woman companion were killed today when a land mine blew up the ambassador's car. The ambassador's chauffeur and a British official from Northern Ireland were injured. Hospital officials said they were in critical condition.

Ewart-Biggs, 54, had been Britain's envoy to Ireland for less than two weeks. He is believed to be the first British official killed in the Irish republic since the Irish war of independence in the early 1920s. The British Embassy in Dublin was burned four years ago by a mob enraged when British paratroopers killed 13 unarmed civilians during a demonstration in Northern Ireland.

Police said it was too soon to say whether the explosion was the work of the Irish Republican Army, the outlawed underground army waging a guerrilla war of bombs and bullets — violence aimed at ending British rule in Northern Ireland and uniting it with the republic.

Police said the dead woman was Judith Cooke, and they believed she was a member of the embassy staff.

First reports said the woman was the ambassador's wife, but the embassy announced that Mrs. Ewart-Biggs went to England Tuesday night on a visit.

The police said the injured men were Brian Cubbon, a British Foreign Office official stationed in Belfast, and Brian O'Driscoll, the chauffeur.

A police announcement said the ambassador was killed by a bomb, but Police Sgt. Pat Murray said the car went over a land mine on the road about 150 yards from the gate to the embassy residence, first hobby residence, in the Sandford suburb on the southern outskirts of Dublin.

Ewart-Biggs and his companions were on the way to the embassy building about eight miles away in the center of Dublin.

Murray said the ambassador's car was always accompanied on its official journeys by two armed plainclothesmen in an unmarked car. He could not say whether the police car preceded or followed the limousine. But he said that as far as he knew the plainclothesmen were not hurt by the explosion.

The embassy residence is a large house surrounded by walled grounds and guarded by Irish police and men of the British Special Branch.

A large-scale police alert was ordered as an investigation began.

Ewart-Biggs, 54, had taken up his post in the Irish capital less than two weeks ago. He had held diplomatic posts previously in the Middle East, Manila, Algiers, Brussels and Paris.

His first wife died in 1958, and he married again in 1960. He had one son and two daughters.

Police said as far as they knew Ewart-Biggs had not received any death threats.

In the confusion after the explosion on a road about 150 yards from the gates of the ambassador's residence, first reports said the explosion was due to a booby-trap bomb in the car. Later, it was established that the car ran over a land mine.

A passing janitor, Jim Markin, said he saw two men running across an adjoining field after the explosion.

"I was coming round a corner when I heard a tremendous bang," he said. "I ran toward it and saw two men sprinting across the fields. One of them wore a blue hat."

He said police were on the scene "within seconds."

The blast occurred just after the ambassador's car came out of the gates of the secluded mansion on the southern outskirts of Dublin and into Murphysstown Road, en route to the British Embassy about eight miles away.

The car, a Jaguar, was thrown into the air and landed upside down in the crater where the mine had been buried.

Two Irish detectives were following the ambassador in another car. The blast shattered their windshield, but they were not hurt.

South Haven Boy Grabbed After Burglaries, Vandalism

South Haven Correspondent

SOUTH HAVEN — City police believe the arrest of a 14-year-old South Haven boy yesterday has cleared up a rash of crimes throughout the city earlier this week.

Officers said that in the crimes, three businesses were burglarized and at least seven boats vandalized Monday night and early yesterday.

Police arrested the youth at the bus depot yesterday morning where he was waiting for a bus to go to St. Louis, Mo.

Officers said that articles found in a suitcase carried by the boy led them to take him into custody on three counts of breaking and entering, another count of possessing stolen property and a fifth for being a runaway. The boy has been petitioned to Van Buren probate court, according to juvenile officer William Crow.

Police said the boy was implicated in the burglaries of Ed's Auto service, 274 Broadway street; Niff's Standard service, 402 Eagle street; and the Sno-White laundromat, Center street.

In each incident a window was broken to gain entry and coin machines and cash registers rifled.

Officers said they found keys belonging to coin machines from the businesses in the youth's suitcase.

Among the boats vandalized was one belonging to Seventh District court Judge Donald Goodwillie Jr. Police said the judge identified a knife found in the youth's suitcase as having been on his boat.

New Buffalo Stalls Apartment Ruling

Casualties In Rioting Top 21

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A black man was killed and more than 20 persons were injured in riots in three black townships Tuesday night. Police said the situation was calm today.

The disturbances broke out as schools closed by black riots last month were to reopen. Posters carried by the rioters said, "We are fighting for our black brothers and sisters who died in Soweto."

At least 176 persons, nearly all black, died in those riots, which began in the huge black township of Soweto, outside Johannesburg.

Police rushed Tuesday night to Lynnville township, near Witbank, 70 miles east of Pretoria, where 3,000 black youths attacked whites, Indians and persons of mixed race.

Police said they fired into the air. An 18-year-old black youth was found shot dead in a beer hall.

Two Indian shops in the township and the Indian community center were burned down and about 15 vehicles set ablaze, police said.

At nearby Middelburg, a group of about 150 students marched through the streets of Mhluzi township, setting fire to a bus and stoning cars.

Roving bands of blacks stoned cars on the main Pretoria-Witbank highway and several whites, including a 4-year-old girl, were hurt.

city planning commission to discuss the proposed $750,000 project. The planners on July 14 had voted four to three to recommend that the council not allow the project to begin.

The developer, Grellac Real Estate Investment and Management Co., Kalamazoo, has proposed to build four buildings housing a total of 64 one and two bedroom apartments.

Federal rent subsidies could be available to some low-income tenants, a representative of the Grellac firm said during a presentation June 29 before the planning commission.

In other areas, the council voted to instruct City Manager William Marx to begin seeking a replacement for Lee Boothby of Berrien Springs, the city's present attorney.

Boothby is a Republican candidate seeking the GOP nomination for congressman from the 4th district.

Councilmen said last night they wanted to replace Boothby because his recent campaign activities have resulted in a backlog of city legal affairs. Councilmen noted that the city was six months behind in obtaining necessary sewer easements.

On the matter of easements, the council voted to obtain 30 easements necessary for the installation of sanitary sewer lines.

The average price was set at $1.50 per foot, according to Carl Krieger, a local real estate agent hired to determine fair prices for the easements.

Marx reported that there are two vacancies on the planning commission and one vacancy on the zoning board of appeals.

The council approved the payment of $1,393 to the New Buffalo Concrete Products Co. for the installation of concrete sidewalks in the city park.

A request was approved from the new Buffalo Cub Scouts who asked to close North Whitaker street from 1 to 4 p.m. Aug. 15 for a soap box derby. The council voted to allow the New Buffalo Disabled American Veterans organization to hold tag days Aug. 20 and 21.

During the water board meeting that preceded the council meeting, a letter was read from Oselka Construction Co., Union Pier, which said the firm would extend its bid for 60 days on a project to install a water main on Marquette drive.

The council tabled action on the project until financial arrangements are made with 28 property owners in the city, Marx said. The owners must contribute $10,000 to the project before it can begin, he said.

The Oselka firm had submitted low bids on the project last month ranging from $22,810 to $33,328.

The prices varied because bids were submitted on both eight-inch and 12-inch mains.

SOUTH HAVEN Correspondent
SOUTH HAVEN — City police believe the arrest of a 14-year-old South Haven boy yesterday has cleared up a rash of crimes throughout the city earlier this week.

Officers said that in the crimes, three businesses were burglarized and at least seven boats vandalized Monday night and early yesterday.

Police arrested the youth at the bus depot yesterday morning where he was waiting for a bus to go to St. Louis, Mo.

Officers said that articles found in a suitcase carried by the boy led them to take him into custody on three counts of breaking and entering, another count of possessing stolen property and a fifth for being a runaway. The boy has been petitioned to Van Buren probate court, according to juvenile officer William Crow.

Police said the boy was implicated in the burglaries of Ed's Arco service, 274 Broadway street; Niff's Standard service, 402 Eagle street; and the Sno-White laundromat, Center street.

In each incident a window was broken to gain entry and coin machines and cash registers rifled.

Officers said they found keys belonging to coin machines from the businesses in the youth's suitcase.

Among the boats vandalized was one belonging to Seventh District court Judge Donald Goodwillie Jr. Police said the judge identified a knife found in the youth's suitcase as having been on his boat.

Land Mine Kills British Envoy In Ireland

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — British Ambassador Christopher Ewart-Biggs and a woman companion were killed today when a land mine blew up the ambassador's car. The ambassador's chauffeur and a British official from Northern Ireland were injured. Hospital officials said they were in critical condition.

Ewart-Biggs, 54, had been Britain's envoy to Ireland for less than two weeks. He is believed to be the first British official killed in the Irish republic since the Irish war of independence in the early 1920s. The British Embassy in Dublin was burned four years ago by a mob enraged when British paratroopers killed 13 unarmed civilians during a demonstration in Northern Ireland.

Police said it was too soon to say whether the explosion was the work of the Irish Republican Army, the outlawed underground army waging a guerrilla war of bombs and bullets — violence aimed at ending British rule in Northern Ireland and uniting it with the republic.

Police said the dead woman was Judith Cooke, and they believed she was a member of the embassy staff.

First reports said the woman was the ambassador's wife, but the embassy announced that Mrs. Ewart-Biggs went to England Tuesday night on a visit.

The police said the injured men were Brian Cubbon, a British Foreign Office official stationed in Belfast, and Brian O'Driscoll, the chauffeur.

A police announcement said the ambassador was killed by a bomb, but Police Sgt. Pat Murray said the car went over a land mine on the road about 150 yards from the gate to the embassy residence, in the Sandford suburb on the southern outskirts of Dublin.

Ewart-Biggs and his companions were on the way to the embassy building about eight miles away in the center of Dublin.

Murray said the ambassador's car was always accompanied on its official journeys by two armed plainclothesmen in an unmarked car. He could not say whether the police car preceded or followed the limousine. But he said that as far as he knew the plainclothesmen were not hurt by the explosion.

The embassy residence is a large house surrounded by walled grounds and guarded by Irish police and men of the British Special Branch.

A large-scale police alert was ordered as an investigation began.

Ewart-Biggs, 54, had taken up his post in the Irish capital less than two weeks ago. He had held diplomatic posts previously in the Middle East, Manila, Algiers, Brussels and Paris.

His first wife died in 1959, and he married again in 1960. He had one son and two daughters.

Police said as far as they knew Ewart-Biggs had not received any death threats.

In the confusion after the explosion on a road about 150 yards from the gates of the ambassador's residence, first reports said the explosion was due to a booby-trap bomb in the car. Later, it was established that the car ran over a land mine.

A passing janitor, Jim Markin, said he saw two men running across an adjoining field after the explosion.

"I was coming round a corner when I heard a tremendous bang," he said. "I ran toward it and saw two men sprinting across the fields. One of them wore a blue hat."

He said police were on the scene "within seconds."

The blast occurred just after the ambassador's car came out of the gates of the secluded mansion on the southern outskirts of Dublin and into Murphystown Road, en route to the British Embassy about eight miles away.

The car, a Jaguar, was thrown into the air and landed upside down in the crater where the mine had been buried.

Two Irish detectives were following the ambassador in another car. The blast shattered their windshield, but they were not hurt.

South Haven Board Sets Bond Issue: $2,125,000

South Haven Correspondent

SOUTH HAVEN — The amount of a school building bond issue slated for a Sept. 11 election here was set at $2,125,000 by the South Haven board of education during its regular monthly meeting last night.

The bond issue, announced at the board's June meeting, will cover construction of additional classrooms at the Maple Grove elementary school, the addition of a new gymnasium at Central school and major renovation of the Central school auditorium and Rattcliffe athletic field.

Supt. Harold Gaarde said the issue would cost taxpayers no more than one mill each of the first two years because the South Haven district qualifies for financial assistance from the state. The millage rate after 1977-78 cannot be determined because the state program is scheduled to expire then and it is not known if the legislature will renew it.

The South Haven district has a current bonded indebtedness of 2.11 mills.

Gaarde and members of the school board stressed that the bond issue is the result of recommendations from approximately 50 citizens who comprised seven ad hoc committees that examined the district's needs.

Gaarde noted that the proposal is not based on an anticipation in an increase in enrollment, but is meant to answer the need to upgrade classrooms and restore facilities.

He pointed out that the Central school auditorium is 50 years old and that Rattcliffe athletic field has not had major work since 1936.

Board member Marjorie Johnston labeled the bond issue "a real bargain" while board chairman Donald Dempster said the projects have "tuned into what our people want."

South Haven voters last approved a building bond issue in 1961 when the high school was constructed. A bond issue proposal for a new junior high was rejected in 1970.

In other matters, the board approved pay hikes for non-certified employees. Raises for salaried personnel will be seven per cent while the hike for hourly employees will range between six and seven per cent. Gaarde noted that increases in salaries for cooks and bus drivers will be determined at a later date.

Several administrative salaries were also approved. New salaries with last year's in parentheses are: Edward Bocock, Lincoln school principal, $23,634 ($22,297); Maurice Carroll, elementary director, $25,484 ($24,042); Susan Haas and Patricia Welder, reading supervisors, $17,490 ($16,500); Howard Jessup, assistant senior high principal, $23,634 ($22,297); Bruce Matthews, senior high dean of students and athletic director, $22,438 ($21,188); Michael Rocca, junior high principal, $22,275 ($20,250); Adrian Slikkers, senior high principal, $27,949 ($26,637); Gary Smith, junior high assistant principal, $19,360 ($17,900); and Mary Wiacek, Central school elementary director, $21,500 ($20,000).

The board approved instituting a new elementary math curriculum. Students in grades one through eight will use the Macmillan company series M program while kindergartners will be taught the Holt program. The Macmillan program focuses on basic computational skills, according to Gaarde.

The board authorized advertising for bids for its fleet insurance and a new gas-fired boiler for Indiana school.

Major maintenance projects underway within the district this summer include the rewiring and replacement of lights in the vocational building, a complete rearrangement of library facilities at Central school, the development of a new reading center at Central school, refinishing of bleachers at L. C. Mohr gym and new lights for hallways, stairways and restrooms at the Indiana and Hartman schools.

Gaarde reported that an

POLICE ROUNDUP

Man Reports He's Robbed By Riders

A rural Benton Harbor man told Berrien sheriff's officers he was knocked out, robbed of $4 and his car was stolen by two hitchhikers early Tuesday.

Bruce Allan Holthoff, 23, route 4, box 471A, Round Lake, said he picked up the hitchhikers on M-132 and drove them to the intersection of M-140 and Napier avenue, Bainbridge township, where the incident occurred about 12:15 a.m. He said one man in the front seat punched him and he woke up about 7:30 a.m. near Eau Claire.

He told officers his car is a 1967 black and white Oldsmobile 88.

Baroda-Lake township Police Chief John Harner said 28 bottles of wine, cigarettes and change were stolen during a burglary of Geno's Time Out restaurant and bar, 8981 Red Arrow highway, Lake township.

Harner said the break-in was discovered Tuesday and entry was made through a side door. He said the wine was taken from the bar area and cigarettes and change from a cigarette machine.

Fishing and boating equipment and two CB radios were reported stolen Tuesday.

Berrien sheriff's deputies said Ann Wogoman, route 2, box 137, US-33, Berrien Springs, told deputies a storage house was broken into. Among the goods stolen were a 5-horsepower outboard motor, four fishing rods and three fishing reels, fishing tackle, two lifejackets and two boat oars, all valued at $500.

Two Indiana men reported CB radios were taken from their cars parked in the lot at Howard Johnson's Motor Lodge, 2699 M-139, Sodus township, Franchon Smithson, Fort Wayne, and Roger Day, Vernon, said both radios were valued at $200.

St. Joseph police said Tuesday a storage area was ransacked at Edd Gerring-Hatrefather shop, 715 Gard avenue, but said it was undetermined what, if anything, was stolen. Police said entry was made through a window and two cans of hairspray, two wigs and several papers were found outside near the building.

State police of the Benton Harbor post said a glass door was broken early today at the Watervliet rest area on I-94, and a New York man was arrested on a charge of vandalism. Troopers said truckers reported that a man had kicked in the door at the restroom building about 1:25 a.m. Booked at the Berrien county jail was Joseph E. Perrone, 24, Marlboro, N.Y.

Berrien sheriff's deputies said vandals apparently partially dismantled a three-ton weight scale at the Glenford Home Center, Glenford road, Lincoln township. Arthur Kling, president of the home center, told deputies the scale is located at the rear of the company's brickyard and no determination of the amount of damage had yet been made.

Eau Claire Schedules Council Meeting -- Again

EAU CLAIRE — The Eau Claire village council meeting was postponed last night for lack of a quorum. A meeting has been scheduled for Thursday, July 22, at 8 p.m., according to Mrs. Carol Rumbaugh, deputy clerk. Last night's meeting had been scheduled after the regular meeting Monday was canceled for lack of a quorum.

Fishing and boating equipment and two CB radios were reported stolen Tuesday.

Berrien sheriff's deputies said. Ann Wogoman, route 2, box 337, US-33, Berrien Springs, told deputies a storage house was broken into. Among the goods stolen were a 5-horsepower outboard motor, four fishing rods and three fishing reels, fishing tackle, two lifejackets and two boat oars, all valued at $500.

Two Indiana men reported CB radios were taken from their cars parked in the lot at Howard Johnson's Motor Lodge, 2699 M-139, Sodus township, Franchon Smithson, Fort Wayne, and Roger Day, Vernon, said both radios were valued at $280.

St. Joseph police said Tuesday a storage area was ransacked at Edd Gerring-Haircrafter shop, 715 Gard avenue, but said it was undetermined what, if anything, was stolen. Police said entry was made through a window and two cans of hairspray, two wigs and several papers were found outside near the building.

State police of the Benton Harbor post said a glass door was broken early today at the Watervliet rest area on I-94, and a New York man was arrested on a charge of vandalism. Troopers said truckers reported that a man had kicked in the door at the restroom building about 1:25 a.m. Booked at the Berrien county jail was Joseph E. Perrone, 24, Marlboro, N.Y.

Berrien sheriff's deputies said vandals apparently partially dismantled a three-ton weight scale at the Glenford Home Center, Glenford road, Lincoln township. Arthur Klug, president of the home center, told deputies the scale is located at the rear of the company's brickyard and no determination of the amount of damage had yet been made.

Eau Claire Schedules Council Meeting -- Again

EAU CLAIRE — The Eau Claire village council meeting was postponed last night for lack of a quorum. A meeting has been scheduled for Thursday, July 22, at 8 p.m., according to Mrs. Carol Rumbaugh, deputy clerk. Last night's meeting had been scheduled after the regular meeting Monday was canceled for lack of a quorum.

CALLING AT FORD: Leonard Woodcock, left, United Auto Workers president, and Ken Bannon, UAW vice president Ford division, sit down at bargaining table at Ford Headquarters in Dearborn Tuesday to begin talks on new contract with automaker. Meeting follows opening of talks at General Motors Monday. Woodcock will call on Chrysler today and American Motors on Thursday. (AP Wirephoto)

Job Guarantees Is UAW Goal

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers, accusing Ford Motor Co. of exporting work overseas, is demanding contract guarantees to preserve the jobs of the No. 2 automaker's 180,000 hourly workers.

"We want to tie down, at least, through the duration of the contract, protection for people who are presently employed and for jobs now being performed at Ford," UAW Vice President Ken Bannon said Tuesday as bargaining opened on a new three-year accord.

Bannon said Ford, more than the other car makers, has eliminated UAW jobs in recent years by turning out work to non-union shops in this country and relocating domestic operations abroad.

Ford now imports engines from Brazil and transmissions from France and Mexico for cars assembled in the United States. The union fears other components may soon be imported from Valencia, Spain, where Ford has completed a huge assembly complex.

Job security has emerged as the union's top goal in the 1976 talks because of extensive layoffs which killed 40 per cent of the industry's workforce during the 1974-75 slump. The union also is seeking improved wages and fringes, pensions and company-paid layoff benefits along with concessions in numerous non-economic areas.

Ford is the second company to launch talks with the UAW on new three-year accords covering 600,000 U.S. and Canadian auto workers. Bargaining, which opened at General Motors on Monday, begins at Chrysler Corp. today and American Motors on Thursday. Current pacts expire in mid-September.

"We want language that would provide that any work we historically have done will continue to be done by Ford workers," Bannon said. "We recognize there will be layoffs due to market changes, but they won't come about by Ford importing components from overseas."

"We're not tying their hands, we're looking for job security," Ford's top bargainer, vice president Sidney F. McKenna, responded. "We consider it essential to the viability and success of our company to have the maximum amount of flexibility in our operational decisions and the utilization of all our resources."

"And it remains to be seen whether the proposal which they'll detail is in conflict with that basic concept."

"We're not in agreement on anything yet, but I'm hopeful we can put together a settlement without a strike," said Bannon.

EPA To Check Cars At Plants

By MARTIN HIRSCHMAN
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency said Tuesday it will begin spot checks of cars rolling off the assembly lines to make sure they comply with federal anti-pollution regulations.

"The auto manufacturers' own data indicate that more than half a million 1976 model cars did not satisfy the federal emission requirements when they came off the assembly line," said EPA Administrator Russell Train. "EPA data on 1975 vehicles in actual use suggest even higher non-compliance."

At present, EPA runs 50,000-mile compliance checks on each auto model before it is allowed to go into production. But the agency primarily relies on the manufacturers to continue meeting the emissions standards thereafter.

A spokesman for EPA said the new assembly line tests would zero in on models known to have high failure rates in on-the-street tests and models which only narrowly meet the 50,000-mile certification requirement.

EPA said certification would be suspended — meaning the autos could not be sold — for models with more than a 10 per cent failure rate in the assembly line tests. EPA had earlier proposed suspending certification for any model with just a 10 per cent failure rate.

The agency said the added cost to the auto makers for administration and equipment under the program, when passed on to the consumer, would raise the price of each car by between 17 and 70 cents.

Austin Shuns Talk Show Bid

By MARY STEVENSON
Associated Press Writer
LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Secretary of State Richard Austin, the leading Democrat in the race for the U.S. Senate, has refused to appear on television with the seven other contenders.

Democratic Congressman Donald Riegle of Flint, one of Austin's opponents, charged Tuesday that the secretary of state was trying to avoid debate and "tip-toe into the nomination" on name recognition alone.

A Detroit News poll published this week showed Austin leading the three other Democratic contenders with 40 per cent of the vote. His nearest opponent was Riegle with 17 per cent.

Jack Casey, Austin's political consultant, said the Austin is not ducking the public. He said Austin has appeared jointly in public with the other candidates about 20 times.

Austin has been on radio and has averaged about one news conference or "media contact" daily since announcing his candidacy this spring, Casey said.

Casey explained that Austin refused to appear on Lou Gordon's WKBD talk show in Detroit because "it was evident that Gordon had closed his mind against Austin."

Austin also refused to sign a waiver as required by federal law saying he wouldn't demand equal time later if the other seven candidates appear without him. The interview has been scrapped.

Casey blamed scheduling conflicts for Austin's decision not to appear with the other candidates on two other shows in Grand Rapids on WOTV and WZZM.

Austin is scheduled to take part in a joint appearance on Detroit's WXYZ-TV July 31. Casey said the eight candidates also will appear jointly in a taped session on Detroit's public broadcasting station.

But the three Democrats competing against Austin for the seat now held by retiring Sen. Philip Hart said Austin is avoiding public exposure.

"If he is not willing to face the issues and the voters directly, then why is he running for the Senate?" Riegle asked.

Birmingham attorney James Elsmann, another Democratic contender, said there is "no doubt" Austin is ducking the public. "I want Dick Austin to appear in public debate," Elsmann said.

Congressman James O'Hara also criticized Austin's actions. "Gordon has said he's going to endorse a candidate," Casey said. "It's going to be a personal endorsement session. He's already foreclosed on Mr. Austin. If he's (Austin) precluded from consideration for an endorsement, why should he give additional free exposure to the other candidates?"

Gordon denied ever saying he would not endorse Austin.

FBI Chief Picks New No. 2 Man

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard G. Held, a 35-year FBI veteran whose service includes two stints in Butte, Mont., and not much time at all in Washington, has been named the bureau's No. 2 official.

FBI Director Clarence Kelley on Tuesday reached outside his Washington headquarters staff and appointed Held as FBI associate director.

Held, 66, replaces Nicholas Callaghan, who was fired last week in the course of a Justice Department probe of financial improprieties and other misdeeds involving present and former bureau officials.

Held has been the special agent in charge of the Chicago office for the past three years. Since joining the FBI in 1941, he has served only one stint at FBI headquarters, working as a middle-level supervisor for eight years ending in 1955.

Kelley broke the bureau tradition of selecting his second-in-command from among those with long years of service at headquarters.

Boothby Picks More Advisers

BERRIEN SPRINGS — Atty. Lee Boothby, candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress from the Fourth District, has announced appointments of additional members of advisory committees which he is forming in farming, local government and business.

Lad Stacey, Berrien Springs; Orval Benson, St. Joseph township; Don Peterson, Sawyer; William Marx and Carol Bond, New Buffalo, were appointed to the local government committee in Berrien county.

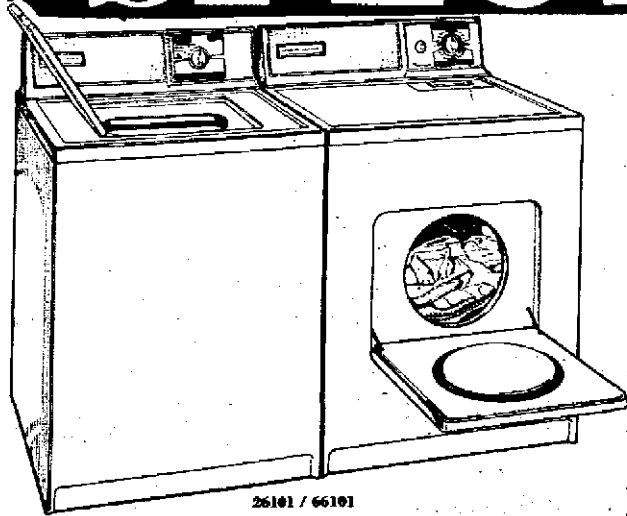

Appointed in Van Buren county were Walter Stickers and Roger Thomas, Bangor, and Waldo Dick of Lawrence.

Cass county appointees include Lowell McMillan, Niles, and Kenneth Fox, Cassopolis. Richard Platt, Tipton; Stacy Zilke, Deerfield, and Harry Dussau, Adrian, will serve on the local government advisory committee from Lenawee county.

Boothby said, "It is important for a congressman to have input from those associated with government on the local level."

Looks Like It's Not Tom Paine's Tombstone

TIVOLI, N.Y. (AP) — A marble tombstone thought possibly to mark Tom Paine's final resting place apparently is just the stone of an admirer, a researcher says.

The six-foot obelisk engraved "In memory of the Revolutionary War patriot" was unearthed at a farm near here Saturday. The opposite side of the stone bore a similar legend for one John G. Lasher. The discovery aroused excitement because scholars have been unable to locate Paine's grave. The author of "Common Sense" and other fiery tracts was buried at his New Rochelle, N.Y., farm in 1809, but when the body was moved to his native England several years later, authorities refused reburial and it met an unknown fate.

Frances Gale, a college student doing research on Hudson Valley architecture, found a clipping from a Kingston, N.Y., newspaper dated Sept. 9, 1874, that may explain the stone found here. She said the article described a visit by Lasher, "an eccentric individual residing near Madelin" to a nearby marble yard. Lasher, described as "a staunch follower of Tom Paine" ordered a monument inscribed in memory of his hero.

The clipping said Lasher had the obelisk erected in his front yard. When he died three years later, his family apparently used the opposite side of the stone to mark their relative's grave.

Decatur Plans Four Days Of Bicentennial Events

DECATUR — Decatur township's Bicentennial celebration will be Aug. 4-7 in the village here, according to Miss May Kaplan, chairman of the township's Bicentennial committee.

Scheduled are agricultural exhibits in the township hall; ethnic food booths; Sidewalk Days sales; a Friday night street dance featuring an appearance by the Van Buren Folk dancers; and a Saturday afternoon parade.

Miss Kaplan said other scheduled events include aerial stunts, a band concert and an arts and crafts show.

LONG WAIT: John R. Simmons pins Purple Heart on his father, John Elmer Simmons of Shelby, Mich., who was wounded in France in 1918. It took the Army nearly 58 years to present the medal. Leon Kay, a grandson, holds citation presented to the elder Simmons. He was a private when wounded by shrapnel during World War I. (AP Wirephoto)

PEOPLE USED TO BELIEVE that they could cure leg ailments by wearing a rubber band with a dime under it just above the knee; that you could ward off rheumatism by wearing a brass ring on the middle finger; and that an onion eaten just before going to bed would induce sound sleep. Folklore: "An itching nose foretells money. The right side of your nose itching means good news; the left side, bad news. You will be kissed if you sneeze twice. Sneezing thrice means you'll get a letter." (Gesundheit!) An unusual and good banger cure: Mix a couple of heaping tablespoons of wheat germ, a beaten egg and a glass of milk. (It's said to be an equally good help if taken the night before.) Have you ever thought of this — that lawn tennis is the only game where there are strict rules for the spectators!

OVERWORKED EXPRESSION: "It's been a bit much."

Famous Last Words: "Of course I see that motorcycle through the rear window — but he can't be a cop — they never patrol this road."

Beauty Hint: To make your hair glossy, add the beaten white of an egg to your shampoo water and a tablespoon of vinegar to the rinse. It is claimed that you're most likely to snore when you're overtired, overweight or smoking incessantly. Dress Tip from dance authority Josephine Butler: "Wearing white or light shade stockings will make the legs look heavier." Famous Last Words (one more time): "We can take the kids to this movie — I'm sure there's nothing sexy in it." Exercise Tip from Terry (Century West club) Robinson: To trim your hips, lie flat on the floor, arms extended to your sides at shoulder level with legs straight up in the air. Keeping legs together, slowly swing them six inches to the right and then to the left.

KITCHEN-SNOOPING: Add sesame seeds to butter to give fried chicken an extra exotic flavor (Mrs. B's kitchen). For a delicious taste, add chopped beets to your next corned beef hash (Don's, Boston). Chopped carrots and olives mixed into cottage cheese make a delicious stuffing for celery stalks (Maude's, NYC).

Harvest Season Strike Hits California Canneries

By JOHN C. EAGAN
Associated Press Writer
PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP) — A harvesttime strike is under way by the workers who process most of the nation's canned tomatoes, apricots, peaches and fruit cocktail.

The walkout on Tuesday shut down 76 plants which handle 95 per cent of California's canning production. Up to 70,000 cannery workers are employed at the peak of the harvest season, which is now getting under full steam.

Agricultural leaders appealed to President Ford to intervene with a Taft-Hartley injunction for an 80-day cooling-off period.

Shortly after the walkout began, Director James F. Searce of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service summoned both sides to Washington for talks Thursday.

"It is extremely important that every effort be made to settle this dispute as quickly as possible in order to avert the loss of food crops," Searce said.

Ross Wurm of California

Processors, Inc., said California produces all of the nation's canned apricots, cling peaches and fruit cocktail.

The state also turns out about 85 per cent of the tomatoes, including peeled tomatoes, tomato juice, catsup and tomato sauce, produced in the United States, Wurm said.

Cannery representatives said there is no way to estimate the immediate effects the strike will have on the prices of the affected vegetable and fruit products.

The processors, however, have larger supplies than usual sitting in warehouses and that could toughen their bargaining stand.

Freddy F. Sanchez, chief negotiator for the California Council of Cannery and Food Processing Unions, said he will go to Washington for the talks but that "in the interval, the strike will continue."

Among the major national food processors affected by the walkout are Del Monte, Gerber's, Hunt's and Libby's.

"Millions of dollars worth of fruit and tomatoes will rot on the ground," Fred Heringer, president of the California Farm Bureau, said in urging federal intervention. "These losses ultimately will be felt in every household in America in the form of higher food prices."

Bill Thomas of California Food Processors predicted that a strike lasting just one week would mean $21 million in grower losses.

The Farm Bureau has estimated that a six-week strike could cause $1 billion in losses to California's agricultural industry — the nation's biggest farm state, which has already been hit with an estimated $1 billion in losses from a severe drought.

The 13 Teamster union locals involved have asked for increases of about $3 per hour over a three-year period. The cannery says they have offered an additional 95 cents to $1.43 per hour, depending on the cost of living.

Wages have averaged $4.93 per hour, plus an additional 73 cents an hour in fringe benefits, under the contract which expired June 30

Erie Is No Longer Nation's 'Dead Sea'

By ASSOCIATED PRESS
Lake Erie, once called a polluted "dead sea," is winning the fight against contamination and decay, according to a Michigan environmental official.
In the mid 1960s, some scientists said the lake was an example of "the worst pollution in the world."
But now, the lake is "a very fine body of water for everything — as a source of drinking water, recreational uses, fishing and in meeting the needs of industry," according to William Turney, head of environmental projects in the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.
Turney said he believes pollution control programs conducted by Michigan, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Ontario have reversed the trend toward contamination in Lake Erie.

Ontario officials are again permitting commercial fishing, Turney said. He added that a Monroe, Mich., beach that has been closed for more than a decade because of health threats is scheduled to reopen next week.
Turney and other scientists will discuss the lake's progress at a four-day conference this week in Windsor, Ont., on the Great Lakes' water quality. The meetings are sponsored by the International Joint Commission, which oversees pollution problems concerning both the United States and Canada.

Arraigned In Slaying

DETROIT (AP) — A 41-year-old Detroit woman was arraigned on manslaughter charges in the shooting death of a crippled neighbor who tried to talk her out of committing suicide. Georgia Lee Willson was released on $5,000 personal bond after standing mute at her arraignment before Recorder's Court Judge John P. O'Brien. Mrs. Willson was charged with shooting Gus Kanaras, 45, late Sunday afternoon in the basement of her westside home. Kanaras, known as "Mr. Nice Guy" by his neighbors, had come to the Willson home after Mrs. Willson had threatened to commit suicide. Kanaras was fatally wounded.

To Stay Alive...

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — A University of Michigan study confirms that motorists who wear seat belts have a better chance of staying alive in traffic accidents, the school's Highway Safety Research Institute says. The study looked at 6,728 crashes between March, 1974, and August, 1975, and found that of 70 fatalities occurred. Of the 70, 50 wore no restraints and 14 wore either a lap belt or a lap belt and a shoulder harness combination. The study was done with the help of the CALSPAN Corp. and the Southwest Research Institute. Researchers said the study did not allow them to determine "the relative protective merit" of lap belts as opposed to more advanced restraint systems, but noted the restraints cut deaths by 62 per cent.

PBB Researcher Arrives

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — A cancer research specialist arrived in Michigan this week to begin studying the effects of polybrominated biphenyl (PBB) on humans. "We're here primarily to see whether or not there are any human health effects associated with PBB ... I don't think you have to be very smart to suspect there are," Dr. Irving Selikoff said. Selikoff, whose research at New York's Mt. Sinai Hospital has concentrated on how chemicals affect humans, said his group's investigation should be brief. Selikoff said he expects about 25 scientists to be involved in the probe. They will be based at Kent Community Hospital in Grand Rapids. The scientist insisted his studies will focus on "what is happening to people" who consumed animal products tainted with PBB. The fire retardant chemical was mixed accidentally with livestock feed sold statewide three years ago. "We already know the routine tests don't show very much," Selikoff said, explaining why specialized tests will be employed.

Main Issues For Voters

DETROIT (AP) — Unemployment, crime and the cost of living are the main issues that concern Michigan voters, according to a copyrighted poll published today in the Detroit News. But Democratic voters attach greater importance to those issues than their Republican counterparts, the News reported. Those who plan to vote Republican in the Aug. 3 primary and the November presidential election are more interested in taxes, welfare spending, foreign policy and political leadership, the survey found. The poll was conducted by Market Opinion Research Inc., a Detroit-based national polling firm.

Pistols In Prison

JACKSON, Mich. (AP) — Officials were searching housing units at Southern Michigan Prison Tuesday after uncovering guns, knives and other weapons. Prison officials said they found three .35-caliber handguns — the most ever found there at one time — inside the prison on Monday. State Police assisted in further searches, which yielded 11 knives, three screwdrivers and 15 pieces of pipe which authorities said had been made into weapons. William Grant, inside program manager at the prison, said 15 rounds of ammunition were recovered with two of the guns and 13 rounds with the other. Grant said some of the weapons were buried.

New Airline Try

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich. (AP) — The founder of Air Metro Airlines, a small, troubled carrier that was shut down earlier this year by a pilots' walkout, is trying to start a new service. B.J. Hayner has received approval from the Northwest Regional Airport Commission to use the Cherry Capital Airport as the base for a new company, Air Michigan. The commission placed stipulations on using the airport as a base, saying a contract and financial details had to be worked out first. Hayner said he hoped to start the new service by Sept. 15, serving sites including Traverse City, Houghton-Hancock, Lansing, Grand Rapids and Detroit and later perhaps spreading to Cadillac and Gaylord.

Two Convictions Upheld

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state Court of Appeals has affirmed the convictions of two men in a 1973 shooting death of a police officer and a bystander in Southgate. The court upheld the first-degree murder conviction of Dennis Tilley and the manslaughter conviction of David Moss in the murder of policeman Paul Mickel and a bystander, Irene Bowdle. The shootings occurred as the result of a fight at a Southgate restaurant. Mickel pulled his service revolver, setting off a struggle in which Moss restrained the officer. Officials said Tilley grabbed the gun and shot Mickel and the bystander. The appeals court said there was sufficient evidence for the jury to decide Tilley had enough time to premeditate a murder — thus permitting a first-degree murder conviction. And the court said Moss' restraining the police officer did not bar his conviction for manslaughter as participant in the killing.

Gas Leak Blamed In Fire

CAPAC, Mich. (AP) — A fire that destroyed a St. Clair County Road Commission substation Tuesday was caused by a natural gas leak in the building's furnace, officials said. The gas ignited and flames spread to oil and paint containers, investigators said. Four road commission employees escaped the fire. Damage in the blaze was set at $500,000.

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — A suburban coalition challenging increased water rates may examine the Detroit Water Department's financial records, Oakland County Circuit Court Judge Frederick Zaem has ruled. The 30 per cent water rate hike enacted in May is the target of a suit filed on behalf of more than 90 communities in Wayne, Oakland, Macomb, Lapeer, Genesee, Washtenaw, Monroe and St. Clair counties.

Eaton Karate Stick Verdict Reversed

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state Court of Appeals Tuesday overturned the conviction of a man for carrying karate sticks. The court said the Eaton County Circuit Court conviction of Donald Malik for carrying a dangerous weapon was improper.
State law prohibits possession of several dangerous weapons, including a bludgeon, but the court said karate sticks are not included.
Karate sticks are short sticks hinged at the middle with a flexible material such as chain. They can be swung with a lethal force.
The state Senate has approved legislation, now in a House committee, to ban several exotic weapons, including karate and kung-fu sticks.

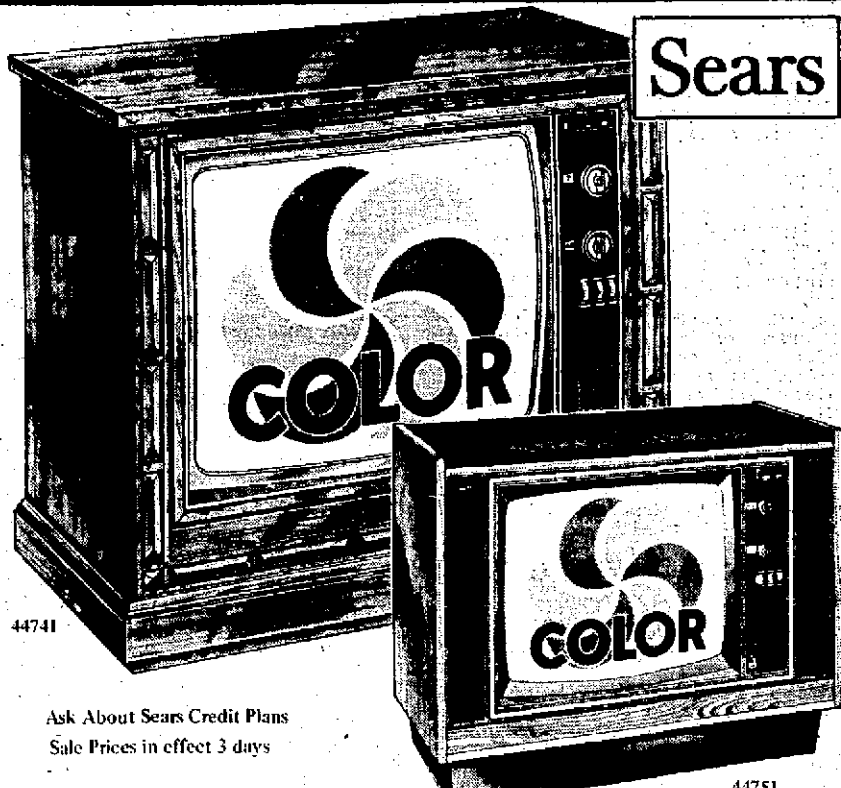

They're Waiting Longer

DETROIT (AP) — City residents who need Emergency Medical Services teams are waiting nearly twice as long for help as they did before 54 EMS employees were laid off July 1, the agency's chief says. EMS Superintendent Daniel Bojalad said the longer response time can be of "profound significance" to victims of heart attacks and other ailments. Bojalad said the average EMS response time before the layoffs was 6.3 minutes on a slow day, and 6.9 minutes on a busy day. Since the layoffs, average response time has ranged from 10.2 minutes to 12.7 minutes, he said.

Back To Patrolman Rank

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Police Department's budget-slashing campaign continued as 75 police sergeants were told they will be demoted to the rank of police officer on Aug. 2. Though police did not release figures on how much money the department stands to save by the demotions, a police spokesman said each sergeant will lose about $3,600 in annual salary. Detroit police sergeants earn about $22,300 a year. Police officers, the lowest rank in the department, earn about $18,700.

Parolee Is Held On Burger King Robbery Charge

Benton township police said a man identified as Oliver A. Hardy, 21, Kankakee, Ill., was charged Tuesday with the armed robbery of Burger King restaurant, 3035 M-139, Benton township, on July 6. Police said they took statements in connection with another robbery and an attempted holdup in which descriptions of the bandit were similar.

OLIVER A. HARDY
Robbery suspect

Hardy was arrested Monday night by township police on a charge of shoplifting at Jewel Food store, 756 East Napier avenue, Fairplain, under another name. Subsequent investigation led to filing of the robbery charge, police said. Police said they were assisted in the investigation by state police of the Benton Harbor post.

Cash taken in the Burger King holdup amounted to $1,200, police said.

The other robbery occurred July 5 at Steve's Clark service station, 865 East Napier avenue, Benton township, during which $100 was taken. A holdup man was frightened away before taking any loot at the Imperial 400 Motel, 711 West Main street, Benton Harbor, July 4.

Township Det. Robert Shepherson said a computer check showed Hardy is wanted by Illinois authorities on a charge of parole violation. He is on parole from a sentence for robbery.

Lightning Bolt Sends Benton Man Flying

By TOM SAWYER
Staff Writer

A Benton township man escaped serious injury Tuesday when a piece of well drilling equipment he was standing near was apparently struck by lightning near his home.

Roy Rodgers, 48, route 4, box 481, Benton Center road, was treated for shock and released from Mercy hospital after the 6:30 p.m. incident.

Rodgers said he was helping pick up tools around the well digging equipment owned by a friend, Wesley Campbell of Campbell Well drilling. He said he had a wrench in his hand when he saw a blue flash. He said he woke up about 15 feet away.

A neighbor, Mrs. Lucy Cantrell, reported Rodgers literally flew through the air. The incident occurred across the road from Rodgers' home at the residence of Robert J. Hackett, 476 Benton Center road.

Rodgers reported he felt no pain at the time of the accident, but said today had a headache and ached all over his body. He is self-employed as an antenna installer and repairman.

Lebanon Shelling Continues

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Heavy shelling today delayed the evacuation of wounded from the Tal Zaatar refugee camp and the establishment of a buffer zone manned by Arab League peace troops between the warring Christian and Moslem sectors of Beirut. The Red Cross assembled a 15-truck convoy for the trip into the besieged Palestinian refugee camp on the southeast side of Beirut. But an hour after a temporary cease-fire was scheduled to take effect, there was heavy shelling along the convoy's route. One Red Cross official said an observation team near Tal Zaatar reported "shells falling like rain on the camp."

Cass Metro Unit's Last Raid Nets 10 Suspects

By JOHN DYE
Staff Writer

CASSOPOLIS — What could have been the last raid staged by the Cass county sheriff's department metro narcotics unit yesterday netted 10 of 14 people sought on drug sale charges, the department said today.

One of the ten, Richard Ray Baker Jr., 22, of East Division street, Dowagiac, was identified by Sheriff James Northrup as the brother of Dan Baker, a sheriff's department marine division deputy.

The sheriff's department reported that two more named in the warrants, 16-year-old Dowagiac boys, were being held by Daytona Beach, Fla. authorities.

Yesterday's morning raid netted nine arrests in Cass and Berrien counties, as officers from the sheriff's department and four other Cass county agencies served the arrest warrants.

A tenth man was arrested in neighboring Indiana's Elkhart county, the sheriff's department said.

The men arrested in Cass county and the charges listed on the warrants were:

Baker, delivery of marijuana; Billy Douglas Alexander, 18, route 2, Decatur, delivery of marijuana; Todd Taylor, 19, Orchard street, Dowagiac, delivery of cocaine; Michael Livingston, 19, 505 Main street, Dowagiac, delivery of marijuana; Paul Swank, 24, 518 South Third street, Niles, delivery of marijuana, and Fred Wares, 24, Vandalia, delivery of marijuana.

Also, Scott Kurzhall, 18, route 4, Dowagiac, delivery of marijuana; Robert Grant, 22, delivery of marijuana; Richard Ray Baker Jr., 22, East Division street, Dowagiac, delivery of marijuana, and Roger Smith, 18, route 7, Dowagiac, delivery of PCP.

The department said that John Judd, route 3, Granger, Ind., was being held in the Elkhart county jail, Elkhart, Ind., for Michigan authorities on a charge of delivery of barbiturates after refusing to waive extradition to Michigan.

Eight of the nine arrested yesterday appeared in District court in Cassopolis yesterday and had their cases continued until July 27 at 9 a.m. Alexander was scheduled to be arraigned later today in district court.

The sheriff's department reported this morning that all eight who appeared in court yesterday were released on personal recognizance bonds or bonds ranging from $300 to $500.

Sheriff's James Northrup said yesterday that the raid will probably be the last staged in the county "for some time" because the county board of commissioners has refused to continue the narcotics unit after July 27.

Taking a swipe at the Democrat-controlled board of commissioners, Northrup, a Republican, charged that a vote earlier this month not to continue the unit was "politically motivated...a partisan vote... penny-wise and pound-foolish."

Northrup said that the cost of continuing the unit until this fall would have been $19,432. He claimed that unemployment benefits for three narcotics officers who will have to be laid off and pay owed officers in the unit will amount to $12,000.

Citing that all of yesterday's warrants were felony charges for the alleged sale of drugs, Northrup said the shutdown of the unit comes at a time, "...when we felt the unit was reaching full effectiveness."

The decision not to continue the unit could surface again tonight at a special meeting of the board.

Petitions asking the board to reconsider its decision and fund the narcotics unit may be presented to the board of commissioners then.

"One of the abductors was someone who had access to the quarry and who could use the equipment to dig the hole without his presence being questioned," the source was quoted as saying.

Authorities searched in the Santa Cruz Mountains on Tuesday after learning the three masked and armed kidnapers had been there both before and after the abduction.

Alameda County Sheriff Tom Houchins said that area became "possibly significant" because clothing taken from the bus driver and children by the kidnapers was found near Saratoga, and the two vans used in the abduction had been registered in nearby Los Gatos.

Parolee Is Held On Burger King Robbery Charge

Benton township police said a man identified as Oliver A. Hardy, 24, Kankakee, Ill., was charged Tuesday with the armed robbery of Burger King restaurant, 2035 M-139, Benton township, on July 6. Police said they took statements in connection with another robbery and an attempted holdup in which descriptions of the bandit were similar.

OLIVER A. HARDY
Robbery suspect

Hardy was arrested Monday night by township police on a charge of shoplifting at Jewel Food store, 756 East Napier avenue, Fairplain, under another name. Subsequent investigation led to filing of the robbery charge, police said. Police said they were assisted in the investigation by state police of the Benton Harbor post.

Cash taken in the Burger King holdup amounted to $1,200, police said.

The other robbery occurred July 5 at Steve's Clark service station, 985 East Napier avenue, Benton township, during which $100 was taken. A holdup man was frightened away before taking any loot at the Imperial 400 Motel, 711 West Main street, Benton Harbor, July 4.

Township Det. Robert Shepherdson said a computer check showed Hardy is wanted by Illinois authorities on a charge of parole violation. He is on parole from a sentence for robbery.

Life On Mars May Be Possible

the Viking lander as it soared through the atmosphere en route to its touchdown, the first successful soft landing on Mars in history. The amounts reported by scientists were about 1.5 per cent argon and about 3 per cent nitrogen.

After arriving on the planet, the lander began streaming spectacular pictures 213 million miles back to earth of a rock-strewn landscape, looking much like the Arizona desert, with craters and dunes in the distance.

Readings of weather on the planet, monitoring for marsquakes and the first color picture of Viking's new home were to be received today in a burst of transmissions from the robot probe.

Viking, the first of two unmanned American spacecrafts scheduled for Mars landings this summer, blasted off on its historic mission 11 months ago.

In eight days, a telescopic arm is to reach out and grab a clump of Martian soil to be deposited aboard the 1,300-pound lander for three life-detecting experiments.

If any tiny organisms are living in the soil, the experiments are believed capable of finding them.

One of the first tasks of the lander is to make close-up photographs of the ground nearby to find a scientifically interesting spot where the 10-foot arm can scoop safely. Known as sample site certification, the process will occupy Viking scientists for the next week.

Viking will conduct a variety of experiments until at least November, when Mars will be out of touch behind the sun. If the lander is still working when it reappears a month later, experiments may be run for a year or more.

Selection Continues Murder Trial Jury

PAW PAW — Jury selection was scheduled to continue today in the first-degree murder trial of Edwin Lamar Langston in Van Buren circuit court. Langston was arrested in connection with the shooting death last Dec. 1 of Mrs. Arretta Lou Inghram, wife of South Haven Councilman Wilbur Inghram, during an armed robbery of the couple's neighborhood grocery store.

Ronnie Wilson, 27, of Gary, Ind., whom the prosecution alleged actually shot Mrs. Inghram, was convicted of first-degree murder by a circuit court jury June 4 and subsequently sentenced to life imprisonment. During Wilson's trial, the prosecution claimed Langston, 23, of South Haven, was the driver of a getaway car. Prosecutor Ward (Steve) Hamlin, Jr. said 20 prospective jurors were questioned during yesterday's opening session of the trial.

Cuts Peril NYC Tax Base

WASHINGTON (AP) — New York City's tax base is threatened by cuts in city services mandated under the austerity budget the city has drawn to meet federal aid requirements, according to a congressional report. An analysis prepared for a subcommittee of the House Banking Committee says New York is meeting its immediate financial obligations, but that its future is in doubt because its tax base is being jeopardized. Staff analyst Ruth M. Wallack assured the panel that for the short term "it appears that they (New York city officials) will have the cash to keep operating barring some unforeseen occurrence."

RAIN-CAUSED FLOOD: Rain water overflowing from nearby drainage ditch sent water up to home of M. D. Carlisle, CR-687, Hartford, and home of neighbor, Robert Rogers, last night. Observers said water reached depth of four feet at times. Rogers property was cut off from road for time by 40-foot wide flow of water. Rain gauge in area registered a 2.45 inch rain fall between 6 and 10 p.m. No one was reported injured. (George Swift photo)

Niles Men Demand Hearings

CASSOPOLIS — Two Niles men demanded preliminary examinations yesterday when arraigned in district court here on charges of first degree criminal sexual conduct in connection with the alleged rape of a 16-year-old Niles girl Monday night.

Judge Steg Lignell set the preliminary examinations for Tuesday, July 27, for Charles Conrad Alvord, 18, and Gerald Barton Shank, 17, both of Niles.

Both were released after posting bonds of $2,000 each.

State police from the Niles post reported the pair was arrested early Tuesday after receiving a complaint that the girl had been raped east of Niles on Thompson road in Cass county's Howard township late Monday night.

Palisades Shut Down By Storm

JACKSON, Mich. (AP) — Consumers Power Co.'s Palisades nuclear generating plant was shut down late Tuesday when a protective relay system on the transmission system was tripped during a storm, the utility announced today.

Officials said the storm did not damage the plant, which will be out of service for several days.

Consumers officials said while the plant is down, the company will perform several routine maintenance functions on equipment at the facility.

Rape Conviction Overturned

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state Court of Appeals has overturned a rape conviction because improper evidence about a tracking dog was allowed in the trial.

The court reversed the Detroit Recorder's Court conviction of Carl Norwood of forcible rape because there was no evidence the dog used was reliable in tracking humans in non-training situations.

The dog was used to track the scent to within two houses of the defendant's residence. Norwood was sentenced to 5-10 years in prison.

The case was remanded to Recorder's Court for another trial.

By TOM SAWYER
Staff Writer

A Benton township man escaped serious injury Tuesday when a piece of well drilling equipment he was standing near was apparently struck by lightning near his home.

Roy Rodgers, 48, route 4, box 481, Benton Center road, was treated for shock and released from Mercy hospital after the 6:30 p.m. incident.

Jackie In Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis and Thomas Hoving, director of New York City's Metropolitan Museum of Art, has arrived in Leningrad today to discuss an exchange of art exhibits with Leningrad's Hermitage museum, the U.S. Consulate in Leningrad said.

Rodgers said he was helping pick up tools around the well digging equipment owned by a friend, Wesley Campbell of Campbell Well drilling. He said he had a wrench in his hand when he saw a blue flash. He said he woke up about 15 feet away.

A neighbor, Mrs. Lucy Cantrell, reported Rodgers literally

flew through the air. The incident occurred across the road from Rodgers' home at the residence of Robert J. Hocker, 476 Benton Center road.

Rodgers reported he felt no pain at the time of the accident, but said today had a headache and ached all over his body. He is self-employed as an antenna installer and repairman.

Lebanon Shelling Continues

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Heavy shelling today delayed the evacuation of wounded from the Tal Zaatar refugee camp and the establishment of a buffer zone manned by Arab League peace troops between the warring Christian and Moslem sectors of Beirut. The Red Cross assembled a 15-truck convoy for the trip into the besieged Palestinian refugee camp on the southeast side of Beirut. But an hour after a temporary cease-fire was scheduled to take effect, there was heavy shelling along the convoy's route. One Red Cross official said an observation team near Tal Zaatar reported "shells falling like rain on the camp."

Cass Metro Unit's Last Raid Nets 10 Suspects

By JOHN DYE
Staff Writer

CASSOPOLIS — What could have been the last raid staged by the Cass county sheriff's department metro narcotics unit yesterday netted 10 of 14 people sought on drug sale charges, the department said today.

One of the ten, Richard Ray Baker Jr., 22, of East Division street, Dowagiac, was identified by Sheriff James Northrop as the brother of Dan Baker, a sheriff's department marine division deputy.

The sheriff's department reported that two more named in the warrants, 16-year-old Dowagiac boys, were being held by Daytona Beach, Fla. authorities.

Yesterday's morning raid netted nine arrests in Cass and Berrien counties, as officers from the sheriff's department and four other Cass county agencies served the arrest warrants.

A tenth man was arrested in neighboring Indiana's Elkhart county, the sheriff's department said.

The men arrested in Cass county and the charges listed on the warrants were:

Baker, delivery of marijuana; Billy Douglas Alexander, 18, route 2, Decatur, delivery of marijuana; Todd Taylor, 19, Orchard street, Dowagiac, delivery of cocaine; Michael Livingston, 19, 505 Main street, Dowagiac, delivery of marijuana; Paul Swank, 24, 518 South Third street, Niles, delivery of marijuana, and Fred Wares, 24, Vandalia, delivery of marijuana.

Also, Scott Kurzhall, 18, route 4, Dowagiac, delivery of marijuana; Robert Grant, 22, delivery of marijuana; Richard Ray Baker, Jr., 22, East Division street, Dowagiac, delivery of marijuana, and Roger Smith, 18, route 7, Dowagiac, delivery of PCP.

The department said that John Judd, route 3, Granger, Ind., was being held in the Elkhart county jail, Elkhart, Ind., for Michigan authorities on a charge of delivery of barbiturates after refusing to waive extradition to Michigan.

Eight of the nine arrested yesterday appeared in District court in Cassopolis yesterday and had their cases continued until July 27 at 9 a.m. Alexander was scheduled to be arraigned later today in district court.

The sheriff's department reported this morning that all eight who appeared in court yesterday were released on personal recognizance bonds or bonds ranging from $300 to $500.

Sheriff's James Northrop said yesterday that the raid will probably be the last staged in the county "for some time" because the county board of commissioners has refused to continue the narcotics unit after July 27.

Taking a swipe at the Democrat-controlled board of commissioners, Northrop, a Republican, charged that a vote earlier this month not to continue the unit was "politically motivated...a partisan vote... penny-wise and pound-foolish."

Northrop said that the cost of continuing the unit until this fall would have been $19,932. He claimed that unemployment benefits for three narcotics officers who will have to be laid off and pay owed officers in the unit will amount to $12,000.

Citing that all of yesterday's warrants were felony charges for the alleged sale of drugs, Northrop said the shutdown of the unit comes at a time, "... when we felt the unit was reaching full effectiveness."

The decision not to continue the unit could surface again tonight at a special meeting of the board.

Petitions asking the board to reconsider its decision and fund the narcotics unit may be presented to the board of commissioners then.

COLOMA — Thieves apparently became frightened and hastily fled a medical center building here, leaving behind a trash container they had filled with drugs, according to Coloma township police.

Officers said the drugs were found in the trash container yesterday in the Tala Medical center on Red Arrow highway and were apparently left behind by intruders who broke in between 6 p.m. Monday and 8 a.m. Tuesday.

The thieves entered the building by drilling a hole in the roof. Investigating officers said the thieves had ransacked the entire building, filling the trash container with drugs. They departed through the front door after ripping the lock off, leading officers to speculate that they had apparently been frightened off by something.

An estimated $65 in cash was reported missing from the building which houses the offices of Dr. Rolando Fajardo.

Step-Up In Surveillance

MIDLAND, Mich. (AP) — Federal surveillance of Consumers Power Co.'s unfinished nuclear plant at Midland will be stepped up because of construction errors, a U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission spokesman said. The construction errors included failure to install steel reinforcing bars in the concrete walls of the plant's control room building, the spokesman said. He added that the plant might be vulnerable to "certain earthquake forces" if it does not install the required steel bars. Stephen Howell, Consumers vice president for engineering and construction, said the utility had detected the errors itself and reported them to the NRC.

Reds Fight Polish Discontent

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Beset by discontent among the workers, Poland's Communist government is laboring to reverse setbacks to its popularity and authority. Sentences of three to 10 years in prison given 13 workers in Warsaw and the industrial city of Radom underline a determined bid not to let governmental control slip. The six men in Radom were convicted of taking part in protests last month against proposed price increases that turned into citywide riots. The seven men in Warsaw were convicted of blocking a railway line and derailing a train in protest against the price rises.

Audit Backs Bangor School Chief's Firing

By ALAN AREND
Staff Writer

BANGOR — An audit report of the Bangor school district conducted by the state treasury department has generally substantiated charges made by Paul French against former school superintendent Howard Beyer.

In the audit's final comments and recommendations revealed yesterday it was stated "It is our position that Mr. Howard Beyer used his position to show favorable treatment to his family with regard to employment and compensation paid."

The audit also stated "We were informed by Mr. Howard Beyer that wives' travel expenses for certain conventions were included in travel expense reports submitted for payment. The attorney general has ruled that such expenses are a personal matter and cannot be paid for with public money."

It was also recommended that the school board should follow the procedures set forth in board policy and board policy should be updated.

The 16-page audit report covered the treasury department's examination of the Bangor public schools and Van Buren Intermediate school district books and records from Jan. 1, 1970 through May 14, 1976.

The audit report was signed by Allison Green, state treasurer, on June 29, and forwarded to Dr. John Porter, state department of education director, at that time. It was sent to the Bangor school administration "about a week ago," according to Fred Stap, acting superintendent.

Yesterday, when it became known that a copy of the document was in the school board's hands this newspaper was told by Stap it would not be allowed to see the report until the board had contacted its attorneys.

Otto Watkins Jr., board president, was out of town in Traverse City, according to his wife, Mrs. Mildred Royal, board vice president, said she had seen a copy of the audit but had no comment at this time; Mrs. Peggy Phillips, board secretary, was at work and unavailable.

Dr. Frederick Durham, board trustee, said he's been on vacation for the past three weeks and didn't have a copy of the audit. "If they've (the school board) been holding it up from public view, then I plan to resign," he said yesterday.

This newspaper eventually was able to view a copy of the audit through the help of State Rep. Bela Kennedy (R-Bangor), who was dismayed over the fact that he had not been told the audit had been completed nearly three weeks ago.

Allegations one, two and three, were investigated by the governor's department of management and budget and allegations 4 through 17 by the state treasury department.

French's charges were made last year and resulted in the department of education

Beyer's Answer — Says board's action was within the provisions of the bonding proposal in that the money was expended for uniforms for students occupying the building for which the bond proposal was voted and, as such, were part of the equipment of the building.

Allegation 6: A number of items were purchased and paid from the building and site fund that do not appear to have been advertised for competitive bids and additional insurance was school is in session to work more than a combined school and work week of 48 hours.

Allegation 8: That Bruce Beyer was paid during the summer of 1974 from $104 to $153 bi-weekly directly from Bangor school system, while during the same summer was paid $550 under Title-1 summer program as a 'teachers aide' or custodian under the Migrant program.

Findings — Payroll records maintained at Van Buren Intermediate and Bangor high school indicated the following: Bruce Beyer earned $2,260.62 from the Bangor school district and $550 from intermediate district during 1974. He was classified as a teachers aide and application was for custodian. He worked more hours than law would allow at various times.

Allegation 9: In summer of 1975 Bruce Beyer was paid by the Bangor school $280 for a reported 80 hours every two weeks while at the same time he was paid $200 bi-weekly directly by the intermediate school district as a Title-1 summer custodian and the federal Migrant program paid the Bangor school $800 for his services as a custodian.

Findings — For the two week periods ending July 3, 1975 and July 18, 1975, Bruce Beyer received said checks from each district. This would mean an average work week of 80 hours for the two mentioned pay periods. Again this is contrary to the law.

Beyer's Answer — He has no knowledge of any monies spent by the school board from the 1965 building and site construction fund for items which, under state law, require approval of the department of education and had requested the present school board to furnish him with detailed information concerning such alleged expenditures.

Allegation 7: Beyer's son, Bruce, while a student, was apparently permitted to work and/or be paid for hours in excess of that permitted by state law.

Findings — Based on payroll earnings records, "we concur that Bruce Beyer was paid for more than 20 hours work while attending school which is contrary to" law which states student between 16-17 shall not be permitted during period impossible to attend school full time and work that many hours. Beyer said obviously the records are in error and he assumes the additional payment was for hours which had been accumulated during previous employment and had not been paid for, but has been unable to

In the official minutes of Oct. 13, 1975, we could find no mention of either the hourly rate of pay or 'grandfather' clause for Beverly Beyer.

Beyer's Answer — He denies the allegations of charge No. 11 in their entirety.

Allegation 12 — In February

1976 on the expense report submitted by Beyer.

Beyer's Answer — He admits the allegation of the charge with respect to receipt of a refund of $45.29, but says the sum is not referred to in any school records for the reason that it was used by him to defray meal expenses for a party of six on the trip home from Dallas by car. He said the money was received and expended with knowledge and approval of board president and secretary.

Allegation 14 and 16: Piper using school equipment did district's snow plowing for the school in 1975 and prior periods and was paid $608.75 in 1975 at a higher rate than was currently paid some full time custodial and maintenance employees. Also that fertilizer for school use was purchased from Piper.

Findings — Piper as board president did perform the snow plowing service during 1975 and prior years. Piper did sell fertilizer to the school district in the fall of 1974.

"We question the policy of the school district in doing business with any board member even though they would not be considered having a conflict of interest under current state statutes."

Beyer submitted no answer to allegations 14 and 16.

Allegation 15: Beyer repeatedly used cash advances from the school revolving fund contrary to written board policy.

Findings — "Several advances were made out of the revolving fund and later shown on travel reports when furnished. This is in violation of board policy."

Beyer did not respond to allegation 15.

Allegation 17: Jim Beyer was placed on Title-1 summer program in custodial services at an hourly rate of $2.29 in the summers of 1970, 1971, 1972 and 1973 when Gary Lowder was hired by the school as a custodian June-September, 1973 at $1.90 per hour.

Findings — "The facts of this allegation are correct."

Beyer submitted no response for allegation 17.

Other findings of the audit report were stated as follows:

"Travel expense reports submitted by board members and

PAUL FRENCH Allegations confirmed

the superintendent of schools were incomplete, lacking in detail of miles traveled and documentation of motel and food bills. Wives expenses were included in travel expense reports and reimbursed to board members and the superintendent."

"Procedures for purchasing miscellaneous supplies were lacking in control. School personnel could charge supplies without written request being submitted."

Kitchen Damaged By Blaze

SOUTH HAVEN — Fire heavily damaged the kitchen of the Alberta Stebbins residence, 402 Pearl Street, last night, according to South Haven firemen.

An electric coffee pot is believed to have caused the fire which damaged cabinets, a wall and the ceiling.

The fire was reported at 9:05 p.m. The rest of the Stebbins residence and an upstairs apartment suffered smoke damage.

The loss was estimated at $1,500.

Berrien Sells $5 Million Bond Issue

By SCOTT WILLIAMSON
Staff Writer

The Berrien county board of public works (BPW) Tuesday sold $5 million in bonds to expand Lake township's water system which will enable 90 per cent of the township to receive potable water and fire protection.

The bonds were sold to John Nuveen and Associates of Chicago on the firm's low bid of 6.3689 per cent. That rate means the township will pay $4,651,812 in interest during the 22-year issue of the bonds which will finance installation of water mains.

Robert Feather, chairman of the BPW, said Lake township officials had told him they were satisfied with the rate. There were four bids on the project, all from Chicago-area companies, with the highest bid at 6.4139 per cent.

The project, which will entail installation of some 45 miles of water mains, will serve about 90 per cent of the township, BPW Director Robert Barnes said previously. The BPW in May tentatively awarded the construction contract to Woodruff & Sons Construction Co. of Michigan City for its low bid of $3,423,283.

The construction bid was about $400,000 less than anticipated, and the BPW hopes to formally sign and award the construction contract at its July 28 meeting. Barnes, who is on vacation, previously said construction could begin soon after bonds were sold, with completion expected in about a year. Other costs covered by the bond issue are engineering and fees.

The project must be entirely financed locally, since no state or federal monies are available for water projects, according to the BPW.

Lake township's present $4 million water system serves less than 50 customers, Barnes stated before, with the water plant pumping about 5,000 gallons a day, compared with a potential of 2 million gallons per day. He said the additional water mains will enable the plant to come close to its potential capacity.

The township's system will not serve the Cook nuclear plant, located in Lake township, because the nuclear plant is required to have an independent water system.

Accused Slayer Claims Self Defense

By DENNIS COGSWELL

ALLEGAN — Claiming a case of self-defense, an attorney for Richard Frederick Dixon admitted in circuit court here yesterday that his client shot and killed South Haven city Patrolman Michael McAllister last Jan. 9.

"Dixon never denied that he shot and killed Michael McAllister," said Atty. Michael Deutsch in his opening statement. "We're not going to try and plant any doubt of that in the jury's mind...the issue is what were the circumstances."

MICHAEL McALLISTER
South Haven Officer

Deutsch added that the defense plans to show what was going through Dixon's mind at the time, and that "the only thing he wanted was to be left alone to live there (South Haven)."

"If you listen to what he says," the lawyer continued, "I believe you will find the defendant acted in self-defense, or in circumstances, including provocation by the officer, which constitute manslaughter."

The surprise statement came during the first day of testimony in Dixon's trial on a charge of first degree murder. Selection of the jury took the first two weeks of the proceedings.

Dixon also faces federal air piracy charges in connection with a 1971, airplane skyjacking. The plane was forced to fly to Cuba after taking off from Detroit.

Shortly after his arrest, Dixon was described as a communist agent by Allegan Sheriff Robert Whitcomb. Whitcomb's comments came while Dixon was being held in the county jail awaiting court proceedings.

In testimony yesterday, a South Haven policeman described seeing McAllister shot to death and other officers testified as to the circumstances surrounding Dixon's capture at a nearby house.

McAllister, 39, was a five-year veteran of the force when slain. He had a wife and five children.

Lt. Larry Bild of the South Haven city police said that about 2:45 a.m. on Jan. 9 he was on patrol when he was dispatched to investigate a report of gunshots near Baseline road and North Shore drive at South Haven's northern city limit.

Bild said that as he proceeded north on North Shore drive he saw the tailights of McAllister's car ahead, then lost sight briefly when the car rounded a curve near Washington avenue. Bild said he then saw McAllister, now just inside Allegan county's Casco township, start to get out of the car and approach a man standing to the side.

As McAllister moved around behind the man as if to frisk him, Bild said he saw the man turn to his left. There was then a muffled gunshot, and McAllister stumbled backwards, the officer related. Two more shots were fired, with McAllister falling to the ground, Bild said.

Bild said that at the time, he had just pulled his cruiser up behind McAllister's, and that the assailant "turned toward me and pointed a gun at me."

The officer said he then ducked down on to the seat of the car, and by the time he had gotten his gun out, the man had fled on foot.

Bild said he was later unable to positively identify the man he saw as Dixon, 38, Detroit. He did say though that the man was wearing a dark coat similar to one later found near tracks followed by police to where Dixon was captured.

But under cross-examination by Deutsch, Bild admitted that his testimony at an earlier preliminary examination had made no mention of a gun.

"All you saw was him turn, hesitate, then run away, isn't that correct?" Deutsch questioned.

"That's correct," Bild replied.

Deutsch also got Bild to admit that he may have been as much as 200 yards away when he first saw McAllister getting out of the car.

Tpr. James Blair of the South Haven post, who was dispatched to the scene soon after the shooting, said he found a clip for an automatic pistol and three shells near McAllister's car.

He said he later followed footprints from the car to the William Decker home where Dixon had been captured. On the way, he said he found a dark coat, and later while backtracking, discovered a 9-mm. Browning automatic pistol.

He also said that when he first saw Dixon, he had a swollen right eye and cut on his forehead.

Troopers Michael Boone and Ronald Olson and a South Haven policeman all gave similar descriptions of Dixon's capture.

Patrolman Carl Holzmann, who was off duty when the shooting occurred, said he was in his apartment near the scene when he heard gunshots. He said he decided to drive around to see what was happening when he saw an ambulance on the way to pick up McAllister.

With troopers Roger Gentry and Lawrence House of the Paw Paw post, and Boone and Olson of the Benton Harbor post, he said he followed tracks in the snow to the basement of the Decker home.

Entering the basement with House, Holzmann said they located Dixon standing against the wall of a small room. Holzmann said they repeatedly ordered him to put his hands up, but that Dixon kept putting them down to his side.

Olson testified that as he grabbed Dixon's right arm to handcuff him, Dixon cocked his left arm. Olson said he then struck Dixon in either the shoulder or face, knocking him down.

Under cross-examination by Hollis Hill, Dixon's other defense attorney, Olson admitted that he said in an earlier hearing the blow to Dixon had landed on the shoulder.

The question of who inflicted the injuries to Dixon's face is critical, because the defense is expected to claim in future testimony that Dixon was provoked by a beating inflicted by McAllister.

Beyer's Answer — Says board's action was within the provisions of the bonding proposal in that the money was expended for uniforms for students occupying the building for which the bond proposal was voted and, as such, were part of the equipment of the building.

Findings — Payroll records maintained at Van Buren Intermediate and Bangor high school indicated the following: Bruce Beyer earned $2,280.62 from the Bangor school district and $550 from intermediate district during 1974. He was classified as a teachers aide and application was for custodian. He worked more hours than law would allow at various times.

Allegation 9: In summer of 1975 Bruce Beyer was paid by the Bangor school $280 for a reported 80 hours every two weeks while at the same time he was paid $200 bi-weekly directly by the intermediate school district as a Title-1 summer custodian and the federal Migrant program paid the Bangor school $600 for his services as a custodian.

Findings — For the two week periods ending July 3, 1975 and July 18, 1975, Bruce Beyer received said checks from each district. This would mean an average work week of 60 hours for the two mentioned pay periods. Again this is contrary to the law.

Beyer's Answer to 7, 8 and 9 — He admits he knew son was being paid for both jobs, but denies it was impossible to perform the duties and work the number of hours which appear on his son's payroll account and that said hours were worked by his son. He says his son was hired only after all other applicants had been given jobs. He admits that similar procedures took place in prior years with reference to his sons, Bruce and James.

Beyer's, according to the report, admitted a pay check was issued to his son, Bruce, for working 127½ hours and that said check indicates that these hours were worked during the period Sept. 14-28, 1973 and that it would have been virtually impossible to attend school full time and work that many hours. Beyer said obviously the records are in error and he assumes the additional payment was for hours which had been accumulated during previous employment and had not been paid for, but has been unable to find any school records to substantiate his belief. Beyers says he never personally inspected payroll checks before they were issued as his signature is affixed by a plate and the checks issued by the bookkeeper. He says his son has no recollection of the incident nor is he able to explain how it occurred.

Allegation 10: In 1970 Joelyn Beyers was placed on the Title-1 summer program by Bangor and classified as a teacher at a rate of $5 per hour the same hourly rate as all certified teachers on the summer program, when she had not yet been issued a provisional teaching certificate.

Findings — "We were not able to locate Joelyn's certification for the substitute permit," however after reviewing her grade transcript are satisfied that she was qualified to have a substitute permit.

Beyer's Answer — He avers, that it was not his responsibility to require formal certifications and that his daughter had completed 92 semester hours credit at the time in question, whereas only 60 hours were required for certification. He said it was not customary to require formal certification.

Allegation 11: That the salary of Beyers wife, Beverly, was established by the Intermediate board, when it was not and her rate of pay was 3½ times the normal teachers aide pay under Title-1.

Findings — Mrs. Beyer was hired as an instructor in the field of music by the Intermediate school district under Title-1. "Our examination revealed that the pay and qualifications were set forth by the Intermediate school district.

1975 and the fall of 1974, Mrs. Beyer was paid by both the Bangor and Intermediate school district her regular check even though she was attending conferences with her husband, while another teacher's aide, Harriet Gough, did not receive pay from the intermediate district.

Findings — "A review of the payroll records at both school districts indicated Beverly Beyer received her bi-weekly pay checks even though she was at school conventions with her husband. We could find nothing in the records where the intermediate school district was notified to withhold payments during the convention."

Beyer's Answer — He claims he notified Elmer VanDyke, then superintendent of intermediate district, that his wife would be absent for a week to attend convention with intention VanDyke would notify proper person so payroll deduction would be made. Feels if it was not done, it was VanDyke's responsibility and not his. Beyer said he told his assistant Fred Stap that another employee would also be absent on vacation during the same period, but denies any discussion as to whether or not there should be a deduction from the other employees pay.

Allegation 13: In February, 1975, a refund of the unused portion of a Bangor school 'cash advance' to the Holiday Inn, Dallas Tex., was paid by the motel to Beyer. There is no evidence that this money was ever accounted for on the expense account.

Findings — There was no mention of the cash refund totaling $45.29 from the Holiday Inn on the expense report submitted by Beyer.

Beyer's Answer — He admits the allegation of the charge with respect to receipt of a refund of $45.29, but says the sum is not referred to in any school records for the reason that it was used by him to defray meal expenses for a party of six on the trip home from Dallas by car. He said the money was received and expended with knowledge and approval of board president and secretary.

Allegation 14 and 16: Piper using school equipment did district's snow plowing for the school in 1975 and prior periods and was paid $608.75 in 1975 at a higher rate than was currently paid some full time custodial and maintenance employees. Also that fertilizer for school use was purchased from Piper.

Findings — Piper as board president did perform the snow plowing service during 1975 and prior years. Piper did sell fertilizer to the school district in the fall of 1974.

"We question the policy of the school district in doing business with any board member even though they would not be considered having a conflict of interest under current state statutes."

Beyer submitted no answer to allegations 14 and 16.

Allegation 15: Beyer repeatedly used cash advances from the school revolving fund contrary to written board policy.

Findings — "Several advances were made out of the revolving fund and later shown on travel reports when furnished. This is in violation of board policy."

Beyer did not respond to allegation 15.

Allegation 17: Jim Beyer was placed on Title-1 summer program in custodial services at an hourly rate of $2.29 in the summers of 1970, 1971, 1972 and 1973 when Gary Lowder was hired by the school as a custodian June-September, 1975 at $1.90 per hour.

Findings — "The facts of this allegation are correct."

Beyer submitted no response for allegation 17.

Troopers Michael Boone and Ronald Olson and a South Haven policeman all gave similar descriptions of Dixon's capture.

Patrolman Carl Holzmann, who was off duty when the shooting occurred, said he was in his apartment near the scene when he heard gunshots. He said he decided to drive around to see what was happening when he saw an ambulance on the way to pick up McAllister.

With troopers Roger Gentry and Lawrence House of the Paw Paw post, and Boone and Olson of the Benton Harbor post, he said he followed tracks in the snow to the basement of the Decker home.

Entering the basement with House, Holzmann said they located Dixon standing against the wall of a small side room. Holzmann said they repeatedly ordered him to put his hands up, but that Dixon kept putting them down to his side.

Olson testified that as he grabbed Dixon's right arm to handcuff him, Dixon cocked his left arm. Olson said he then struck Dixon in either the shoulder or face, knocking him down.

Under cross-examination by Hollis Hill, Dixon's other defense attorney, Olson admitted that he said in an earlier hearing the blow to Dixon had landed on the shoulder.

The question of who inflicted the injuries to Dixon's face is critical, because the defense is expected to claim in future testimony that Dixon was provoked by a beating inflicted by McAllister.

NADIA RETURNS TONIGHT

U.S. Takes Medal Lead

By BOB GREEN
AP Sports Writer
MONTREAL (AP) — America's matchless male swimmers, chief harvesters of a medal crop that has put the United States on top in the XXI Olympic Games, must yield center stage again tonight.

Nadia will be back.

The Yankee swimmers, unbeaten and perhaps unbeatable, will be seeking their sixth and seventh gold medals in as many events. They're heavily favored in the 800-meter freestyle relay. And they had three of the four best times in qualifying for the 100 butterfly.

A world record, becoming something of a routine occurrence, in the relay is a distinct possibility. But the world-wide television audience of a billion people may have to wait for the reruns to see it.

Nadia will be back.

And when tiny Nadia Comaneci appears, the rest of the Olympics all but halt, waiting and watching with the happy anticipation of another perfect performance from the pony-tailed Romanian schoolgirl who has captured the imagination of the world.

The 4-foot-11, 88-pound package of perfect perfection, holder of the only three perfect 10 scores ever awarded in the Olympics, goes against the Russians in the finals of the women's all-around individual gymnastics.

Five gold medals will be awarded: uneven parallel bars, balance beam, floor exercise, vault and all-around. Nadia's chief opposition will be the Russians.

Ludmila Tourischeva, who leads in floor exercise and trails Nadia by only four-tenths of a point in the over-all, Nellie Kim, who leads in the vault, and Olga Korbut, the darling of the 1972 Games.

It very well could be the highlight of the entire Olympics.

The highlight so far has been the complete domination of their sport by the American men and the East German women swimmers. Both are unbeaten.

And the gold medals acquired by John Hencken, Santa Barbara, Calif., in the 100 breaststroke and Brian Goodell, Mission Viejo, Calif., in the 1,500 freestyle — both in world record time — boosted the United States into the medal lead with seven gold, six silver and three bronze after three days of competition.

East Germany had a medal count of 6-4-4. Russia stood at 4-2-1. Japan, West Germany and

MONTREAL (AP) — "It taught us a lesson," said Erneruend of Tennessee. "Don't take anything for granted."

"This definitely is going to make us a better club," said Notre Dame's Adrian Dantley, who tipped in a stray shot Tuesday with 33 seconds remaining to give the United States the lead for good in a 45-44 shootout with Puerto Rico in men's Olympic basketball competition.

Butch Lee, a product of playground basketball in New York City who wasn't invited to the U.S. Olympic trials, dealt his home country misery throughout, penetrating a zone defense for a game-high 35 points that almost produced a startling Puerto Rican victory.

"It was a great game for a person who didn't care who won and could sit back and see some offensive show," said U.S. Coach Dean Smith of North Carolina.

Puerto Rico shot 64 per cent from the field and the Americans shot 58 per cent.

In other action Tuesday, Italy won on a forfeit from Egypt — which withdrew from the Olympics — and Drazen Dalagic scored 22 points, leading Yugoslavia past Czechoslovakia 90-81. The Uni-

Jennifer Chandler, 17, Lincoln, Ala., had to overcome some biased marks from East German judge Heinz Gold — who heavily favored Christa Kohler of his country — to win the women's three-meter springboard.

"I didn't really notice it," she said, then added: "I don't think he meant to do that. Sometimes politics gets in whether you want it to or not."

But the bias was obvious. The crowd booed it. Toward the latter stages of the competition even the other judges peered angrily at the East German. He gave her the lowest point total of the seven judges on seven of her 10 dives. And he gave the East German girl the highest or next to highest mark on all 10.

Miss Chandler won with 506.19 points to 469.41 for Miss Kohler. Cynthia McIngvale of Dallas won the bronze with 466.83.

MONTREAL (AP) — They're in for a billion dollar hangover when the party's over. That's how much more the Olympic Games are going to cost Canadians than expected.

And many are saying "never again."

But for the next two weeks anyway, from the Arctic circle to the Great Lakes, and in the cities and prairies in between, Canadians seem to have put aside their quarreling about the controversial preparations and burgeoning costs of the Games, and have embarked upon a nationwide Olympic binge.

"From the moment they lit the Olympic flame I was hooked," said one wide-eyed French-Canadian secretary in the Games city of Montreal. An Associated Press telephone check indicated her excitement was the prevailing feeling throughout the world's second-largest country in area.

In the tiny Eskimo settlement of Tuktoyaktuk at the edge of the Arctic Sea, Dave Anderson, the proprietor of the Igloo Inn, said half of the community was out catching white food whales in the bay. "The other half are crammed in my restaurant looking at the television games. None of us here had ever seen some of the sports like gymnastics before. Now we all love them."

Truck drivers crammed the favorite bar of a newspaperman in Winnipeg, capital of the prairie province of Manitoba, chatting apparently knowledgeably about the Russian fencing star who cheated. "I'm really amazed. These guys usually think anything outside ice hockey is for girls," the editor said.

Informants in the Atlantic and Maritime provinces in the East, and British Columbia in the far West, reported similar fascination with the Games. Newspapers are splashing the Olympic story daily on front pages and have increased their sales. The Games also are dominating radio.

A Montreal columnist marvelled Tuesday: "Who could have anticipated the Games' power to gladden and inspire a country?"

Harsh reality is expected to return when the Games end in around 10 days.

The billion dollar cost overrun may have to be paid by the Canadian taxpayer rather than only the host city of Montreal and its mother province of Quebec.

Even the Montreal secretary who was inspired by the lighting of the flame, admitted, "When they snuff it out, I'm sure we'll all forget the glory and get back to arguing about the costs and corruption again."

Southwestern Michigan baseball players — both hitters and pitchers — are leaving their marks in the minor leagues, according to the latest statistics.

After a terrible start, Benton Harbor's Dave Machemer has gone on a hitting spree and is now batting a hefty .303 for Boston's Red Sox farm club Rhode Island of the Triple-A International League. In 119 at bats, he has 36 hits, scored 23 runs, hit two doubles and has 10 RBIs.

Another Benton Harbor product, Don Hopkins, is still up around the .300 mark in batting. In 194 at bats, Hopkins has 58 hits, 28 runs scored, hit seven doubles, two triples and has driven in 13 runs. His batting average is .299.

MONTREAL (AP) — Two Olympic basketball powers — the United States and Yugoslavia — will clash tonight as ABC-TV's coverage of the Summer Games continue.

Both teams have been tabbed as possible medal winners.

Also tonight, Romania's Nadia Comaneci and Olga Korbut of the Soviet Union will compete for the individual gymnastics gold medals. Miss Korbut, now 21 years old, became the darling of the 1972 Games in Munich, while the 14-year-old Romanian scored unprecedented perfect 10s in three phases of the team gymnastics competition.

ABC's coverage of the Games will run from 7:30 to 11 p.m., EDT, plus a 15-minute wrapup at 11:30 p.m.

Events that will be televised won't be known until shortly before the broadcast because much of the network's coverage is live. However, the U.S.-Yugoslavia men's basketball game is scheduled to begin at 9 p.m.

Top swimming finals scheduled today include the 100-meter butterfly where Joe Bottom of Santa Clara, Calif., will battle East Germany's Roger Pytel for a gold medal, the men's 800-meter freestyle relay and women's 100-meter backstroke and 200-meter breaststroke.

Plangger's Splits

CLEAR LAKE, Iowa — Plangger's upped its current road trip record to 6-3 by splitting a doubleheader with Butternut Break of Clear Lake Tuesday night.

Rick Plangger got the win in the first game as the locals triumphed 4-2. But Butternut bounced back to take the second game 5-4.

Vick Gillette and Nick Shushman provided the power in the first game. Gillette hit a solo home run in the fifth inning and Shushman blasted one out of the park with one man on in the sixth inning.

Rick helped his own cause in the seventh when he singled in Ron Mandarino who had walked.

Rick Plangger and Doug Wymer each had two hits for Plangger's in the second game. The local team had the bases loaded in the third and fourth innings but couldn't push across a run. Rick Plangger took the loss.

Plangger's is now 57-26 on the season. The team travels to Makoto, Minn. for a doubleheader today.

East Germany had a medal count of 6-4-4. Russia stood at 4-2-1. Japan, West Germany and Bulgaria each have one gold.

Jennifer Chandler, 17, Lincoln, Ala., had to overcome some biased marks from East German judge Heinz Gold — who heavily favored Christa Kohler of his country — to win the women's three-meter springboard.

"I didn't really notice it," she said, then added: "I don't think he meant to do that. Sometimes politics gets in whether you want it to or not."

Miss Chandler won with 506.19 points to 469.41 for Miss Kohler. Cynthia McIngvale of Dallas won the bronze with 466.83.

Don Haldeman, a 29-year-old tool and die maker from Souderton, Pa., gave the Americans another gold, scoring 190 of 200 in skeet shooting. He was followed by Armando Silva Marques of Portugal and Ubaldo Baldi of Italy.

Goodell, 17, was timed in 15 minutes, 2.40 seconds for the punishing 1,500 freestyle, more than four seconds faster than his old world mark and an astonishing 52 seconds faster than the winning time in the 1972 Olympics. Bobby Hackett, another teenager from Yonkers, N.Y., took the silver in 15:03.91 and Steve Holland of Australia was third.

Hencken's 1:03.11 in the breaststroke represented his third world record in two days. David Wilkie of Great Britain was second in 1:03.43 and Arvidas Luozaitis of Russia third in 1:04.23.

The U.S. forces suffered two major disappointments, survived a scare and got a surprise lift from a wrestler, Pete Lee, a 343-pound heavyweight on the Greco-Roman team. Lee, from Muncie, Ind., pinned 1972 silver medalist Alexandr Tomov of Bulgaria in the opening round of competition in what American coach Vaughn Hitchcock called "the upset of the Olympics, believe me."

One disappointment came from the eight-oared shell, which finished third in the repechage heat and thus was eliminated — for the first time in history — from the finals.

"There's a time in every race," said coxswain David Weinberg of New York, "when you have to decide whether you want to win badly enough. We let it slip away. There's no excuse. We just didn't have it."

Shirley Babashoff, Fountain Valley, Calif., declined to talk with reporters after she had failed to break the East German's hold on women's swimming. Petra Thumer won in world record time of 4:09.89. Miss Babashoff also broke the old record at 4:10.46. Shanon Smith of Canada was third.

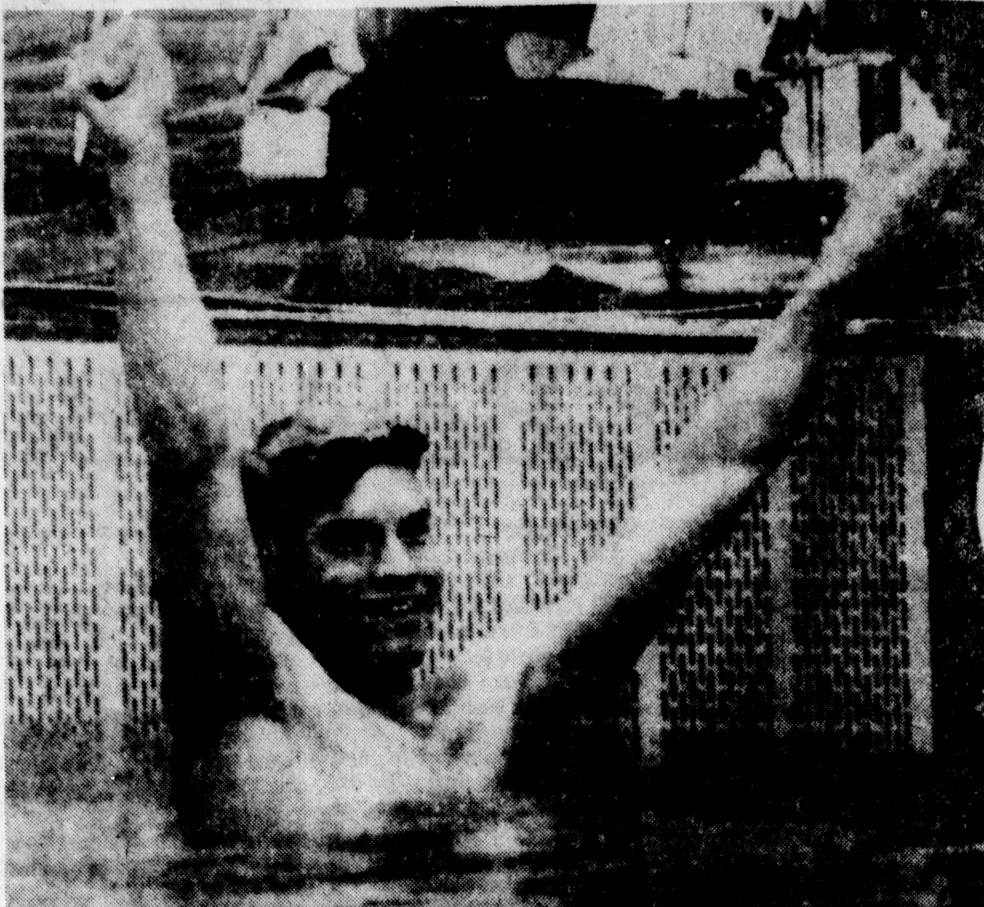

The scare, and it was a major one, was survived by the American basketball team, beaten only once in Olympic history. The Americans trailed by seven points to a longshot Puerto Rican team, powered by New York playground graduates, before pulling out a 95-94 victory on two free throws by Phil Ford.

"I never had a doubt about it," said Notre Dame's Adrian Dantley, who scored two critical baskets late in the game. "We like to think our best games are yet to come."

They may have to have a better game tonight against a big, tough Yugoslavia team.

Other medals today, in addition to the swimming and gymnastics, include three-position small bore rifle, lightweight weightlifting and foil fencing.

Japan won its fifth consecutive gold in men's team gymnastics Tuesday night, with Russia second and East Germany a distant third. In the only other medal event, Nikolai Kolesnikov of Russia took the gold in featherweight weightlifting with a combined hoist of 627 pounds. Georgi Todorov of Bulgaria, the 1974 world champion, was second with 616 pounds and Kazuma Hirai of Japan took the bronze with 605.

Americans Win Shootout With Puerto Rico

MONTREAL (AP) — "It taught us a lesson," said Ernieunfeld of Tennessee. "Don't take anything for granted."

"This definitely is going to make us a better club," said Notre Dame's Adrian Dantley, who tipped in a stray shot Tuesday with 33 seconds remaining to give the United States the lead for good in a 95-94 shootout with Puerto Rico in men's Olympic basketball competition.

Butch Lee, a product of playground basketball in New York City who wasn't invited to the U.S. Olympic trials, dealt his home country misery throughout, penetrating a zone defense for a game-high 35 points that almost produced a startling Puerto Rican victory.

"It was a great game for a person who didn't care who won and could sit back and see some offensive show," said U.S. Coach Dean Smith of North Carolina.

Puerto Rico shot 64 per cent from the field and the Americans shot 58 per cent.

In other action Tuesday, Italy won on a forfeit from Egypt — which withdrew from the Olympics — and Drazen Dalipagic scored 22 points, leading Yugoslavia past Czechoslovakia 99-81. The United States and Yugoslavia each have 2-0 records.

Puerto Rico led 78-71 with 8:35 remaining and it appeared the U.S. squad was doomed to only its second defeat in Olympic basketball history.

Chopping away steadily, the Americans finally regained the lead 83-82 four minutes later on a Dantley basket but twice fell behind by three before setting the stage for the down-to-the-wire finish. Phil Ford's 12-foot jumper with 2:13 left that gave the United States an 89-88 lead.

Neftali Rivera, who scored 26, sandwiched a pair of baskets around Quinn Buckner's jumper to give Puerto Rico a 92-91 edge with 1:06 to play. Dantley's tip-in of Buckner's stray shot provided the final lead change, and Ford iced the game by sinking a pair of free throws with eight seconds left.

Puerto Rican players were angered by a charging foul in the closing seconds and gathered around the officials to voice their disapproval when the game ended.

"I thought we controlled the tempo of the game," said Puerto Rican Coach Tom Nissalke, head coach of the National Basketball Association's Houston Rockets.

"Their players obviously are better than ours, but I told our team if they played together they could beat them on a bad night," Nissalke said.

He criticized the officials for one call which he said could have turned the game around. That was when Mitch Kupchak missed a free throw with 7:38 remaining but was allowed to shoot it again because Puerto Rico violated the free throw circle behind the shooter. Kupchak then sank two straight.

"I was so stunned by the ineptness of the call," Nissalke said. "That's a call a normal official never would have made."

Ford led U.S. scoring with 20 points. Kupchak added 17 and Dantley 16.

"I never had a doubt in my mind we would win," said Buckner, the team captain.

Eighteen All-Americans In Western Amateur Field

Eighteen college golfers who earned All-American honors for their performance during the past season will be competing for the Western Amateur championship Aug. 4-8 at the Point O' Woods Golf and Country Club.

Included in that list are four first team All-Americans who have not turned professional, headed by NCAA champion Scott Simpson of Southern California and sophomore standouts Mike Brannan of Brigham Young and Lindsey Miller of Oklahoma State.

The other first team All-

Americans — selected by Golf World magazine and the NCAA golf coaches — who is entering the Western Amateur this year is Ralph Guarasci of Ohio State.

All but Guarasci were selected by both the coaches and Golf World for first team recognition as the result of their showing in college tournaments and other amateur events during the 1975-76 season.

Surprisingly, the biggest contingent of All-Americans headed for the Point comes not from NCAA team champ Oklahoma State, but from runner-up Brigham Young.

In addition to Brannan, a chunky Californian who has won five tournaments including the recent California state amateur, Brigham Young's All-American delegation includes seniors Mike Reid and John Fought and junior Jim Nelford.

Reid was a first-team All-American in both 1974 and 1975. He was the first round leader in the 1976 U.S. Open but eventually tied teammate Fought for low amateur honors with a 72-hole score of 280.

Fought also won five individual titles in college and other amateur tournaments and was runner-up in the tough Sunnehanna Amateur.

Nelford, a native of British Columbia, is the reigning Canadian Amateur champion and was low amateur in the Canadian Open.

Oklahoma State, which sends all five members of its NCAA championship team into the Western Amateur, has three All-Americans among the quintet.

In addition to Miller, who was never out of the top 10 in any college tournament, the Cowboys are represented on the All-American roster by Jamie Gonzales and Tom Jones. Gonzales, a native of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, tied Miller for 10th place in the NCAA tourney while helping lead the Cowboys to the team title.

Jones, a former Western Junior champ and frequent visitor to Point O' Woods for the Western Am, finished second to Miller in the Big Eight Conference tournament.

Other All-Americans entered in the Western Am include Chip Beck and Tim Simpson of Georgia, Bob Byman of Wake Forest, Auburn's Buddy Gardner, Mick Soli of Northern Illinois, Peter Jacobsen and Jeff Sanders of Oregon, Stanford's Mike Peck and Allan Strange of East Tennessee State — the identical twin brother of 1974 Western Amateur champion Curtis Strange.

Byman, Jacobsen, Reid and Jones all have qualified for match play in the Western Am during the past two years, but many of the other All-Americans may be relatively unknown to fans who have followed the Western Amateur during the past five years at the Point.

But that is hardly surprising, either. Just ask U.S. Amateur champ Fred Ridley, a law student who will return for his third shot at the Western Amateur title.

"This summer there are going to be a whole bunch of guys you never heard of coming out of the woodwork," Ridley says. "I think this is going to be a transitional year."

"A couple of years ago when Ben Crenshaw and those guys turned pro, people were saying there wasn't much left...but the next year you had Curtis Strange and Jay Haas and guys like that. Now it's happening again."

There are so many young guys playing golf, there will always be new stars coming up. Just take a look at the All-Americans this year.

All-Stars Big Underdogs Facing Powerful Steelers Friday Night

CHICAGO (AP) — The College All-Stars, seeking to break an 11-game losing streak to the National Football League champions, are expected to go off as 15-point underdogs Friday night when Coach Ara Parseghian leads a glittering array of talent against the Pittsburgh Steelers.

A crowd in excess of 50,000 is expected in Soldier Field for the nationally televised contest (ABC, 9:30 p.m., EDT).

The last time an All-Star team defeated the professional champions was in 1963 when the collegians tagged the Green Bay Packers 20-17 under the reigns of Coach Otto Graham. Before that, the All-Stars pulled off a 35-19 upset of the Detroit Lions in 1958. That team, too, was coached by Graham and one of Graham's assistants was Parseghian, then head coach at Northwestern.

Parseghian went on to great heights as head coach of Notre Dame, a position he resigned at the end of the 1971 season after a 13-11 Orange Bowl victory over Alabama.

His acceptance to coach this year's All-Star team is read by some as a move to return to the ranks. But Ara has made it clear that if he does return to full time coaching, it will only be in the pros.

Parseghian will need all of his dynamic energy and organizational talents to mold a winner out of the All-Stars against the mighty Steelers who have captured two straight Super Bowls and lost only two games all of last season.

Desire, a strong, powerful running attack and an excellent defense is the way the 1976 All-Stars can be described. Whether the likes of Chuck Muncie of California, two-time Heisman Trophy winner Archie Griffin of Ohio State, hard-hitting Tony Calbreath of Missouri, Joe Washington of Oklahoma and Mike Pruitt of Purdue can dent Pittsburgh's steel curtain defense is another matter.

Quarterback could be a problem for the All-Stars. Richard Todd of Alabama, the No. 1 quarterback picked in the pro draft, did not report, leaving the job to the likes of Mike Kruczek of Boston College, Craig Penrose of San Diego State and Jeb Blount of Tulsa.

The All-Stars appear to be formidable on defense and could be capable of respectability displayed by their most recent predecessors. The All-Stars battled hard before bowing to Pittsburgh 21-14 last year. The 1974 game was canceled because of a labor dispute but in 1973 the Miami Dolphins were hard-pressed for a 14-3 victory.

Heading the defensive line are the Selmon brothers from Oklahoma, Lee Roy and Dewey. Also up front will be the likes of Steve Niehaus of Notre Dame, Mike Dawson of Arizona, Ken Novak of Purdue, James White of Oklahoma State and Chris Philpaw of Texas Southern.

The linebacking corps includes Ed Simonini of Texas A&M, Ron McCartney of Tennessee, Troy Archer of Colorado, Kim Bokamper of San Jose State, Greg Buttle of Penn State, Sam Green of Florida and Larry Gordon of Arizona State.

In the defensive secondary will be Mario Clark of Oregon, Jim Hunter of Grambling, Aaron Kyle of Wyoming, Eddie Lewis of Kansas, Mike McCoy of Colorado and Shafer Suggs of Ball State.

Their task is to stop the passing of Terry Bradshaw, the brilliant moves of Lynn Swann and the crushing runs of Franco Harris and Rocky Bleier.

Bucks Lose Baseball Coach

BUCHANAN — Don Hecklinski, Buchanan baseball coach this past season, has resigned to accept the head baseball job at South Bend Penn. high school.

Hecklinski will also be assistant varsity football coach at the South Bend school.

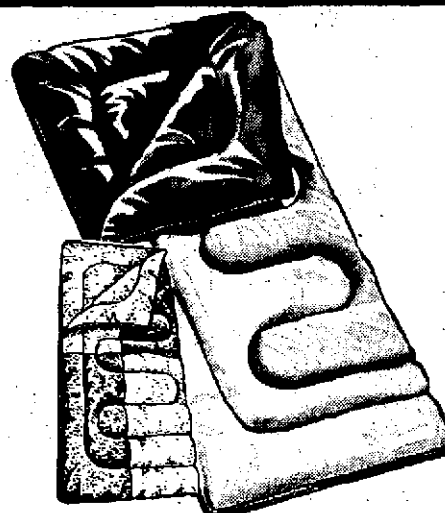

"It was simply a better job and a step up," Hecklinski said. "There was nothing hidden."

Hecklinski took over for Bill

Goodman last season and coached Buchanan to an 18-9 record, the Blossomland conference baseball crown and the Bucks first district championship.

Wallis Helps Cubs Break Losing Streak Jones Shuts Out Phillies Again

From ASSOCIATED PRESS
Everytime the Philadelphia Phillies face Randy Jones, they get that sinking feeling.
They also get that sinker ball.
The way the San Diego left-hander has been pitching against them this year, the Phillies do nothing but beat the ball into the dirt — then go back to the locker room and beat their heads against the wall.
Jones, the winningest pitcher in the major leagues, continued to dominate one of the best hitting teams in baseball with a four-hit, 3-0 victory over the Phillies Tuesday night.

That's the third straight shut-out for Jones over the Phillies — a dazzling accomplishment considering the National League East leaders have been shut out only five times all season.
Jones fattened his record to 17-4 by feeding the Phillies a steady diet of sinkers. He retired 14 Phillies on ground balls while breezing through a one-hour, 32-minute performance.

Elsewhere in the National League, the New York Mets edged the Cincinnati Reds 2-1; the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 3-2; the Chicago Cubs beat the San Francisco Giants 3-2; the Montreal Expos outscored the Atlanta Braves 4-3 and the Pittsburgh Pirates whipped the Houston Astros 9-5 in the first game of a doubleheader before dropping the second game 4-3.

New York's Jerry Koosman fired a five-hitter and won his fifth straight game by beating Cincinnati, Koosman, 11-6, got all the runs he needed in the first inning, when the Mets scored twice off Gary Nolan, 8-5. Singles by Felix Millan, John Milner and Ed Kranepool scored one run and Mike Vail's sacrifice fly brought in another.

Dave Lopes slugged his first home run of the season and Doug Rau scattered five hits as Los Angeles edged St. Louis.

The Dodgers scored twice against loser Lynn McGlothen, 8-9, in the first inning and after the Cardinals scored an unearned run in the top of the second, Lopes homered in the bottom half of the inning for the winning run.

Joe Wallis broke a scoreless tie with a two-run, bases-loaded single off Ed Halicki in the eighth inning and the Chicago Cubs ended a six-game losing streak.

Halicki, 9-12, had pitched 25 consecutive scoreless innings, the most in the National League this season, before the Cubs scored three runs in the eighth.
Chicago's Rick Reuschel, 4-7, had a no-hitter through six innings. Marty Perez broke it up with a leadoff single in the seventh.

Manny Trillo opened the Chicago eighth with a single, only the third hit off Halicki, and moved to second on a sacrifice. Mick Kelleher blooped a double to right field, with Trillo stopping at third. After Reuschel grounded out, Rick Monday was intentionally walked to load the bases.

Wallis followed with the two-run single and Bill Madlock singled home the third run.

Montreal roughed up Andy Messersmith for nine hits, including run-scoring singles by Mike Jorgensen, Jerry White and Barry Foote, and broke a five-game losing streak by beating Atlanta in a game that was delayed more than two hours by rain.

Manny Sanguillen's three-run triple keyed a six-run first inning that carried Pittsburgh past Houston in the first game of their doubleheader. The Astros won the second game on Ed Herrmann's ninth-inning sacrifice fly.

'Bird' Tops Minnesota Pigeons Fail To Halt Tiger Ace Fidyrych

"The Bird" is 21-year-old Detroit pitching sensation Mark Fidyrych, who stopped Minnesota 8-3 Tuesday night running his record to 11-2 in front of 30,245 fans.

"I guess they thought those pigeons would bring me bad luck," laughed Fidyrych, who scattered 10 hits and went the distance for the 12th time in 13 starts. "But it didn't work... it brought me good luck."

The Twins released 13 pigeons from the mound moments before the game began, hoping to jinx the flamboyant Fidyrych, who was helped notably by three Tiger double plays.

The attendance was especially noteworthy considering only 5,005 fans were on hand to watch the same two clubs Monday night on a "Beer Night" promotion at Minnesota.

"Baseball wise, he deserves everything he's getting," said outfielder Rusty Staub, who slammed a three-run homer and drove in another run with a sacrifice fly.

"He's pitched his tail off," continued Staub. "He keeps the stands filled and the defense alert and that makes it easier to play the game."

Ron LeFlore added a two-run homer and ran down a booming fly to the center field fence hit by Minnesota's Lyman Bostock in the sixth while Aurelio Rodriguez and Jason Thompson contributed hit singles.

"Those guys do two-thirds of it," said Fidyrych. "They hit and catch. I don't have to do that much. They've done it for me."

Minnesota built a 3-0 lead early in the game on an error by Tiger second baseman Pedro Garcia and RBI singles by Steve Braun and Tony Oliva, who went 4-for-4 on his 35th birthday.

"The guy can hit, that's all," explained "The Bird," about Oliva. "Four hits... that (bleep)... I won't give him anymore fastballs."

It was the second time in a month Minnesota tagged Fidyrych for three runs in a losing cause. The Twins chased the Tiger right-hander June 20 with one out in the eighth — the only time he's failed to complete a start.

"I'm honestly more impressed with his enthusiasm than his pitching," said Twins Manager Gene Mauch. "He might be the best thing that's happened to this game in a long time."

Bill Singer dropped his third straight decision and fell to 8-6. Singer checked the Tigers on two hits though five innings before being chased in the fourth on Detroit sixth.

"I'll have my day," said Singer.

Minnesota opens a two-game set with Boston tonight while Detroit heads to Chicago for successive doubleheaders tonight and Thursday.

'Bird' Tops Minnesota

Pigeons Fail To Halt Tiger Ace Fidyrych

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — "The Bird" has escaped from Minnesota with all his feathers during a visit in which he helped the Twins fill their nest with their largest crowd of the year.

"The Bird" is 21-year-old Detroit pitching sensation Mark Fidyrych, who stopped Minnesota 8-3 Tuesday night running his record to 11-2 in front of 30,245 fans.

"I guess they thought those pigeons would bring me bad luck," laughed Fidyrych, who scattered 10 hits and went the distance for the 12th time in 13 starts. "But it didn't work. It brought me good luck."

The Twins released 13 pigeons from the mound moments before the game began, hoping to jinx the flamboyant Fidyrych, who was helped notably by three Tiger double plays.

The attendance was especially noteworthy considering only 5,005 fans were on hand to watch the same two clubs Monday night on a "Beer Night" promotion at Minnesota.

"Baseball wise, he deserves everything he's getting," said outfielder Rusty Staub, who slammed a three-run homer and drove in another run with a sacrifice fly.

"He's pitched his tail off," continued Staub. "He keeps the stands filled and the defense alert and that makes it easier to play the game."

Ron LeFlore added a two-run homer and ran down a booming fly to the center field fence hit by Minnesota's Lyman Bostock in the sixth while Aurelio Rodriguez and Jason Thompson contributed RBI singles.

Wallis Helps Cubs Break Losing Streak Jones Shuts Out Phillies Again

From ASSOCIATED PRESS
Everytime the Philadelphia Phillies face Randy Jones, they get that sinking feeling.

They also get that sinker ball. The way the San Diego left-hander has been pitching against them this year, the Phillies do nothing but beat the ball into the dirt — then go back to the locker room and beat their heads against the wall.

Jones, the winningest pitcher in the major leagues, continued to dominate one of the best hitting teams in baseball with a four-hit, 3-0 victory over the Phillies Tuesday night.

That's the third straight shutout for Jones over the Phillies — a dazzling accomplishment considering the National League East leaders have been shut out only five times all season.

Jones fattened his record to 17-4 by feeding the Phillies a steady diet of sinkers. He retired 14 Phillies on ground balls while breezing through a one-hour, 32-minute performance.

Elsewhere in the National League, the New York Mets edged the Cincinnati Reds 2-1; the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 3-2; the Chicago Cubs beat the San Francisco Giants 3-2; the Montreal Expos outscored the Atlanta Braves 4-3 and the Pittsburgh Pirates whipped the Houston Astros 9-5 in the first game of a doubleheader before dropping the second game 4-3.

New York's Jerry Koosman fired a five-hitter and won his fifth straight game by beating Cincinnati. Koosman, 11-6, got all the runs he needed in the first inning when the Mets scored twice off Gary Nolan, 8-5. Singles by Felix Millan, John Milner and Ed Kranepool scored one run and Mike Vail's sacrifice fly brought in another.

Dave Lopes slugged his first home run of the season and Doug Rau scattered five hits as Los Angeles edged St. Louis.

The Dodgers scored twice against loser Lynn McGlothen, 8-9, in the first inning and after the Cardinals scored an unearned run in the top of the second, Lopes homered in the bottom half of the inning for the winning run.

Joe Wallis broke a scoreless tie with a two-run, bases-loaded single off Ed Halicki in the eighth inning and the Chicago Cubs ended a six-game losing streak.

Halicki, 9-12, had pitched 25 consecutive scoreless innings, the most in the National League this season, before the Cubs scored three runs in the eighth.

Chicago's Rick Reuschel, 9-7, had a no-hitter through six innings. Marty Perez broke it up with a leadoff single in the seventh. Manny Trillo opened the Chicago eighth with a single, only the third hit off Halicki, and moved to second on a sacrifice. Mick Kelleher blooped a double to right field, with Trillo stopping at third. After Reuschel grounded out, Rick Monday was intentionally walked to load the bases.

Wallis followed with the two-run single and Bill Madlock singled home the third run.

Montreal roughed up Andy Messersmith for nine hits, including run-scoring singles by Mike Jorgensen, Jerry White and Barry Foote, and broke a five-game losing streak by beating Atlanta in a game that was delayed more than two hours by rain.

Manny Sanguen's three-run triple keyed a six-run first inning that carried Pittsburgh past Houston in the first game of their doubleheader. The Astros won the second game on Ed Herrmann's ninth-inning sacrifice fly.

Munson Sparkles In Yankee Rally

Sox Blow 7-0 Lead In Defeat

CHICAGO (AP) — Thurman Munson rapped out a double and two singles, driving in four runs as the New York Yankees bounced back from a 7-0 deficit in the first inning Tuesday night to defeat the Chicago White Sox 14-9 in a game halted by rain in the eighth inning.

After the Sox scored seven runs in the first, the Yankees came back with seven in the second and went ahead to stay with four more in the fourth. Munson singled in two runs in the second and drove in two more with a double in the eighth.

The victory was the 11th for the Yankees in their 12 games with the White Sox this season.

Chicago's Jorge Orta extended his hitting streak to 17 games while reliever Jim York, purchased from Syracuse last week, picked up his first victory in relief of starter Ken Holtzman.

Holtzman entered the game with a string of 18 scoreless innings, but failed to get through the first inning, giving up a three-run homer to Bill Stein. But the Yanks came right back with seven in the top of the second to get Holtzman off the hook and send Sox starter Ken Brett to the showers. Six singles, two walks and an error aided the cause.

Roy White dropped Bucky Dent's fly ball for an error in the third, which allowed a run to score to give the Sox an 8-7 lead. But the Yankees roared back again with four runs in the fourth, including a two-run pinch single by Carlos May.

A double by Stein and a single by Ralph Garr cut the Yankees lead to 11-9 in the fifth.

In other American League games Tuesday night, Baltimore trounced Kansas City 10-3, Oakland topped Cleveland 7-4, Milwaukee defeated California 6-2, Boston downed Texas 4-2 and the Detroit Tigers beat Minnesota 8-3.

Sal Bando's run-scoring single and Phil Garner's basesloaded triple snapped a 3-3 tie in the ninth and boosted Oakland to its victory over Cleveland.

Hank Aaron smashed the 75th home run of his career and George Scott added a four-bagger to power Milwaukee past California. The back-to-back homers in the seventh inning gave the Brewers an untouchable 5-1 lead.

Two home runs by Lee May and single round-trippers by Bobby Grich and Reggie Jackson paced Baltimore to its rout of Kansas City. Jamie Quirk hit a home run for the Royals.

The victory, Wayne Garland's 12th against only one loss, was the Orioles' eighth in their last 10 games.

Reliever Jim Willoughby came on in the ninth with the bases loaded and none out, giving up only a sacrifice fly, as Boston held on to defeat Texas.

Rick Jones, 4-0, got the victory for the Red Sox although he gave up 11 of the Rangers' 14 hits in just 6 2-3 innings. But Boston belted out 12 hits of their own with Rick Bolenon Barleson and Cecil Cooper combining for five.

Gymnats Begin New Classes

Classes for the second session of the Southwestern Michigan Gymnasts summer training program will start next Monday at Brown School in St. Joseph.

There will be no change in the class schedules except the mothers and tots class on Friday from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. will be dropped. Private lessons may be scheduled for that time by arrangement with the club coach, Mrs. Nancy Finch.

Registration for the second summer term will be held at the Brown School from 9 a.m. to noon both Thursday and Friday.

Classes in beginning through advanced and competitive gymnastics are offered Monday through Thursday from 7:30 a.m. until 3:15 p.m. With special classes in gymnastic dance, advanced tumbling and private lessons on Fridays from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

For additional information call Louise Boelcke at 429-3140 or Carol Campbell at 429-5773.

Starr, Thomas At Odds

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Green Bay Packer Coach Bart Starr said Monday he won't budge in his firm stand on hold-out Earl Thomas, despite the probable loss for the season of speedster Gerald Tinker.

Tinker, former co-holder of the world 100 yard dash record at 8.1 seconds and listed as a regular wide receiver at the start of Green Bay's training camp, tore ligaments in his right knee during a scrimmage Saturday. He underwent surgery at St. Vincent's Hospital and is sidelined indefinitely.

Thomas, veteran wide receiver obtained during the offseason from St. Louis, has been holding out for more money. However, Starr reiterated he will fine Thomas for each day he is absent from camp.

"I think the play of (receivers) Kenny Payne and Steve Odom has been encouraging," Starr said.

Congress Calls Kuhn, Finley

House Sports Committee Hearings Underway

WASHINGTON (AP) — The feud between baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn and Oakland A's owner Charley Finley moved into a congressional forum today.

Kuhn and Finley — along with owners Allan Selig of the Milwaukee Brewers, John W. Galbreath of the Pittsburgh Pirates and Robert L. Howsam of the Cincinnati Reds — were the first witnesses called before a special House committee investigating professional sports.

Chairman B.F. Sisk, D-Calif., said the scope of the investigation by the 13-member House group will range from league expansions and franchise switches to owner dealings with player labor unions and from the tax and antitrust status of pro teams to violence in hockey.

Sisk said the legal and personal hassle between Kuhn and Finley over the commissioner's nullification of the multimillion dollar sale of three Oakland stars — Joe Rudi, Rollie Fingers and Vida Blue — was to be a main focus of attention.

Commenting on the dispute which has been taken to the federal courts by Finley, Sisk has indicated sympathy with the commissioner's case that blocked the sale of the three A's to the Red Sox and Yankees.

"I think it signalled the start of a bidding war for free agents," Sisk said of Finley's transaction. "I think the commissioner did the right thing in nipping it in the bud."

Commissioner Pete Rozelle of the National Football League and two owner representatives, Joe Robbie of the Miami Dolphins and Billy Sullivan of the New England Patriots, also were called to testify on the first day of the hearings.

Commissioners and owners from the National Hockey League and the World Hockey Association were to appear Thursday.

The committee, created by Congress May 18 as a result of baseball's refusal to return the sport to the nation's capital, also will hold hearings next Wednesday and Thursday, Aug. 25 and Aug. 30.

Sisk's committee can recommend legislative steps to Congress but can not actually draft specific measures. He indicated he might center on the tax and antitrust exemptions now enjoyed by pro sports owners.

Detective Loses Gun

MONTREAL (AP) — Canadian police detained an American police detective who was carrying a pistol in a camera bag Monday into Olympic boxing competition at Maurice Richard Arena. "It's simply a custom, a way of life, among American police to carry their weapons wherever they go," said Canadian officials. "They tend to forget it is against Canadian law." The man, carrying official police documents and equipment, was told he could have his pistol back — when he returns to the United States.

Lions Debut On Saturday

Denver Starting Veterans In Canton Contest

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (AP) — Coach John Ralston said Tuesday he will start his prospective first team, with Steve Ramsey at quarterback, when his Denver Broncos play Detroit in the National Football League Hall of Fame game on Saturday. The game is at Canton, Ohio. "The plan is to start what is our tentative first team of veterans and have them go 20 to 25 plays, which should take them into the second quarter," Ralston said. "From there, our reserves, free agents and rookies will take over."

Detroit Coach Rick Forzano hasn't said who his quarterback will be, as he appeared more concerned over problems in his offensive line. Two injuries, a no-show and an unsigned contract have left Forzano short of the 260-pound players he needs to bang against the Bronco defense.

Forzano said Steve Strunko, out of the University of Michigan, may be moved to center from linebacker to help out, and that relief would also be sought in rejects from other camps, indicating the Lions may face serious problems unless they can bolster the all-important line that keeps rushers from the quarterback and opens holes for the likes of Steve Owens.

Pheasant Aerial Release Tested

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The Department of Natural Resources is testing the possibility of aerial release of pheasants in the state's put-take hunting program.

DNR officials said the use of airplanes to release the birds is an attempt to find a better way of transporting them from raising areas to 20 hunting areas.

Vic Janson, DNR pheasant specialist, said Thursday test runs held recently at the Dansville State Game Area indicate the approach holds promise, although it may be too expensive. Wildlife biologists say the pheasants quickly adjust to their airborne release, begin flying and disperse well into the ground cover below.

"The program has been criticized in the past because the captivity-raised pheasants occasionally refused to fly after release and did not act like wild birds. They had little ability to evade hunters."

Cuban Boxer Doesn't Want Pro Career

MONTREAL (AP) — Fidel Castro has taught his heavyweight boxing champion well.

Big Teofilo Stevenson, Cuba's defending gold medalist in the Olympic Games, insists he holds no envy for Muhammad Ali, Joe Frazier and George Foreman with their mansions, Rolls-Royces and multi-million-dollar gates.

"With so many people in the world starving, it is a shame for a man to get $5 million for a fight," he said.

"I have no stomach for it." At age 24, an imposing physical specimen at 6-foot-5 1/2 and around 220 pounds, he already has had more fights than most veteran professionals and, if he were not a citizen of Communist Cuba, many observers predict he would be pushing Ali for the world crown.

That is conjecture — disputed as much as it is proclaimed — and a mystery that probably will never be solved.

"I am an amateur," Stevenson said with as much emphasis as he could muster in his Spanish tongue. "It is no need to talk about what I might do against Ali, Frazier or Foreman."

"I will never fight them. I will always be an amateur. I am happy as I am."

As heavyweight champion, Stevenson is one of the leading personalities in the Olympic Village. Yet he has been one of the most elusive. He disdains publicity. He guards his privacy.

He strode into the Village cafeteria Tuesday night with a half-dozen fellow Cuban athletes and sought a secluded corner for a heavily-seasoned Spanish meal.

Athletes in the red sweat suits of the island off Florida flock around him, laugh at his jokes, sit when he sits, move when he moves.

He definitely is chairman of the board.

He is a handsome, striking man with facial features much like those of Muhammad Ali. His skin is the color of coffee with a generous portion of cream. His face, like that of Ali, is virtually unmarked.

Unlike Ali, Stevenson is not loud and bombastic and seems completely bereft of braggadocio.

Teofilo was asked if anyone ever told him that he bore a striking resemblance to Muhammad Ali.

"Yes, many people," he said.

Asked if he were pleased at this, he said, "No, I don't want to look like Ali. I want to look only like myself."

He said he had met Ali, Foreman and Frazier in person — Frazier at the Tokyo Olympics when Smokin' Joe won the gold medal and he, Teofilo, was only 16. He met Ali and Foreman in Puerto Rico.

Stevenson regards Duane Bobick, now a promising, unbeaten U.S. pro, as the best fighter he ever faced. He was 19 when he lost to Bobick in the Pan Am Games at Cali, Colombia, in 1971 but he came back to crush the American in Munich four years ago.

Lions Debut On Saturday

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (AP)

Coach John Ralston said Tuesday he will start his prospective first team, with Steve Ramsey at quarterback, when his Denver Broncos play Detroit in the National Football League Hall of Fame game on Saturday.

The game is at Canton, Ohio.

The plan is to start what is our tentative first team of veterans and have them go 20 to 25 plays, which should take them into the second quarter," Ralston said. "From there, our reserves, free agents and rookies will take over."

Detroit Coach Rick Forzano hasn't said who his quarterback will be, as he appeared more concerned over problems in his offensive line. Two injuries, a no-show and an unsigned contract have left Forzano short of the 260-pound players he needs to bang against the Bronco defense.

Forzano said Steve Strinko, out of the University of Michigan, may be moved to center from linebacker to help out, and that relief would also be sought in rejects from other camps, indicating the Lions may face serious problems unless they can bolster the all-important line that keeps rushers from the quarterback and opens holes for the likes of Steve Owens.

The Lions plan to travel to Canton Friday.

Ralston said he is starting the veteran Ramsey despite muscle spasms in the lower back that sidelined Ramsey for three days last week. Ramsey was in full pads on Monday at the Broncos' preseason camp at Colorado State University.

Entering his fifth season as the Broncos' coach and general manager, Ralston said he plans to follow his usual exhibition pattern of emphasizing development of his players rather than winning.

"We are on an individual development course," Ralston said. "If it encompasses Detroit, fine. If not, then that's fine also."

"We certainly want to be competitive, and we certainly would like a win, but we are looking for players who can help us win come Sept. 12," when the regular season opens.

Ralston said he plans to start at running back Jon Keyworth and Otis Armstrong, the NFL's leading rusher in 1974.

Armstrong missed almost all of last year with a torn hamstring muscle, and Keyworth led the Broncos in rushing with 725 yards. He also caught 42 passes, the Bronco leader in that category.

Pheasant Aerial Release Tested

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The Department of Natural Resources is testing the possibility of aerial release of pheasants in the state's put-take hunting program.

DNR officials said the use of airplanes to release the birds is an attempt to find a better way of transporting them from raising areas to 20 hunting areas.

Vic Janson, DNR pheasant specialist, said Thursday test runs held recently at the Dansville State Game Area indicate the approach holds promise, although it may be too expensive. Wildlife biologists say the pheasants quickly adjust to their airborne release, begin flying and disperse well into the ground cover below.

The program has been criticized in the past because the captivity-raised pheasants occasionally refused to fly after release and did not act like wild birds. They had little ability to evade hunters.

"It looks now that we may possibly try this method of pheasant distribution on an experimental basis in one or two areas, but we don't know how often or where," Janson said.

The DNR plans to release 120,000 pheasants during the 1976 put-take program, which begins Aug. 16 at 15 hunting areas largely in southern Lower Michigan. The program extends through Nov. 14, and from Dec. 1 through Jan. 2, 1977.

Put-take programs begin Sept. 15 and run through Nov. 14, and again from Dec. 1-Jan. 2 at five state recreation areas.

Several releases of pheasants are planned each week in each area, Janson said. Last year, the DNR released 71,000 pheasants.

Put-take hunters must obtain a special $10 permit in addition to their regular small game hunting license. Permits are expected to go on sale by the first of August.

Handball Anonymous Sport At Games

SPORTS CAPSULES

By JOHN VINOCUR
Associated Press Writer
MONTREAL (AP) — There's Mike and Harry the Wizard, the twins Randy and Robbie, Ezra the Israeli, Sparky and Dennis. Under normal circumstances the closest they'd ever get to Olympic rings would be the water marks from their beer glasses on the neighborhood bar.

They're here, though, assembled with a dozen phone calls in about the same time it takes to get guys together for a pinhole game. And dressed in the U.S. team's red sweats, banking down the hall from Scott May and a flight up from Frank Shorter, they're living out the fantasy of millions of schoolyard hoppers. They're members of the U.S. Olympic Team.

The reason is they play the closest sport of the Games, team handball, an enterprise so anonymous in the United States that Manager Dennis Berkholz says, "The real truth is that if you looked our rooms up there wouldn't be another person in 20 million who knows anything about it. When I heard they were going to put it on television I thought that's great, but nobody but me can explain it."

The Americans played Romania, the world champions, and didn't look too embarrassed in losing 32-19, taking their second straight loss here. The sport turned out more or less to be soccer with a dispensation so that everyone could use his hands. The obscurity level of team handball is such that when distance runner Frank Shorter saw Harry Winkler, an old friend he had lost touch with, in the Village, Shorter asked: "Harry, what in hell are you doing here?"

Harry explained, and Shorter, an intelligent man, looked vague. "Look," said Winkler, "there are about 500 of us in the States. You're more likely to run into somebody with leprosy in Ohio than a team handball player."

Berkholz said one of the problems in developing the sport, which has real popularity in Scandinavia, Germany and Eastern Europe, is that people confuse it with the YMCA game where you bang a little black ball off a wall with a couple of other overweight friends.

"I mean, who would want to go to watch one of these things and how could you cram 14 guys and goals into one of those courts," says Berkholz. "But it's hard to change the name. We thought of superball or teamball, but that's been put aside. I admit we're a bit of a clique and that we have guys on the team who really haven't touched a ball competitively in a couple of years."

Among the handballers are a 38-year-old Hungarian-born goalie named Sandor Rivnyak, Ezra (Jerry) Glantz, a Californian who's a captain in the Israeli Army reserve, Randy Dean, the starting Northwestern quarterback, and his twin brother Robbie, Rico Abrahamson, Robert Sparks and a bunch of other guys who Berkholz admits "are pretty good athletes, really, who missed in other sports."

"It's difficult to break into the clique," says Berkholz. "It's a bit like rugby. We're close-knit and you have to be a partner and a beer drinker."

MONTREAL — Egypt and Morocco became the 29th and 30th nations to withdraw from the Olympic Games in protest against New Zealand's association with South Africa and its apartheid policy. In Olympic action, Americans John Hencken, 100 meter breaststroke, and Brian Goodell, 1500 meter freestyle, and East Germany's Petra Thümer, 400 freestyle, shattered world records on their way to winning gold medals.

TENNIS

WASHINGTON — Jimmy Connors, the number two seed, scored a straight set victory over Fred McNeil of Chevy Chase, Md., 7-5, 6-1 to advance to the second round of the $125,000 Washington Star International Tennis Championship.

MAGNIFICENT NADIA: Romanian gymnastic girl Nadia Comaneci, who achieved three perfect gymnastic performances at the Olympics at Montreal, will go after more glory tonight. She is the holder of the only three perfect 10 scores ever awarded in the Olympics. The 14-year-old goes against the Russians in the finals of the women's all-around individual events tonight. Canadian Practice Starting WINDSOR, Ont. (AP) — Practice was the order of the day today as the famous and the unknowns prepared for Thursday's first round of the Canadian Open.

The tourney, at Windsor's Essex Golf and Country Club, will feature such well-knowns as defending champ Tom Weiskopf, Jack Nicklaus, Johnny Miller, Ben Crenshaw, Lee Trevino, Gary Player, Arnold Palmer, Ray Floyd, Jerry Pate and Hubie Green.

Competing with the stars of pro golf, who did not have to formally qualify, will be 22 others who battled Monday for a chance to play on the 6,606-yard course.

The 22 — led by Lyn Lott with a 65 — were the best in a field of about 100 golfers who vied for the tourney's few remaining openings.

Among those cut in the qualifying rounds were some who had won tour events in the past, like Tom Shaw, John Schroeder, Dewitt Weaver and Cesar Sanudo.

It was so tough that par didn't make it, and there was a playoff among the 11 players who shot at one-under-par 71, with two making the cut.

The tight Essex course, which will play in a pair of 70 for the pros, could yield plenty of birdies if the balls fly straight. But Essex also sports a tall, thick rough, ponds, hundreds of trees and fairways that have been purposefully narrowed for the event.

The field will be trimmed by Saturday to only 70 golfers who will battle it out in the two final days.

Aside from Weiskopf, the entrants include six other former champions, all of whom will be learning for a repeat performance.

For golfing fans in Michigan, this Canadian Open represents the last chance to get a look at the top pros for three years. After this year, the pros won't pass this way again until 1979 when the PGA championship returns to Oakland Hills in Birmingham.

Handball Anonymous Sport At Games

Associated Press Writer
MONTREAL (AP) — There's Rico and Harry the Wizard, the twins Randy and Robbie, Ezra the Israeli, Sparky and Dennis. Under normal circumstances the closest they'd ever get to Olympic rings would be the water marks from their beer glasses on the neighborhood bar.

They're here, though, assembled with a dozen phone calls in about the same time it takes to get guys together for a pinocle game. And dressed in the U.S. team's red sweats, bunking down the hall from Scott May and a flight up from Frank Shorter, they're living out the fantasy of millions of schoolyard hackers. They're members of the U.S. Olympic Team.

The reason is they play the closet sport of the Games, team handball, an enterprise so anonymous in the United States that Manager Dennis Berkholtz says, "The real truth is that if you locked our rooms up there wouldn't be another person in 220 million who knows anything about it. When I heard they were going to put it on television I thought that's great, but nobody but me can explain it."

The Americans played Romania, the world champions, and didn't look too embarrassed in losing 32-19, taking their second straight loss here. The sport turned out more or less to be soccer with a dispensation so that everyone could use his hands.

The obscurity level of team handball is such that when distance runner Frank Shorter saw Harry Winkler, an old friend he had lost touch with, in the Village, Shorter asked: "Harry, what in hell are you doing here?"

Harry explained, and Shorter, an intelligent man, looked vague. "Look," said Winkler, "there are about 500 of us in the States. You're more likely to run into somebody with leprosy in Ohio than a team handball player."

Berkholtz said one of the problems in developing the sport, which has real popularity in Scandinavia, Germany and Eastern Europe, is that people confuse it with the YMCA game where you bang a little black ball off a wall with a couple of other overweight friends.

"I mean, who would want to go to watch one of those things and how could you cram 14 guys and goals into one of those courts," says Berkholtz. "But it's hard to change the name. We thought of superball or teamball, but that's been put aside. I admit we're a bit of a clique and that we have guys on the team who really haven't touched a ball competitively in a couple of years."

Among the handballers are a 39-year-old Hungarian-born goalie named Sandor Rivnyak, Ezra (Jerry) Glantz, a Californian who's a captain in the Israeli Army reserve, Randy Dean, the starting Northwestern quarterback, and his twin brother Robbie, Rico Abrahamson, Robert Sparks and a bunch of other guys who Berkholtz admits "are pretty good athletes, really, who missed in other sports."

"It's difficult to break into the clique," says Berkholtz. "It's a bit like rugby. We're close-knit and you have to be a partner and a beer drinker."

Arab On Israeli Squad

MONTREAL (AP) — There was an Arab marching behind the Israeli Star of David in Saturday's Olympic opening ceremony—a dark, quiet kid who was left to practice soccer alone on a Tel Aviv beach when his Jewish teammates went off to war three years ago.

Life is like that for Rifaat Tourk. He is a 21-year-old outsider in a society that might have reason to be suspicious, a man who in spite of his blue uniform with Hebrew letters must prove his loyalty every day, but without losing his pride.

"Yes, there is a difference," he said. "I'm an Arab. When I walk on the street in Israel I feel the difference. But when the team plays, we do it as a group."

The difference is clear. When Israel fought the Arabs in the Yom Kippur War and Tourk's teammates went to their units, he stayed behind. Except for the small Druze community, no Arabs serve in the Jewish army. When Tourk, a fisherman with his father, wanted to take out his boat, he was told no. So he sat on the beach and juggled with a soccer ball alone.

Does he consider himself a Palestinian? "My parents were from Palestine. I'm from Israel."

How does he feel when Palestinians say they want to take Jaffa, where he lives, away from the Jews? "I don't want to talk about war, about terrorism, about fighting. I came to play soccer."

But Montreal has been a series of unusual experiences for him, some that may make him feel more an Israeli.

For the first time in his life, he entered a synagogue and joined his teammates at a memorial service for the Israeli athletes killed in Munich. Munich shouldn't have happened, Tourk said, because "sport isn't war and it isn't politics. War is war. Then you fight. This was sports."

But he declined to wear a yarmulke, the Jewish prayer cap, at the service, although other non-Jews like Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau did. Tourk said he could not as a Moslem.

In the Olympic Village cafeteria, Tourk found himself on line behind an Egyptian. "I was standing there in my warm-up suit and the guy tapped on my shoulder and made a sign as if I should move ahead of him. I told him 'thank you very much.' When I spoke Arabic, he asked me who I was and I explained. Then he said what I keep saying—that this is sports and politics should be far away."

Card Tyson Breaks Finger

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Second baseman Mike Tyson, the St. Louis Cardinals' hottest hitter during July, has been placed on the National League's 15-day disabled list.

Tyson broke his left index finger during a game in San Francisco Sunday. He was injured when Giants' pitcher Jim Barr kicked the ball out of his glove while stealing second base.

Tyson had hit safely in his last five at-bats before the injury, and his .435 pace during the month had raised his season average to .365.

Duane Thomas Has Attitude Change

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Duane Thomas, one of the friendliest players in the Dallas Cowboys' training camp?

Two teen-agers approached Thomas' table as he lingered over lunch talking to a newsman and asked for his autograph. The first offered a two-by-four inch card, the other a card and the front of a sports magazine. Thomas asked the youngest their first names, then signed all three pieces.

Duane Thomas signed autographs? And chatted amiably with a sportswriter?

It was only a few years ago when he was Rookie of the Year out of West Texas State in 1970 and helped Dallas to the Super Bowl in 1971, that autographs were out. And so was speaking to most reporters, much less a friendly chat with one.

This indeed is the same sensational running back of yesterday, only with a different personality. He has been in and out of football since splitting with Dallas in a money squabble in the summer of 1971.

Deals to trade Thomas to the New England Patriots and subsequently to the San Diego Chargers fell through for different reasons.

Then it was two years with the Washington Redskins with indifferent, and largely unexciting success. There was a divorce from the Redskins — money again — and Thomas jumped from the National Football League to Hawaii in the shortlived World Football League. He played in five games there, was released and dropped out of football.

Last winter, Thomas surfaced at, of all places, the Cowboys' offices in Dallas. Quite often in fact. He even attended a Cowboys alumni dinner. Last April he signed and returned to the Cowboys.

About the original break with Dallas, and some of the harsh words he had hurled at coach Tom Landry, and club

President and General Manager Tex Schramm, Thomas now says in his rather enigmatic manner:

"Perhaps there was something positive about all that, not negative. Landry, you know, is a very positive man."

"Now I am back in a positive position. The feeling in training camp here is good."

"Thomas has been very cooperative since he's been here," Landry said. Thomas, now 28, appears to be in good physical shape and mentally mature. He speaks in low, thoughtful tones. In conclusion he said: "I think we'll have a good season. I don't see why not."

No Dogs Allowed

MONTREAL (AP) — There are no dog days at the equestrian sports site 45 miles east of here. The Olympic committee said dogs at the Bromont Olympic course could distract riders and scare horses.

About the original break with Dallas, and some of the harsh words he had hurled at coach Tom Landry, and club

President and General Manager Tex Schramm, Thomas now says in his rather enigmatic manner: "Perhaps there was something positive about all that, not negative. Landry, you know, is a very positive man. "Now I am back in a positive position. The feeling in training camp here is good."

"Thomas has been very cooperative since he's been here," Landry said. Thomas, now 29, appears to be in good physical shape and mentally mature. He speaks in low, thoughtful tones. In conclusion he said: "I think we'll have a good season. I don't see why not."

A Word Edgewise

There seems to be a pattern of rationality emerging in East Africa and the Middle East. In East Africa President Jomo Kenyatta, who runs a one-party authoritarian state, on the model of Mexico, has clearly decided his neighbor President/Field Marshal Idi Amin of Uganda is expendable. Whatever the drawbacks of his regime in terms of the Bill of Rights, Kenyatta is a superbly talented, rational man, and as such has decided enough is enough. Hence Radio Kenya has started a verbal assault on Amin which makes Pat Moynihan and the Israelis sound like moderates.

Amin, according to Nairobi, is a "sadistic, disappointed, fascist, dictator... a warmongering neighbor specializing in savagery, torture and mass murder... the worst dictator in modern history since Hitler." Even the British have dumped on the Ugandan bandit, who has practically told them that the 76-year-old Mrs. Dora Bloch — the Israeli hostage with dual British citizenship who was alive in Kampala hospital after the rescue — was shot fleeing arrest.

Moving north, we find a similar pattern which adds up to an Arab policy of "Get the kinks off the streets." Target number one is the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) and its various offshoots. President Sadat of Egypt has always kept the PLO on a tight leash and seems to have decided they are more of a nuisance than they are worth as provocateurs. King Hussein of Jordan, of course, kicked the PLO out of his country in 1971 — which is why they are in such numbers on Lebanese turf. Now President Assad of Syria appears to have decided that if there is going to be any Palestinian organization, it will work for him.

Thus we have the interesting spectacle of the Syrians and the Lebanese Christians (who are called "right-wingers" presumably because they are not leftists) mopping up the Lebanese left (led by a Druze named Kamal Jumblatt) and the PLO.

The Council of the Arab League keeps meeting in Cairo and uttering helpful platitudes, but anyone literate enough to read the Koran should realize that Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, the Gulf Emirates, Tunis, and Egypt are willing to fight to the death — of the last Palestinian.

Except, of course, Libya's Amin — Colonel Qaddafi — whose life expectancy at the moment is dubious. Egypt's Sadat has accused Libya of several attempts on his life over the past few years and just the other night the radio reported that three Libyans have been put into the Egyptian slammer for trying to kill a former high official in Qaddafi's government who had been granted asylum in Egypt.

Sadat has a substantial, well-equipped, unemployed army and a hungry population of 37 million. Libya is rich, virtually defenseless, and has a population of less than 3 million. No one has ever accused Sadat of diplomat courtesy and, in all fairness, Libyan activities against Egypt undoubtedly justify a military riposte. Perhaps while Assad disposes of the PLO, Sadat will take off along the old British 8th Army route to Tripoli — and Amin will be shot fleeing arrest. Who knows? With the Bicentennial maybe our luck has turned a corner?

Extending Tax Cuts Wins Approval In U.S. Senate

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Extension of individual tax cuts through 1977 is a step closer today, but it may be another two months before taxpayers know for sure whether they will face a tax hike next year.

The Senate voted 66 to 28 on Tuesday to extend the tax cuts for 18 months. But the House cannot act on the extension until the Senate passes the complex tax-revision bill to which the reductions are attached.

Sen. Russell Long, D-La., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said he hopes — but cannot guarantee — that the Senate will approve a tax bill before recessing Aug. 11 for the Republican convention.

Once the Senate passes the bill, a Senate-House conference must work out the countless differences in the Senate's tax-revision bill and one approved by the House last year. That could take weeks.

No matter how long it takes Congress to complete work on a tax-revision bill, there is virtually no chance that American workers will feel a bigger tax bite on their paychecks this year.

The $13-billion worth of individual tax cuts technically expired once already, on July 1, but Congress hurriedly froze withholding rates until Sept. 1. Congressional leaders indicate the rates will be frozen again if more time is required to complete action on the tax bill.

In addition to voting for an 18-month renewal of the tax cuts, the Senate agreed Tuesday, 50 to 42, to allow motorists to continue deducting all their state and local gasoline taxes.

The Finance Committee, in writing the bill, voted to allow deduction of only the gasoline taxes that total more than $50 a year. That would have raised the federal tax bills of millions of Americans but it would have saved the Treasury about $300 million a year.

The Senate rejected, 54 to 38, an effort by Sen. Adlai Stevenson III, D-Ill., to eliminate the gasoline-tax deduction altogether on grounds it encourages energy waste.

The key elements of the tax-cut package include:

—A provision allowing a $35 credit — which is subtracted directly from taxes owed — for each taxpayer and each dependent to be extended through 1977. If it is to his or her advantage, the taxpayer instead could take a credit of 2 per cent of his first $8,000 of taxable income, to a maximum credit of $180.

—Permanent increases in the standard deduction, which are available only to taxpayers who do not itemize deductions. The minimum standard deduction is $1,700 for single persons and $2,100 for couples. The maximum is 15 per cent of adjusted gross income, up to $2,400 for single persons and $2,800 for couples.

—A provision making permanent a special "work bonus" for poor, working families with children. This allows a credit of 10 per cent of earned income up to $4,000, or a top credit of $400. The credit is scaled down before being phased out when income reaches $8,000.

The credit is aimed at giving poor people an incentive for staying off welfare and keeping their jobs.

Parting Of Ways May Cost Glen $1.5 Million

Q: What kind of divorce settlement is Glen Campbell's wife going to get? — P. W., Baltimore, Md.

A: We hear that Glen will be settling out about $1,500,000 to Billie Jean, which seems modest enough in light of his high earning potential. But, of course, that is only the cash part of the settlement.

Q: Am I wrong or didn't that Loretta Haggars on "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman" sing her country-western songs better and better as the show went along? — U. C., New Orleans, La.

A: Give yourself an A-plus for that observation. Says actress

LORETTA HAGGARS

Mary Kay Place, who plays Loretta. "I've been singing better since the early shows because bad singing is strictly a one-time joke and can get awfully irritating to the audience." You're so right, Mary.

Q: Did Judy Garland push daughter Liza Minnelli into being an entertainer? I've heard she was a total stage mother. — B. O., Burbank, Calif.

A: Judy wasn't really together enough when Liza was a young girl to stage-manage her daughter's career. What really happened was that when Judy's act needed a little propping up she'd pull Liza on stage to sing. Entertainers who remember Judy's act in those days say Liza was just terrible. But after many such imprudent appearances she began to learn how to perform.

THE GREAT SUMMER MIXUP: Former fashion editor

PEOPLE

By Robin Adams Sloan

China (pronounce it Cheena) Machado and her boyfriend decided they had the perfect man for best-selling writer Barbara Howar. China's beau was dispatched to the beach at Easthampton, N.Y., to invite novelist John Knowles ("A Separate Peace") to dinner at China's (pronounced Cheena, remember). Knowles got the name a little wrong and went to Shana (TV's 60 Minutes) Alexander's house where he spent the evening waiting for Barbara to show up. Meanwhile at China's, Barbara waited in vain. Sounds more like an Italian opera than a blind date.

Q: Why is the Mary Tyler Moore show going off the tube after this season? — T. N., Norfolk, Va.

A: Not only MTM but two other top-rated series are planning to bow out at the same time — "All in the Family" and "Sanford and Son." Though the producers like to say they want to leave while they're still on top, we think that the real reason is that the stars that support the shows are just tired of them and want to try something else.

Q: I would love to know how Mrs. Redford manages to hang on to her superstar husband. Wouldn't you think a little starlet would have gotten him away from her by this time? — L. G., Tulsa, Okla.

A: The main reason is that Liza Minnelli is a superwoman herself. Beautiful and extremely committed to public service, she's one of a kind and her husband knows it. The Redfords have had some rocky times, like everyone else, but both feel their marriage and children of prime importance.

Q: Are there any startling revelations in that book by the late Kay Summersby Morgan, who was Eisenhower's wartime driver? It's common knowledge that she had an affair with the general. — V. S., Albuquerque, N. Mex.

A: The most interesting thing we've heard is that the memoir will reveal that Eisenhower was physically unable to consummate the relationship. We haven't seen the book, which is being kept under lock and key until the Ladies Home Journal publishes excerpts, but the story comes from a usually reliable source.

Q: Can you tell us yet who Rex Harrison's next girlfriend will be? — T. N., Twin Falls, Idaho

A: The mighty Rex was spotted the other evening dining at the Beverly Hills hotel with ex-wife, once removed, Rachel Roberts. But also present was her long-time companion, Mexican designer Darren Ramirez. It was impossible to tell whether the talk concerned some sort of realignment of relationships or was just sophisticated chit-chat. We'll just wait and see.

Parting Of Ways May Cost Glen $1.5 Million

Q: What kind of divorce settlement is Glen Campbell's wife going to get? — P. W., Baltimore, Md.

A: We hear that Glen will be shelling out about $1,500,000 to Billie Jean, which seems modest enough in light of his high earning potential. But, of course, that is only the cash part of the settlement.

Q: Am I wrong or didn't that Loretta Haggars on "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman" sing her country-western songs better and better as the show went along? — U. C., New Orleans, La.

A: Give yourself an A-plus for that observation. Says actress haven't seen the book, which is being kept under lock and key until the Ladies Home Journal publishes excerpts, but the story comes from a usually reliable source.

Q: Can you tell us yet who Rex Harrison's next girlfriend will be? — T. N., Twin Falls, Idaho

A: The mighty Rex was spotted the other evening dining at the Beverly Hills hotel with ex-wife, once removed, Rachel Roberts. But also present was her long-time companion, Mexican designer Darren Ramirez. It was impossible to tell whether the talk concerned some sort of realignment of relationships or was just sophisticated chit-chat. We'll just wait and see.

Q: Did Judy Garland push daughter Liza Minnelli into being an entertainer? I've heard she was a total stage mother. — B. O., Burbank, Calif.

A: Judy wasn't really together enough when Liza was a young girl to stage-manage her daughter's career. What really happened was that when Judy's act needed a little propping up she'd pull Liza on stage to sing. Entertainers who remember Judy's act in those days say Liza was just terrible. But after many such impromptu appearances she began to learn how to perform.

PEOPLE

By Robin Adams Sloan

China (pronounce it Cheena) Machado and her boyfriend decided they had the perfect man for best-selling writer Barbara Howar. China's beau was dispatched to the beach at Easthampton, N.Y., to invite novelist John Knowles ("A Separate Peace") to dinner at China's (pronounced Cheena, remember). Knowles got the name a little wrong and went to Shana (TV's 60 Minutes) Alexander's house where he spent the evening waiting for Barbara to show up. Meanwhile at China's, Barbara waited in vain. Sounds more like an Italian opera than a blind date.

Q: Why is the Mary Tyler Moore show going off the tube after this season? — T. N., Norfolk, Va.

A: Not only MTM but two other top-rated series are planning to bow out at the same time — "All in the Family" and "Sanford and Son." Though the producers like to say they want to leave while they're still on top, we think that the real reason is that the stars that support the shows are just tired of them and want to try something else.

Q: I would love to know how Mrs. Redford manages to hang on to her superstar husband. Wouldn't you think a little starlet would have gotten him away from her by this time? — L. G., Tulsa, Okla.

A: The main reason is that Lola Redford is a superwoman herself. Beautiful and extremely committed to public service, she's one of a kind and her husband knows it. The Redfords have had some rocky times, like everyone else, but both feel their marriage and children of prime importance.

Q: Are there any startling revelations in that book by the late Kay Summersby Morgan, who was Eisenhower's wartime driver? It's common knowledge that she had an affair with the general. — V. S., Albuquerque, N. Mex.

A: The most interesting thing we've heard is that the memoir will reveal that Eisenhower was physically unable to consummate the relationship. We

GOP May Help Override Ford Veto Of Jobs Bill

By DONALD M. BOTHERBERG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — For the second time this year, the Senate is trying to enact a job-creating public works program over the President's veto. Despite President Ford's warnings about the bill's impact on inflation, the override effort this time has picked up key Republican support.

Senate leaders have scheduled a vote today on whether to override Ford's veto of the $3.95-billion employment bill, and majority Democrats have picked up a key ally, Sen. Robert Griffin of Michigan, the assistant Republican leader.

The bill would create 300,000 public works jobs, sponsors say, as well as provide funds to insure that 90,000 local government jobs are maintained despite budget cutbacks forced by recession.

In his July 6 veto message, Ford told Congress, "This bill will not create lasting jobs but instead will create more inflation." He used the same argument last February when he vetoed a $6.2-billion bill.

Supporters of the measures argued they were the best way to create jobs quickly. They also argued that the cost of unemployment is far greater than the cost of a public works program to reduce it.

The House voted to override that veto, but the Senate fell three votes short of the necessary two-thirds. Griffin was a key figure in mustering the votes necessary to sustain Ford's veto in February.

This time, the Senate's No. 2 Republican has said he will vote to override. Griffin cited unemployment rates of 9.7 per cent in Michigan and 13.4 per cent in Detroit as the reasons for his position.

The bill passed the Senate 75 to 20 and cleared the House 328 to 83, both votes exceeding the two-thirds margin needed to override a veto.

The bill authorizes $2 billion in grants to state and local governments for public works projects that can be started within 90 days. Supporters say that portion of the bill would create about 200,000 jobs, most of them in the construction industry.

Probate Judge Named

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — John R. Vusich of Vestaburg has been appointed probate judge for Montcalm County. Vusich, 39, was named by Gov. William Milliken to succeed former Judge Charles Simon Jr. who resigned when he was appointed to the circuit court bench. Vusich, an attorney, will serve a term expiring Jan. 1, 1977, and must run for the post in the November election.

GENERAL DIES

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — Maj. Gen. Philip Edward Gallagher, former commandant of the U.S. Military Academy, died at his home here Sunday. He was 78.

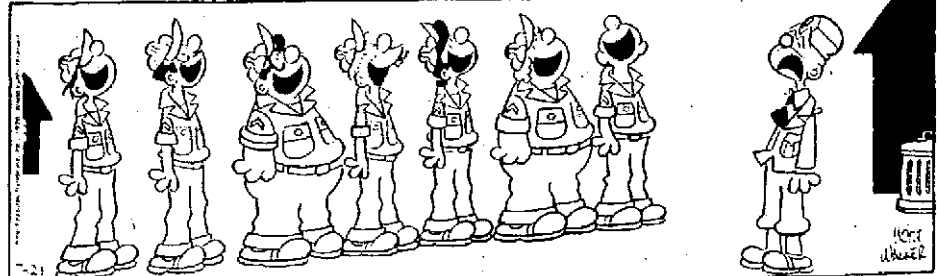

June Housing Starts Are Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Housing starts increased in June, but the number of building permits issued during the month fell, the government says. The Commerce Department has reported that the number of new houses and apartments on which construction started in June was 1,492 million at an annual rate after seasonal adjustment. That was up 4.3 percent over May, when housing starts also rose. They are the first back-to-back monthly increases since last September and October.

Party Leftovers

BALTIMORE (AP) — The City of Baltimore has 51,000 pieces of leftover Bicentennial cake. It was billed as the "world's biggest birthday cake," and of the 153,000 individually packaged pieces of vanilla cake, 18,500 slices are in cold storage and another 32,500 are in an unrefrigerated city warehouse.

Probate Judge Named

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — John R. Vusich of Vestaburg has been appointed probate judge for Montcalm County. Vusich, 39, was named by Gov. William Milliken to succeed former Judge Charles Simon Jr., who resigned when he was appointed to the circuit court bench. Vusich, an attorney, will serve a term expiring Jan. 1, 1977, and must run for the post in the November election.

NEWS OF MARKETS

Market Reaction 'Neutral'

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today in a neutral initial reaction to the government's latest report on consumer prices.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose a fraction in the early going. But losers took a slight lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The Labor Department reported at the opening that its consumer price index climbed 5 per cent in June.

That represented a decline from a 6 per cent rise in May, but it was still running ahead of the 3 per cent monthly average pace for the first four months of the year.

Lockheed was up 1/4 at 11 1/2 in active trading. The company and Canada signed a huge contract for patrol planes today.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average lost 2.34 to 998.28.

Losers outnumbered gainers by a 5-2 margin among NYSE-listed issues, and the exchange's composite index dropped 33 to 55.42.

Big Board volume totaled 16.81 million shares.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index gave up .78 to 104.92.

NEW MANAGER: Harold C. Krenshaw of Niles has been appointed plant manager for National-Standard Co.'s Los Angeles, Calif., plant, according to N-S president George Hussey Jr. Krenshaw, a graduate of University of Michigan with B.S.E. degrees in chemical and material engineering, first joined N-S in 1966 as mill metallurgist. N-S is headquartered in Niles.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Auditors hired by the government say the builders of the Alaska pipeline should be monitored daily to assure that a key federal inspection requirement for the pipeline is met.

Air Bags Pushed

For All U.S. Cars

CHICAGO (AP) — Installation of air bags in all American cars may cut by more than one-third the number of highway fatalities annually, a traffic safety expert predicts.

Albert B. Kelley, senior vice president of the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety, said air bags, currently optional equipment in General Motors Corp. autos, could save more than 10,000 lives a year if put in all new cars.

Kelley said that an earlier study by the U.S. Department of Transportation indicated air bags could prevent at least 11,000 deaths and 171,000 serious injuries a year.

More than 40,000 persons died on the nation's highways last year.

He said air bags, which automatically are triggered in front or rear-end accidents at speeds of 17 miles per hour or more, may have substantial advantages over such other safety features as seat belts.

Kelley pointed out that studies have shown that as many as 70 per cent of American drivers do not use their seat belts.

The air bags currently cost about $300 to install, but Kelley predicted that more widespread use could bring the price down to around $120. The additional cost of the air bags, he said, could well be offset by the resulting savings in auto insurance premiums.

Kelley said a number of insurance companies already offer reduced premiums for the 12,000 cars currently equipped with the bags.

Transportation Secretary William Coleman is scheduled to conduct hearings next month on whether air bags should become required equipment on all new American cars.

Box Firms Fined For Price Fixing

CHICAGO (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge James B. Parsons has levied fines of $50,000 each on eight container manufacturing companies who pleaded no contest to charges of conspiring to fix prices of cardboard boxes.

The eight firms Tuesday were among 21 corporations and 50 executives indicted Feb. 18 in connection with the alleged price-fixing conspiracy.

Twelve of the other corporations pleaded no contest on Monday and were also fined $50,000 each by Parsons, who indicated he might reduce the fines later.

The eight companies fined

Tuesday were Hoerner-Waldorf Corp., St. Paul, Minn.; International Paper Co., New York; Interstate Folding Box Co., Middletown, Ohio; Mead Corp., Dayton, Ohio; Michigan Carton Co., Battle Creek, Mich.; Packaging Corporation of America, Evanston, Ill.; Potlatch Corp., St. Francis, Wis.; and St. Regis Paper Co., New York.

A plea of no contest means that the accused neither admits guilt nor wishes a trial to fight the charges.

General Telephone Additions Complete Rain Might Continue

South Haven Correspondent

SOUTH HAVEN — Major equipment additions valued at $500,000 were recently completed by the General Telephone company in the South Haven area, according to John G. Ver Beek, southwestern division manager.

A major addition consisted of the installation of 46 ticketers at the South Haven office. The ticketers are utilized in the processing of direct dial long distance calls, according to Ver Beek.

He said the ticketers function as mechanical operators by recording all of the necessary information and routing the calls on to the proper equipment.

"The addition of these ticketers substantially increased the number of toll calls that can be processed by the South Haven center," said Ver Beek.

Ver Beek said that circuit additions were made between South Haven and the communities of Kalamazoo, Bangor, Fennville and Pullman. Some of the circuits will be used for additional toll circuits while others will be utilized as additional extended area service circuits, according to Ver Beek.

In addition, more local service equipment was added at Grand Junction to meet projected requirements and upgraded primary services.

NEWS OF MARKETS

Market Reaction 'Neutral'

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today in a neutral initial reaction to the government's latest report on consumer prices.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose a fraction in the early going. But losers took a slight lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The Labor Department reported at the opening that its consumer price index climbed 5 per cent in June.

That represented a decline from a .6 per cent rise in May, but it was still running ahead of the .3 per cent monthly average pace for the first four months of the year.

Lockheed was up 1/2 at 11 1/2 in active trading. The company and Canada signed a huge contract for patrol planes today.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average lost 2.54 to 988.29.

Losers outnumbered gainers by a 5-2 margin among NYSE-listed issues, and the exchange's composite index dropped .33 to 55.42.

Big Board volume totaled 18.81 million shares.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index gave up .78 to 104.92.

NEW MANAGER: Harold C. Krenkow of Niles has been appointed plant manager for National-Standard Co.'s Los Angeles, Calif., plant, according to N-S president George Hussey Jr. Krenkow, a graduate of University of Michigan with B.S.E. degrees in chemical and material engineering, first joined N-S in 1966 as mill metallurgist. N-S is headquartered in Niles.

Air Bags Pushed For All U.S. Cars

CHICAGO (AP) — Installation of air bags in all American cars may cut by more than one-third the number of highway fatalities annually, a traffic safety expert predicts.

Albert B. Kelley, senior vice president of the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety, said air bags, currently optional equipment in General Motors Corp. autos, could save more than 19,000 lives a year if put in all new cars.

Kelley said that an earlier study by the U.S. Department of Transportation indicated air bags could prevent at least 11,000 deaths and 171,800 serious injuries a year.

More than 45,000 persons died on the nation's highways last year.

He said air bags, which automatically are triggered in front or rear-end accidents at speeds of 17 miles per hour or

Box Firms Fined For Price Fixing

CHICAGO (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge James B. Parsons has levied fines of $50,000 each on eight container manufacturing companies who pleaded no contest to charges of conspiring to fix prices of cardboard boxes.

The eight fined Tuesday were among 23 corporations and 50 executives indicted Feb. 18 in connection with the alleged price-fixing conspiracy.

Twelve of the other corporations pleaded no contest on Monday and were also fined $50,000 each by Parsons, who indicated he might reduce the fines later.

The eight companies fined

Tuesday were Hoerner Waldorf Corp., St. Paul, Minn.; International Paper Co., New York; Interstate Folding Box Co., Middletown, Ohio; Mead Corp., Dayton, Ohio; Michigan Carton Co., Battle Creek, Mich.; Packaging Corporation of America, Evanston, Ill.; Potlatch Corp., San Francisco, and St. Regis Paper Co., New York.

A plea of no contest means that the accused neither admits guilt nor wishes a trial to fight the charges.

Hartford Women Ask Berrien Court Hearing

Two Hartford women charged with attempting to obtain drugs with a forged prescription demanded preliminary examination Tuesday in Berrien District Court.

Theresa R. Schaner, 19, of 301 South Center, and Eulene S. Moon, 22, of 209 South Haver Street, allegedly committed the act at Tala Pharmacy, Coloma township, the warrant stated. It also stated that the drug allegedly sought was Biphedamine, an amphetamine. Date of the incident was listed as July 19.

Bound over to Circuit court was Roxann Crawford, 22, of 706 Pipestone, Benton Harbor,

Hearing Is Slated For Bangorite

PAW PAW — Richard J. Sutter, Sr., 44, route 2, Arlington street, Bangor, demanded preliminary examination on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon when arraigned Tuesday in Van Buren Seventh district court.

Lawrence police said Sutter was arrested about 1:30 a.m. yesterday after his son-in-law, John Munson, 603 Paw Paw street, Lawrence, allegedly was threatened with a pocket knife at Munson's apartment.

Police said the altercation began after Sutter went to Munson's apartment.

Sutter was ordered held on $1,000 bond pending a July 27 hearing.

Defendant Refuses To Be Arraigned

By NICK SMITH
Staff Writer

A man accused of assaulting a policeman was jailed under $4,500 bond Monday after he refused to be arraigned on a charge of aggravated assault in Berrien District Court.

"I told him I'd check back with him in a week," District Judge Hugh Black said of the reluctant defendant, "or he can contact me sooner."

Charged with aggravated assault against Benton Harbor Patrolman John Pagel is William Avery, 26, of 1052 Hurd, Benton Harbor. After turning his back on the judge during the arraignment several times, Avery said that he didn't want to be arraigned. Black said that he told the defendant that refusal to be arraigned would mean going back to jail, and the defendant said going back to jail was fine with him.

Black said that he is in the process of appointing an attorney for Avery. Patrolman Pagel sustained cuts about the eye when he was struck by a man in the Brooklyn tavern, Territorial road, early Monday.

Guilty Plea Made After Trial Opens

After a half-day of trial yesterday in Berrien Circuit court in which a jury had been selected and one witness had testified, a South Bend man pleaded guilty to a lesser charge.

Judge Chester J. Byrns accepted the guilty plea of Mark H. Groves, 19, to a charge of attempted larceny in a building. Groves remained jailed in lieu of $10,000 bond to await sentencing of up to two years in prison.

He went to trial on a charge of breaking and entering the Belle Plaza pharmacy, in Niles township, on May 2. The charge to which he pleaded guilty accused Groves of attempting to steal drugs.

Byrns said the plea came after the trial had started because both the prosecution and defense agreed the guilty plea to the lesser charge was in the best interest of justice. Assistant Prosecutor Jeff Long represented the prosecution and St. Joseph Atty. Stanley White was counsel for Groves.

Seven Cities Will Share Transit Grant

WASHINGTON (AP) — Seven major cities are to split $300 million in federal mass transit grants that could be used to create new jobs.

The grants are to be announced today by Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman Jr.

The Urban Mass Transportation Administration grants are to go to New York, Baltimore, Boston, Detroit, San Francisco, the District of Columbia and Seattle, a Transportation Department spokesman said.

charged with uttering and publishing false checks for $80 and $85 in Benton Harbor and St. Joseph in June. She remained jailed under bonds totaling $5,000.

Sentenced were: Thomas Catchings, 35, of 716 McAllister, Benton Harbor, fine and costs of $100 for possession of an unregistered pistol June 13 in Benton township.

Carol Lee Murphy, 24, of 1493 Norton, Benton township, two days in jail, $200 and one year probation for possession of marijuana May 6 in Benton Harbor.

Dale E. Jackson, 19, of 1727 Crystal, Benton township, $122 for petty larceny July 19 at Benton Harbor K-Mart.

Ricky A. Knotts, 21, of Covert, three days in jail and $50 or seven days in jail total for driving while license suspended in Hagar township July 9.

Byron L. Davis, 18, of Sand Ridge road, Sawyer, 10 days in jail and $155 for assault and battery against Richard Ott May 19 in Bridgman.

Jessica Diaz-DeLeon, 23, of Joliet, Ill., $50 or 10 days in jail for use of marijuana July 20 in Benton township.

Carl D. Malinskas, 42, of Paw Paw avenue, Watervliet, $50 or 10 days in jail for reckless use of a revolver July 17 in Watervliet township.

George E. Furlough, 19, of 877 Pearl street, Benton Harbor, $32 for disorderly person — gambling — July 17 in Benton Harbor.

Driving while intoxicated — Donald R. Romeo, 19, of 397 Seales avenue, Benton Harbor, $152 or 45 days in jail; Gale A. Molnar, 25, of 663 Baushke avenue, Benton Harbor, $152 and six months probation; Robert F. Hahn, 49, of 600 Miller, St. Joseph, $155.

Impaired driving — Wayne B. Clark, 59, of 1050 Red Bud trail, Buchanan, $100; James Conner, 50, of 1102 Lions Park drive, St. Joseph, $152 and six months probation.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

Default having been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage made the 6th day of November 1970, by Russell McNealy and Dianna J. McNealy, as mortgagors, to United States of America, as mortgagee, and recorded on November 9, 1970, in the office of the Register of Deeds for Berrien County, Michigan in Liber 885 of mortgages on pages 315-318; on which mortgage there is claimed to be due and unpaid at the date of this Notice Twelve Thousand Six Hundred Sixteen and 10/100 dollars ($12,616.10) principal and Five Hundred Fourteen and 85/100 dollars ($514.85) interest; no suit or proceeding at law or in equity having been instituted to recover the debt, or any part of the debt, secured by said mortgage, and the power of sale contained in said mortgage having become operative by reason of such default;

NOW, THEREFORE, Notice is Hereby Given that on August 24, 1976, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at the front steps of the courthouse in St. Joseph, Michigan, that being the place for holding the Circuit Court for the County of Berrien, there will be offered for sale and sold to the highest bidder, at public sale, for the purpose of satisfying the amounts due and unpaid upon said mortgage, together with the legal costs and charges of sale; provided by law and in said mortgage, the lands and premises in said mortgage mentioned and described, as follows, to-wit:

Lot 15, Sutherland's Addition to the Village, now City, of Watervliet, Berrien County, Michigan, according to the plat thereof, recorded November 3, 1899 in Book 3 of Plats, page 68. Subject, however, to all valid outstanding easements, rights-of-way, mineral leases, mineral reservations and mineral conveyances of record. Subject to the rights of the public and any Governmental unit in any part thereof taken, used or needed for street, road or highway purposes.

The redemption period will be six months from the time of such sale. Property may be redeemed by paying balance due plus 7% interest and any fees, taxes or other unpaid encumbrances on the property from date of sale.

LARGE FAMILY HOME

30-3776...This 5 bedroom 2 story colonial executive home is "just what the doctor ordered". Features include 2 1/2 baths, family room with wet bar and charcoal grill and formal dining room with French doors that open to a gorgeous kidney-shaped swimming pool. The ravine lot adds to the luxury of this home. For more details and an appointment to see.

THE EVERYTHING HOME

1767...Local Construction Condition! Bright spacious 4 bedroom offers 2 1/2 baths, family room, built-in kitchen with breakfast room, carpeted throughout, gas heat, central air, full basement with bar, plus 2 car garage. Close to Memorial Hospital.

30-3422...Immediate possession offered when you purchase this newly decorated 3 bedroom ranch home. Family sized kitchen, hardwood floors throughout, double garage, full brick exterior. Located in the N. Lincoln-Arden School area.

ALL FIXED UP

70-3335...This very attractively decorated home is in top-top shape. You'll have to wait years for established plantings like these—and wait till you see the trees and the private backyard. This is a great starter home—2 bedrooms, large kitchen with dining area, living room with plush carpet, and a finished, carpeted rec room with bar.

JUST REDUCED

1794...A beautiful Cape Cod offers a fireplace in the living room and a new furnace in full basement. You'll stay cozy in the winter, but you'll enjoy summer outdoors on a covered patio. New aluminum exterior will keep maintenance to a minimum. Convenient schools and shopping. Priced at $17,900.
